School board votes tonight on removal of 'Black Sambo'

Stereotype should be avoided: Gill

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill feels characters in the controversial children's book "Little Black Sambo" identify with a stereotype of blacks that should be avoided.

Gill and Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling, entered the only dissenting votes in a recent decision by school officials to keep the book in School Dist. 21 libraries.

In a letter to school board members, Gill explained his reasons for wanting to grant the request of a Buffalo Grove family to remove the book.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., made the request because they feel "Little Black Sambo" is insulting to blacks.

Gill stressed, however, that the book should not be taken off the shelves merely because one person complained.

"WE SHOULD REMOVE a book from our school libraries or not select some additional books, only when we think it is not in the best educational interest of our students," Gill said in the letter. He told the Herald yesterday, "The whole issue is not a Willie Jefferson issue, it's an education issue."

Gill agreed with the Jeffersons that "Little Black Sambo" stereotypes and demeans blacks.

Gill's letter reads. "I feel that this should be avoided and more books should be used which give a more realistic picture of black persons. We must remember that most of our students have very little opportunity to relate to black persons in a realistic manner. I sometimes wonder if the book would be so humorous and enjoyable if Helen Bannerman had written it about English children."

GILL ADDED THAT he considered "Little Black Sambo" a "fairy tale" or "fantasy" and that the story did not have enough worth to overcome the negative aspects of the black stereotype.

Countering the statement that "Little Black Sambo" is part of the American heritage, Gill answered in the letter, "So was slavery, but we wouldn't want to keep it in our present society."

Gill told the Herald he did not feel removing the book would establish a dangerous precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

"We select books for kids anyway," Gill said.

by JILL BETTNER

The fate of Little Black Sambo, a fictional character in a children's classic written in 1899, is to be decided tonight by the Dist. 21 School Board. A local family has asked that the book be removed from Dist. 21 libraries because it represents "subtle racism."

Officials of Dist. 21, which serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, portions of Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, voted two weeks ago to keep the book on the shelves, and referred the matter to the board.

The special 10-member committee voted 8-2 to recommend that the board deny the request of Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., Buffalo Grove, to remove "Little Black Sambo" from area schools.

Jefferson complained to Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School, when his young daughter recently brought home a copy of Helen Bannerman's popular story about the little black boy who loses his clothes to tigers and then gets them back when the tigers turn to butter.

IN A LETTER to McKown, Jefferson said he considered the characters in the story "one-sided, subtle stereotyping of one ethnic group as opposed to another." He categorized the book as "subtle, institutionalized racism."

McKown and Supt. Kenneth Gill were the only members of the committee who voted to ban the book.

Gill said that while he did not personally object to the book, he felt that if the Jeffersons considered it demeaning, it should be removed.

Gill sent a letter to all school board members last week, further explaining his reasons for voting to eliminate "Little Black Sambo" from school book collections.

THE CONSENSUS among the majority of the committee members was that "Little Black Sambo" is nothing more than an innocent fairy tale. However, Dist. 21 head librarian Betty Ekstrom recommended that newer books, describing a variety of black experiences, be added to Dist. 21 libraries to give children a broader perspective on blacks.

Some area residents have expressed opposition to taking "Little Black Sambo" off the shelves because they feel the action might establish a precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the board room of the administration building, adjacent to Jack London Junior High School, 900 W. Dundee Rd.

board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

Making the elves go 'round

by LYNN ASINOF

The back shop of Perren Gerber and Associates in Wheeling looks like an elves workshop. It is full of giant Easter eggs, gingerbread castles, reindeer and fairies.

But instead of being elves, the workers at Perren Gerber make elves . . . and pixies and bunnies and gingerbread men. And when they're done, all these whimsical creatures come to life through mechanical animation.

The animated displays conceived, designed and produced in the Wheeling workshop end up in shopping centers and department stores throughout the country during the holiday seasons. For example, there is a bunny band of musical rabbits which will soon be seen in the windows of Marshall Field and Co. at Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg.

According to Perren Gerber, one of three partners in the firm, shopping centers are beginning to turn from traditional "run-of-the-mill" decorations to animated displays. He said the displays, which come as a complete unit, can be used over and over during several different holiday seasons.

"IT'S A MATTER of building a tradition for a shopping center," he said. "People are now willing to spend the extra."

No cause yet in jet crash

Federal Aviation Administration officials yesterday were still looking for what caused a Lear jet to cut power lines as it approached Pal-Waukee Airport for a landing late Monday night.

Neal Callahan, FAA public affairs officer, said investigators may not know for a week what caused the plane to make contact with the power lines. He said, however, they are focusing their attention on the plane's instruments.

"Several of the instruments will be removed and sent away for investigation and it could take some time before we get the results," said Callahan.

THE SMALL jet, owned by the Gould Equipment Co. and based at Pal-Waukee, was making a landing approach from the northwest when it clipped the powerlines on Lake-Cook Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue.

Neither the jet's four passengers nor anyone on the ground was injured as a result of the accident. However, more than 5,000 Wheeling and Deerfield residents lost electric power for 90 minutes.

FAA officials said the jet was slightly damaged when it hit the lines with its nose gear and went on to land safely at O'Hare Airport.

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoop Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 80 years in prison and $108,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the

$617 million less than last year

Walker asks $7 billion state budget

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker recommended to the Illinois General Assembly a fiscal 1974 budget of $7.027 billion — $617 million less than last year's figure. He said it was the first proposed reduction in appropriations in 23 years.

Included in the document were hefty increases for education, transportation and environmental protection. Proposed welfare spending, however, was lower in Walker's budget than in that recommended last year by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie — the first time in years that welfare costs have not showed a substantial rise.

Walker also proposed eliminating the sales tax on food and medicine and provided $30 million in his budget to do that.

WALKER said the over-all reduction in his budget was accomplished because he wrote the budget "as I believe the people would have me do it."

For fiscal 1973, Walker said, total appropriations were $7.645 billion. To obtain his proposal of $7.027 billion "I have cut hard and deep. I have departed from the past practice of requesting greater appropriations for operations and grants than can be spent."

The governor said his plan to eliminate the sales tax on food and medicine would provide an income tax exemption of $350 per person.

"Every taxpayer benefits," he said. "A family of six will have $52.50 more to spend on what they want, not what government wants."

Increased spending for tax relief, education and road building, Walker said, were canceled by cutting welfare costs and by eliminating some state jobs. In the Department of Agriculture, he said, 35 unnecessary jobs were eliminated, saving approximately $300,000 a year.

OF WELFARE. Walker said the battle to keep costs below last year's level "will be tough ... eliminating over-payments and payments to ineligible recipients would enable us to meet this goal. By adding capable caseworkers and allowing caseworkers to help people by liberating them from a morass of forms and procedures, they can help win this battle against public waste."

Walker is asking for $1.44 billion for public aid compared with the $1.454 billion Ogilvie requested. Walker estimates the actual welfare expenditures for the current fiscal year will total about $1.448 billion.

Walker said he is recommending slashes in the appropriations for adult education and child care programs — which encompass day care training programs already threatened by federal cut-backs, by more than $1 million.

He said he wants authority to spend $3.3 million on the adult training and child care programs compared with the $4.35 million Ogilvie sought. However, Walker said, his figure is still $240,000 below what he expects to spend on the adult training and child care programs.

THE GOVERNOR'S proposed education budget request of $1.885 billion marks a $164 million increase over projected spending for the current fiscal year and tops Ogilvie's proposed budget last year by $24 million.

Elementary and secondary education would net a $134 million increase over this year's spending with a total $1.23 billion appropriation. The proposal also tops Ogilvie's last budget by $24 million.

Walker's transportation budget request of $1.56 billion fell $131 million below Ogilvie's last transportation budget, but Walker said administrative economy would allow some program expenditures to increase.

He asked for more funds for highway construction and repair, a 13 per cent increase in public transportation funds and increases in funds for air traffic safety and water resource management.

WALKER, during the 1971 and 1972 campaign, promised repeatedly to eliminate large areas of waste from the budget. Pressed by Ogilvie to detail where those cuts would come, Walker said he could not then go into detail.

"What I'm saying is that every person close to state government knows. There is waste there," Walker told a meeting of UPI editors May 5, 1972. Asked again for details, Walker said, "You've got to get the working papers. You've got to look at the departmental records and that's what I'm going to do as governor in a tough, businesslike way."

Shortly after his inauguration, however, Walker began saying he would "not be able to put my stamp on this budget" because so much of the work on it was done under the Ogilvie administration.

FINALLY, last Friday, Walker said he "will take full responsibility for this budget" — a statement which his budget chief, Hal Hovey, qualified with a description of the difficulties Walker had during the transition from the Ogilvie administration.

Ogilvie, Hovey said, had required justification only for those areas of the budget which involved increases over the previous year's figures. Walker, he said, went back and reassessed the Ogilvie figures, requiring justification for programs already in progress, as well as for proposed increases.

Regner: Walker budget cuts are on paper only

by BOB LAHEY

Gov. Daniel Walker's first state budget, which he said provides reductions of $617 million over Gov. Richard Ogilvie's last budget, actually represents increased spending proposals of nearly $1 billion, according to Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee and the State Economic and Fiscal Commission, is former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Walker yesterday presented to the General Assembly a budget proposal for $7.027 billion. Regner pointed out that while the Ogilvie-designed budget for the current year totaled about $7.65 billion, it actually included authorization for spending only about $6.1 billion.

Regner said the discrepancy between appropriations and spending authorizations in past budgets were necessitated by capital bonding procedures which are no longer necessary. Formerly, when the state planned projects to be financed over a number of years by capital bonds, it was necessary to appropriate the full cost of the projects at the outset in order to assure bond buyers of "the full faith and credit of the state" even though only a portion of the total cost was to be spent each year.

LAST YEAR, the legislature created the state Capital Bonding Authority with the power to sell bonds for capital improvements in all state agencies and to guarantee full faith and credit of the state. Creation of the authority removed the necessity for appropriating more money than was planned for spending in a single year, Regner said.

Regner said the printed budget proposal given legislators by the governor was difficult to analyze because it included no comparisons with last year's budget. But he said an initial examination indicated areas where Walker's proposals appeared "unrealistic."

"It's a beautiful thought," he said, "to say that we are going to hold public aid expenditures below what we are paying this year. But I suspect it will just mean that we wind up with a bigger deficit this year."

New delay seen in Jayne murder trial

The murder trial of Silas Jayne and Joseph LaPlaca, charged with the 1970 killing of Inverness horseman George Jayne, is expected to be delayed until at least March 19.

Assistant State's Atty. Nicholas Motherway said yesterday the anticipated delay is the result of defense requests to postpone the trial until famed Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey is finished with another case in Kansas City.

Two attorneys from Bailey's law firm, Gerald Alch and Martin Kadish, are the attorneys of record representing Jayne and LaPlaca. However, Motherway said yesterday that Bailey is now expected to play some part in the defense.

Both Motherway and Alch said recently they expect the trial may take as long as six to eight weeks in the courtroom of Circuit Court Judge Richard Fitzgerald.

The case has been delayed numerous times since Silas Jayne and LaPlaca were arrested in May, 1971. Both have been refused bail and are in the county jail awaiting trial.

OTHER LEGISLATORS from the Northwest suburbs reacted more favorably to the proposed budget.

Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, while critical of portions of the proposal, commended Walker for a document which appeared "taxpayer-oriented," and said he was "delighted with his announced war on inefficiency in government."

Walker told the legislature he had cut 25 unneeded positions from the Department of Agriculture and was determined to weed out bureaucrats whose main function "is to talk to each other." The governor also said the state is going to "spend less on brochures and new cars and on reports nobody needs and nobody reads."

Schlickman said, however, he was disturbed that Walker made no reference to the issue of reorganization of the executive branch of government and that he ignored an extensive study on that subject completed under the Ogilvie administration. "I am concerned that by his silence he may have indicated that no substantive reorganization is planned," Schlickman said.

REP. EUGENIA S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, said she was pleased by the governor's proposal for income tax exemptions to relieve the burden of sales taxes on food and drugs; by proposed increases in aid to the common schools; and by cutbacks in public aid coupled with added caseworkers to eliminate waste.

"He appears to be devoted to what he calls 'people services' in the areas of health and education and in higher education where needed," said Mrs. Chapman.

REP. RICHARD A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, called the budget proposal "terrific," and said it showed that Walker "is going to be a hard-nosed governor who will watch the dollars and work for the people."

Mugalian said the income tax exemption of $350 per person is "probably the cleanest way" to achieve relief from the food-and-drug sales tax. A member of the House Revenue Committee, he said various proposals for providing the relief "at the counter" are vastly complicated.

The tax exemption plan was generally well-accepted by legislators, although many said they would prefer a simple credit on income tax returns for the amount spent or simple elimination of the sales tax on necessities.

Mill Creek area

Osmon joins park land deal talks

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday appointed Trustee Edward Osmon to meet with the park district and a Mill Creek homeowners' group to discuss the proposed land acquisition for additional parks in the Mill Creek area.

The group has proposed a 5.5-acre park be developed adjacent to the Washington Irving School which is scheduled to open this fall.

They also have suggested the park district acquire an additional 12 acres which has been designated for the construction of phase two of the Mill Creek Apartments.

WAYNE BARTO, the group's spokesman, told the board additional park facilities are already needed and projected population figures indicate the need is increasing.

According to guidelines set down in the park district master plan, 25 acres should be set aside for parks and recreation areas in the subdivision. At present, there is a four acre park in nearby Frenchman's Cove and an additional five acres owned by the park district in Mill Creek.

"We feel we deserve more land than this for our subdivision," Barto said.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong told Barto the board was in agreement and would work with them in trying to find a solution.

Armstrong said in response to a question he did not know if the village board had the authority to condemn land for park use.

ARMSTRONG ALSO pointed out obtaining land through condemnation was often expensive because law requires the owner of the land be given a price equivalent to "its highest and best use." Armstrong said he did not know if the village could afford to buy the land.

Trustee Shirley agreed, adding, "If that land is once condemned, the village better be able to pay for it immediately or they could lose it."

Both Shirley and Armstrong said they viewed condemnation only as a last resort.

In other action Monday the village board also approved appointments and reappointments to the Board of Health, Plan Commission and Civil Defense Commission. John Walker was appointed to the Board of Health and Howard Keister and Patrick Shields were appointed to the Plan Commission.

Donald Schindler was reappointed as director of the Civil Defense Commission, while Ted Wilas was reappointed as deputy director and Wally Schrepper and Paul Kochendorfer were reappointed as commissioners.

THIS LITTLE CLAY MODEL, sculpted by Perren Gerber, will be cast in a special rubber and then animated. Gerber said this little fellow will eventually become a miniature prototype of the figures produced in his shop. He explained that a standard size figure is just too bulky to carry on airplanes to sales meetings.

Because the displays are viewed as an investment, the firm often gets orders in stages so that a new display will be built every year until the total design is complete. Gerber said his storeroom is now full of Christmas fairies and gingerbread men that will be added to a shopping center display in Maryland next winter.

Gerber, who handles most of the design and selling work, likes to plan displays for each shopping center individually. He explained that this makes it possible to take advantage of the structures already in existence, saving money in designing the displays.

For example, the designer said he is now working with the architects of a new shopping center in New York so the holiday display area will be built right into the center.

"WE WILL NOW be involved in the building of it right up until the time it opens," he said. "By doing it this way, the money they will save in the following years will be astronomical."

Gerber said most shopping centers or stores do not have any set ideas about their holiday decorations when they first approach his firm. "In most cases they will say, 'Will you come see our center and make a recommendation?'" he said.

Once the designs are approved, the building of the displays begins. Gerber sculpts models of his animated figures in clay, and then sends them to another firm to be mold casted in a special rubber.

Gerber said that this is the only aspect of the operation not done in the Wheeling shop. He said mold casting is a specialized skill which has been perfected "by the old-time masters."

"IT WOULD take another two generations of operation for us to perfect it to the level they already have," Gerber said. He added that his firm used to do their own molding but couldn't get the same results as the old-timers.

When the rubber forms come back looking like transparent yellow gnomes, the second partner, George Schnoor, goes to work. He is the expert in animating the figures, using various types of motors and mechanical devices.

Schnoor likes to downplay his skill. When asked if there are any special tricks to animating the figures, he said, "Just don't get your fingers caught in the motor."

But his labors in getting a guitar-playing rabbit to tap his foot in rhythm showed there is considerably more to this art.

Gerber feels Schnoor is probably the best animator in the field. "He plays it down considerably," he said. "But it takes an intellect and an imagination that you can't learn at school."

ACCORDING TO Gerber, Schnoor has a knack for getting a natural softness to the movement of his figures. "It's an understanding of the way the body moves," he said. "It's such a complete understanding of the machinery that it doesn't become an obstacle."

Schnoor is also the one who builds the little tree houses and gingerbread castles that house his figures. Right now the firm is experimenting with using a new foam for these structures. Each new type of building is first prepared in experimental form, and then these models are set outdoors to be tested against the weather.

Currently the rear of the firm's building is decorated with lighted Christmas ornaments, strings of lights and a miniature tree house.

Besides the tree houses, bunnies and elves, the firm also works with live animals, particularly at Easter time. These animals are used in live displays such as bunny villages, chicken and duck incubators, and small animal zoos.

GERBER SAID that the firm's business includes whatever needs to be known to make displays work. "It's whatever the situation calls for," he said. "We haven't limited ourselves at all."

This sometimes ranges from knowing how many chickens will hatch in an incubator to understand how to blend the fur on mechanically animated bunnies. But Gerber admits he doesn't like the business aspect of the company, and happily leaves all the facts and figures to his wife, Sandy, the third partner.

According to Gerber, it is his wife who keeps the firm on a sound economic footing while he and Schnoor experiment with new display ideas and techniques. He said because of this constant experimentation, the firm often loses money.

FOR EXAMPLE, an experiment in changing the fur on the bunny band from white to brown can wipe out the profit in building the display.

But Gerber said his experimentation is what makes their product a good one. "We've gotten better and better, and we lose less and less," he said.

More importantly, the people who work at Perren Gerber and Associates enjoy their work. "Nobody dreads coming to work in the morning," Gerber said.

In fact, Schnoor, Gerber and his wife seem to enjoy the bunnies, elves and fairies as much as the children who will eventually watch them wide-eyed in the shopping centers.

DOROTHY GREGORY adjusts the drum of one member of a five-piece bunny band. She said after working on the animated figures awhile, each one takes on its own personality. In fact, she said everyone has his own favorites to work with. Although the bunnies all start out looking pretty much alike, their personalities change as they get their fur, eyes and clothing.

Police charge 3 after farmhouse drug raid

Three youths were arrested and 30 pounds of marijuana valued at about $12,000 were seized Monday in a raid of a farmhouse on Rural Route 1, in Long Grove.

Arrested were Guy Novosse, 20, Richard Diviel, 21, and Charles Trebing, 23, all residents of the house. Novosse was charged with delivery of marijuana and Diviel and Trebing were charged with possession of marijuana.

The arrests were made after Novosse allegedly sold some marijuana to an undercover agent.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh said his department assisted the Metropolitan Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs Enforcement Group (MEG) in making the arrests. The arrests followed a month of investigation, he said.

After making the arrests a search of the house turned up the additional marijuana. The youths probably were selling some of the marijuana because it was more than they could have used, Walsh said.

The youths were released on bond pending their appearance in court.

Parks to conduct open house today

Local parks and recreation will be discussed tonight in an informal open house planned by Buffalo Grove Park District officials.

The open house will follow a short business meeting at 8 p.m. at Emmertich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd.

Park district candidates Charles Candler, 821 Thornton Ln. and Raymond Ledinsky Jr., 501 Springside Ln., have been invited. Incumbent Dede Armstrong is also seeking reelection in the April 17 race.

In addition to reporting on construction progress at the park sites, the commissioners also will discuss plans for future construction.

The spring schedule of recreation programs will be outlined, along with plans for upcoming special events.

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Moderate-income housing project starts near here

Construction has started on a 212-unit apartment development west of Buffalo Grove in northern Palatine Township. The development will be for moderate-income families for the elderly.

Located north of Rand Road and Long Grove Road, the 12½ acre site will have two- and three-story buildings and a recreation area. It will be called Rand Grove Village. Construction is expected to take 18 months.

The Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC) is developing the housing, which is owned by a partnership of MHDC and the Shelter Corporation of America, according to Dr. Salvatore Ferrera, executive vice president of MHDC.

Federal funding under a mortgage subsidy program is financing most of the estimated $4 million cost of the project. The federal subsidy comes through the Federal Housing Authority under the National Housing Act, Section 236.

In January, attorney Thomas A. Volini petitioned the Cook County Board to approve a MHDC application for rent subsidies under another federal program. Those subsidies may not become available until a national moratorium on such federal funding is lifted.

No applications for housing subsidies were accepted after Jan. 5 this year, when President Nixon announced the moratorium that will be effective for 18 months.

Applications approved before the freeze will still receive the federal monies.

'Excessive publicity' closes Amy custody case hearing

Reacting to what he called excessive publicity, a district judge held hearings in secret Tuesday on an Arlington Heights woman's request the court return the daughter she gave up for adoption less than two weeks after birth.

"I recognize there is considerable concern (in the case)," said district Judge John F. Gallagher in a statement distributed to newsmen barred from the hearing Monday. "But this is a private matter between private parties."

Gallagher said the rights of privacy of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, their adopted daughter, 3-year-old Amy, and the child's natural mother "outweighs any consideration for publicizing the case."

A SPOKESMAN at Gallagher's office said the site of the hearing had been moved from his chambers but would not disclose the location.

The hearing began Monday on a request of Paula Marshall, formerly of Arlington Heights and who now lives in Florida, that Amy be returned to her. She said she gave Amy up under duress when the child was 13 days old.

On Monday, Gallagher granted a defense motion and barred reporters from the hearing. He promised he would announce a custody decision when the hearing was concluded.

In 1971, a Cook County judge ruled the child should be returned to her natural mother. The Hueberts, meanwhile had moved to Colorado Springs from Evanston, Ill., after adopting the child.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.76-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Reps. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent . . . is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

School news notes

PHYSICAL EDUCATION instructors at Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling will present a gymnastics exhibition at 7:30 p.m., March 13 in the school gymnasium.

Ray Maxwell and Becky Gillespie are scheduled to perform following a short P.T.A. business meeting to elect officers for the 1973-74 school year.

In their show, Maxwell and Miss Gillespie plan to show "progression" on the parallel bars, side horse, trampoline, balance beam and the uneven parallel bars. The show will also include tumbling by students in grades one through six.

IT'S BEEN another good year for boy's basketball at Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove. Both the 7th and 8th grade squads finished first recently in their respective round-robin tournaments.

The seventh graders finished with a 13-2 season record and the eighth graders racked up 14 wins and one loss.

In conference tournament play, neither team fared quite as well, with the seventh graders losing to Holmes Junior High School of Wheeling 49-40 in the final game and the eighth grade team losing to River Trails by one point in the championship game.

The loss to River Trails marks the end of a two-year 21-game winning streak for the eighth graders. Cooper is the only conference team in history to go undefeated in both the seventh and eighth grade years during regular season play.

COOPER JUNIOR High School walked off with three first place trophies recently in the second annual drill team competition at Woodlands Academy of the Sacred Heart in Lake Forest.

Both the cheerleading squads and the drill team squashed competitors from 40 area schools.

In addition to winning the trophies, the eighth grade cheerleading squad won the honor of cheering at the Northwestern-Michigan State basketball game.

This is the second straight year Cooper has participated in the Woodlands tournament and finished on top.

THREE NEW enterprises in Madison Avenue City in the World of Work at Poe School in Arlington Heights are to open this week in addition to the Madison Avenue City Bank.

Plans are progressing for the opening of an art gallery, radio station WEAP and a card and gift shop.

These new businesses, along with all other local ventures, will be financed by the Madison Avenue City Bank. Principal Donald Ghrist will head the loan department and interview all applicants.

The Madison Avenue City Council is developing a zoning board to aid in the administration of the five-week model city operation. All businesses must appeal to Frank Clark, sixth grade, for proper zoning of their property. Each enterprise will pay taxes this year and receive police and fire service.

The card and gift shop will be operated by Mrs. Carol Ashley's fourth grade class. The students plan to manufacture and sell greeting cards, wrapping paper and small craft gifts. Mrs. Ashley plans to invite a card shop operator to come and help the children with ideas for the grand opening of the shop.

Mrs. Judy Freeman's fourth grade class has been busy writing scripts for radio station WEAP. The class is planning to visit Arlington Heights radio station WMM to see the operation to find out how to prepare for a career in broadcasting.

The art gallery will be operated by children in Mrs. Jane Apel's fifth grade class. Any student in the upper elementary levels at Poe School will be able to submit art for display. If the board of directors of the gallery accepts the art, the student will be paid for his work.

Businesses that opened last year and are flourishing again this year are Wilson's Furniture Store, run by Mrs. Avis Wilson's fourth grade class; the telephone office operated by Mrs. Nancy Schwab's fifth grade class; the postal service run by Mrs. Carol Menzer's fifth grade class and the Madison Avenue Bank and Stock Exchange.

The main goals of the World of Work program are to give students an opportunity to learn about the many careers in a community and to give students a greater appreciation for the dignity of all work.

THE THREE fifth grade classes at Alcott School in Buffalo Grove recently had a seafood party.

Children in the classes of Mrs. Peggy Foster, Mrs. Julie Paris and Miss Jean Butkowski planned the feast in conjunction with their study of oceanography.

Octopus and caviar were among the delicacies brought by members of the class to taste.

CHILDREN STUDYING anatomy in Tom Bone's third grade class at Poe School in Arlington Heights recently had the opportunity to inspect some skeletons first hand.

John Pot, formerly of the Mt. Prospect Animal Hospital visited the class and brought with him several parts of animal bodies and skulls.

FIFTH GRADERS at Frost School in Wheeling recently staged two performances of William Shakespeare's Macbeth under the direction of Miss Charlene Mysok.

Macbeth was played by Karen Kapusinski, Lady Macbeth by Cheryl Schooner, Banquo by Mike Wright, MacDuff by Nancy Zelinske and Duncan was portrayed by James Serak. The three witches were Jim Carroll, Micell Bottia and Diane Singleton.

The performances were under the direction of Kevin Rotheroe and Sharon Suwanski. Stage manager was Keith Bauman. Various other students were in charge of scenery, sound effects and props.

TWENTY-THREE Walt Whitman students recently earned first place awards in the school's annual science fair competition.

Judging of the projects was done by Mrs. Charlotte Mayer and Pat Thompson of Jack London Junior High School. Ribbons were provided by the Whitman P.T.A.

First place ribbons went to first graders Freddie Moeller, Kim Chin, Nancy Vulch, Nancy Jaszurski, Bobby Norton and Eric Fischer; second graders Barbie Plue and Billie Rice; third graders Christopher Warner and Bill McReynolds; fourth graders Mike Barry, Sue Jaszurski, Michelle Gray and Eric Meade; fifth graders Brenda Wimer, Tom Halverson and Bob Eiken; sixth graders Joan Nelson, Yvonne Neri, Judy Jaszurski, Pam Maddock, Jean Proszek and Jean Stricker.

TWO FIFTH grade students are acting as lab assistants for Mrs. Wadzita, third grade teacher at Hawthorne School in Wheeling.

Howard Curran and David Hoffman assist Mrs. Wadzita in presenting SCIS science experiments in her class. The boys also prepare the lab equipment for the class.

SECOND GRADE students at Hawthorne School in Wheeling are making their own ceramic wares, ash trays, bowls, mugs and vases under the direction of Mrs. Cheryl Carper and Mrs. Minerva Coyne.

Religion in the suburbs: Part I

Churches experiencing growth, change

by CINDY TEW
First of a Series"Man is incurably religious."
—Oral Roberts

The turbulence of continual change is churning within and among the churches of the Northwest suburbs.

A procession of people move in and out of the suburban area churches with continually increased speed. While the founding fathers of towns in the area went to one church all their lives, the average membership in most congregations in the area is about two years.

There is also movement away from the main-line denominations, the Lutheran and Presbyterian church, which have been growing for decades, to smaller Bible-oriented churches. Former Methodists, Congregationalists and even some Catholics say they moved to fundamentalist churches to get away from the bureaucracy and get down to the basics, the Bible.

Congregations in older sections of the suburban area like downtown Des Plaines and Arlington Heights are becoming static. In some cases, the membership in the older churches is falling, in contrast to churches on the fringes of area towns where pastors can hardly keep up with the throng.

With the influx of Bible churches over the past few years has come a wave of evangelism. Even some main-line Christian denominations have started programs to spread the word of God to their friends and neighbors. And Bible study groups are on the increase in both Protestant and Catholic churches.

THE STUDY OF the Bible in Catholic churches is one of many changes that have come about recently. Studying the Bible contrasts to the reading of it in Latin by Catholic clergy, which caused many fundamentalists to shake their heads in despair in the past. Bible-oriented church members look to their Catholic neighbors today with hope.

"One of my Catholic friends said they are reading and studying the Bible in their church. If they open the Bible they will eventually learn what God can do for them," said a woman at a Baptist study session.

Baptists have long been known for their evangelizing ways — trying to get their friends to see the light. As more fundamentalist churches and main-line denominations place more emphasis on Bible study, more and more people want to share their faith with their friends.

While there is increasing emphasis on following the teaching of the Bible, social aspects of the church have not declined. Reading the Bible and meeting with friends can coexist very harmoniously.

In a recent Herald survey of dozens of church members in the Northwest suburbs, most said they attend Sunday worship services and participate in other church activities for both religious and social reasons.

Another reason for church attendance that ranks high, especially for young parents, is to provide religious education for their children.

THERE ARE more than 150,000 members of the 135 churches in the Northwest suburbs and every pastor can also count a handful of people who attend his church but have not made the commitment to join, yet.

"We have 700 adult members and 500 children in our Sunday school," said Ken Grandquist, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church in Prospect Heights. "Of the 500 children, about 100 of them are from non-member families."

Most clergymen in the Northwest suburbs agree that as young married couples begin having children, they also begin to make their way to church on a more regular basis.

"They're not quite sure what they believe and if they should join a church, but the young marrieds definitely want their children to learn about the Christian religion," said Grandquist.

THE YOUNG marrieds, uncertain about which church to join, or if they should join, are a prime target for the evangelists in area congregations.

Parents who want their children to receive some religious training often pick up a little religious education too. Many parents who simply meant to get their children into a Sunday school class end up taking a class themselves and finally join a church.

A recent survey of 350 members of the Southminster Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights indicated that 118 members joined the church because of the church school facilities for their children.

Though Northwest suburban families have comparable demographic data including income, number of children and education, the suburbs are a melting pot when it comes to religion.

Almost every Protestant denomination is represented in the Northwest suburbs along with a healthy Catholic population and a growing Jewish community. People who move to the suburbs from any number of Chicago neighborhoods and around the country bring their religion with them.

SINCE THE suburbs are not filled to capacity yet, neither are the churches. New church buildings, new congregations and even new denominations are springing up almost daily in the Northwest suburbs. Most churches, except those in grown up downtown areas, continually plan for additions to keep from bursting at the seams.

Grace Lutheran Church in Prospect

SUNDAY MORNING services provide a time for families to get together with friends as well as learn the basics of their religion. More and more Northwest suburbanites are bringing their Bibles to morning services to learn the stories. Local clergymen say Bible classes are more in demand than ever lately.

Heights, which started meeting in field houses in 1959, is now working on its third building project. Southminster Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights has had four building projects since 1961. The First Christian Reformed Church in Des Plaines, with only about 300 members, has been through three building phases since it was organized in 1929.

Out of 60 churches which recently answered a Herald questionnaire, 15 were not in existence 10 years ago. And 10 years ago there were only 30,800 members at the 45 churches. Today the 60 churches have 72,000 members.

The only churches which seem to be faced with a declining membership are old established churches in areas where housing developments were completed years ago. Some pastors in the older areas readily admit they are losing out to the influx of Bible churches.

IN DES PLAINES, for example, three established churches, the First United Methodist Church, Immanuel Lutheran Church and the First Congregational Church have recently watched the congregation dwindle. According to the pastors, reasons for the decline in membership include competition from outlying churches, a changing downtown area that has seen older members die out or leave and increased mobility of newer residents.

"The United Methodist Church has been in the forefront of the activist movement, which has hurt the Des Plaines church because some have thought it too revolutionary while some think the local church is too conservative," said the Rev. R. A. W. Bruhl, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines.

The Bible-oriented churches, on the other hand, stress the understanding of the word of God revealed in the Bible without having to worry about the latest social issue.

Taking a cue from their fellow clergymen who are facing declines in membership, some local clergy like those across the nation, are very careful about what they say on Sunday mornings.

"PROTESTANT churches in the United States have abandoned their moral responsibility to society by developing into exclusivistic homogeneous and geographically-isolated white middle-class enclaves," scolds Gibson Winter in his book "Suburban Captivity of the Churches." "Harmony is the functional norm of the highly mobile church with a transient membership."

Some pastors are afraid they won't be understood, so they use different words in different situations.

"My terms have to be understandable and meaningful to everyone. I have to use different words for different people depending on the situation," said William T. Jones, pastor of Southminster Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights. "For example an older person in the hospital may find the 23rd Psalm very meaningful while a young child in the hospital may not."

Many Catholic churches have licked the problem of appealing to everyone by having a variety of masses each Sunday. St. James Church in Arlington Heights, for example, has traditional services, contemporary services and even guitar masses weekly to get the message across in whatever language the people of the parish of nearly 10,000 want to hear.

"We hesitate to take public stands from the pulpit since we have so many varied points of view in the congregation, but we encourage discussion and participation in public life," says Rev. Jones, who echoes the sentiments of most Northwest suburban clergymen.

"THE IDEA IS TO get everyone involved in something," said the Rev. William Zavaski, associate pastor of St. James. Like most Catholic churches in the area, St. James has about 10 Sunday masses and several masses and adult education programs throughout the week.

Like their Protestant neighbors, Catholics of more conservative Northwest suburban parishes get upset with pastors who won't address issues from the pulpit. Of the dozen Catholic churches in the area, for example, less than half addressed the Supreme Court ruling on abortion the Sunday after the decision was made.

According to the Rev. Raymond Devereux of St. James, however, abortion was not mentioned at his parish because the ruling came only a day before the service and a liturgy on the peace in Vietnam had already been prepared.

"There is probably more division among the congregation about the peace in Vietnam than about abortion," said Rev. Devereux. "Some people are angry at Nixon for 'selling out' and others think that peace should have been made a long time ago. Catholics are pretty united in their opposition to abortion, though."

Rev. Devereux admitted, however, that many of the Northwest suburban Catholic churches are very conservative and stick to secular issues.

"There have been tremendous changes in the Catholic church since about 1961. The younger people have grown up with the changes and accept them, for the most part, while the older people find the church very strange," said Rev. Devereux. "You have to make the church comfortable to the majority."

WHEELING FIREMEN work to free trapped victims of a three-car accident on Dundee Road near the Tri-State Tollway late Tuesday night. Six persons were injured and taken to Highland Park Hospital. Police blamed the weather and mud on the roadway for the accident.

3-car Dundee Rd. accident injures 6

Six persons were hospitalized Tuesday night, three with serious injuries, following a three-car accident on Dundee Road near the Tri-State Tollway. The accident was caused by mud on the road's surface, according to police.

One of the six injured was Diane Mazza, 650 Mark Ln., Wheeling. She is listed in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit of Highland Park Hospital, suffering from eye injuries, a fractured leg and multiple contusions.

Of the other five injured who were also taken to Highland Park Hospital, four are from Deerfield and one is from Chicago.

Joan Vido of Deerfield is listed in poor condition in the intensive care unit suffering from severe head injuries, a fractured arm and a fractured leg. Diego Vido, also of Deerfield, is in the intensive care unit, in satisfactory condition with facial lacerations and possible internal injuries.

The three other victims are all in satisfactory condition in the hospital's pediatric unit. Hospital officials said David Vido and Allen Vido, both of Deerfield, received scalp lacerations during the accident. Deborah Mazza of Chicago is suffering from facial lacerations and a leg injury, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police said the accident occurred when the car driven by Diane Mazza skidded on mud while westbound on Dundee Road. The car went out of control and crossed the road, striking the vehicle driven by Diego Vido.

Vido's car went off the south embankment striking a third car which had skidded off the road only minutes before. The third car, belonging to James Andrews of Deerfield, was empty as occupants were walking to a service station for help.

CHILDREN IN Paul Bett's sixth grade class at Hawthorne School in Wheeling recently had a Central American-West Indies Festival.

The students prepared displays on bananas, coffee and sugar cane plantations, lumbering, the area climate, the Panama Canal, time lines showing the history of the people and sampled typical foods.

Parents, teachers and fellow students at Hawthorne were invited to view the displays culminating two units in social studies on Central America and West Indies countries.

Ex-employees under scrutiny in fire

Several ex-employees of the Hyatt House Hotel in Rosemont are being questioned in connection with an arson fire that devastated the hotel Friday, it was learned yesterday.

Rosemont police declined to give details of the investigation but said they are investigating "many people but nothing definite has happened."

Police said they have made no arrests. State Fire Marshal Investigator Joseph Valley also refused comment.

Investigators said they suspected arson Saturday after turning up evidence of five separate fires ignited by a flammable liquid which gutted the lounge and scattered close to 1,000 hotel guests around 5:30 Friday morning.

It's the real thing in maple syrup

Free samples of maple syrup and demonstrations in the pioneer and Indian methods of tapping sugar maple trees will be given to visitors to a "sugaring-down" party at the River Trail Nature Center in Northbrook next week.

The sugaring down get-together will be held at the center March 18 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. The center is located on the west side of Milwaukee Avenue, three-fourths of a mile southeast of River Road.

Naturalists from the forest preserve district plan to demonstrate two methods of tapping "sugarbush" trees at the center.

First, they will bore small holes, about two inches deep, in each tree, then insert a "spile" tube of hollowed basswood or ash. Running sap collects in a small bucket hung on the end of the tube.

The sap is then collected and boiled in an iron kettle at about 240 degrees. The natural maple syrup results after sufficient evaporation of water from the sap. Naturalists said about 30 gallons of sap is needed to produce one gallon of syrup.

Also to be demonstrated is the Indian technique, in which a "V" is gashed in the tree trunk and the flowing sap is gathered in a three-foot hollow container of basswood, pine or birchbark.

THORNTON STOELTING, naturalist for the Cook County Forest Preserve District, makes a test pour of raw sap from a sugar maple tree. He and others will demonstrate how pioneers and Indians gathered and made maple syrup to visitors to the River Trail Nature Center in Northbrook March 18.

Local Nike units designated Guard 'superior units'

All four units of the 1st Bn 202nd (Here) Air Defense Artillery, with headquarters battery in Arlington Heights, were awarded the Army National Guard Superior Unit Award by Maj. Gen. Francis Greenleaf, chief of the National Guard Bureau.

Units receiving the superior unit awards must score highly on small arms qualifications and on actual firing of Nike missiles at a military range in New Mexico as well as other scores based on test criteria throughout the year.

Lt. Col. Harry Callos of Palatine, commander of the 202nd, made presentations of plaques during award ceremonies at each of the units. The units are located in Arlington Heights, Homewood, Addison and Northfield.

YOUR MONEY...

The first "modern" prototype of the savings and loan association as we know it was born in Birmingham, England, back in 1781. It was called a building society. A voluntary association of a small number of people got together to pool their savings, with the idea of enabling each member in turn to borrow from this "pool" to build a house.

Why weren't there any savings and loan societies before this? Mainly because so many people lived an agricultural life. They often built their own dwellings, alone or with the help of neighbors. And they never had much in this way of cash savings.

The industrial revolution changed all that. It brought people flocking to the cities, where a new worker class grew up. That's when the need for a financial institution where a man could put aside small amounts of savings became acute. Linking this savings idea to the need for help in financing a home, the cooperative savings and loan association was born.

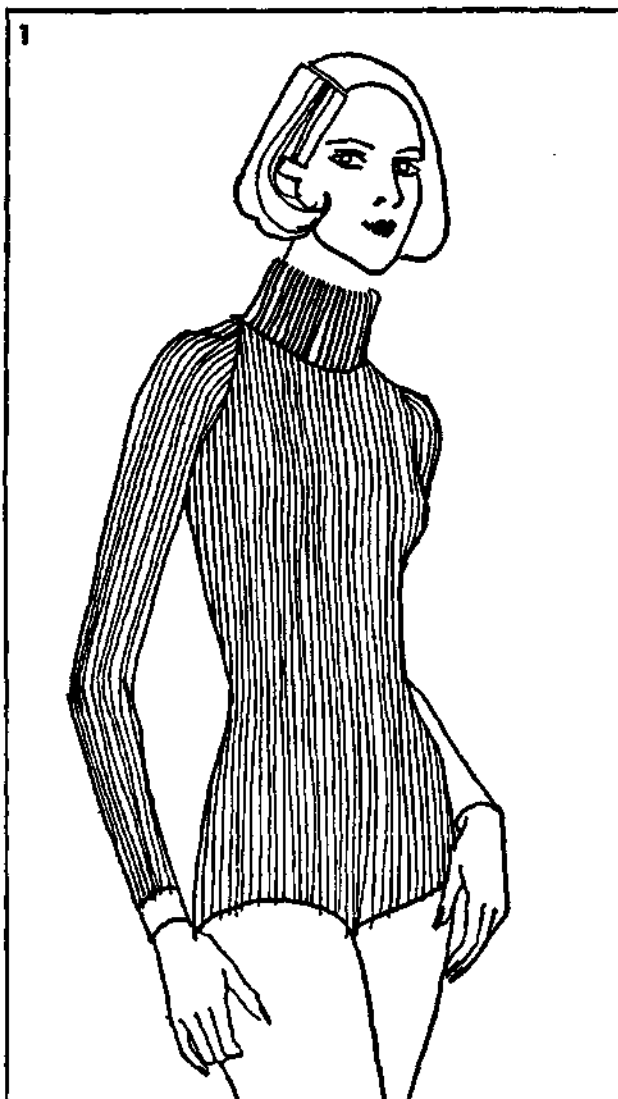

Today more than ever our savings and loan association can play an important role in your life... enabling your savings to build rapidly, earning high dividends, and providing the financing needed when you buy or build a home. Why not start your account with us now!

Soap manufacturers score big victory

by LEA TONKIN

The phosphate ban is down the drain in Chicago, the result of a ruling on Tuesday by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas McMillen that the city ordinance interferes with interstate commerce.

It's a major victory for the soap manufacturers who contended all along that the changeover to no-phosphate detergent production would be needless and costly. The Soap and Detergent Association filed suit in May, 1971 against the city's ban on the sale of household detergents containing phosphates.

Cleaning power is what it's all about in the detergent industry. According to the soap makers, the no-phosphate detergents just don't make it in comparison with phosphate detergents. And there's no available substitute, they say.

This handy cost-savings for Procter & Gamble and other soap makers will boost the price of cleanup for the Metropolitan Sanitary District, asking for millions in added funds because of the ruling.

New water quality standards requested by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) may yet give an added boost to the no-phosphate detergent producers, however. The EPA wants state standards brought in line with federal guidelines. Among the changes requested is a light phosphorus limit of .1 parts per million in all interstate waters.

According to Samuel Lawton, acting chairman of the Illinois Pollution Control Board (IPCB), hearings on the EPA's requested changes are in the works. Right now, he says, phosphorus limits are only imposed in lakes and non-flowing streams.

LAWTON SAID testimony on a proposal to cut the IPCB's power to impose fines on polluters will continue this week in Springfield before the House Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee. It's among a series of bills introduced by Rep. Webber Borchers, R-Decatur, to limit the board's regulatory powers.

A more favorable bill was introduced by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, which would give the board six months to act upon requests for a variance to state regulations under the state Environmental Protection Act. If the deadline is passed, the request would automatically be granted. The current limit is 90 days. Lawton said the lack of a quorum on the board and a paperwork mixup account for four variances which have slipped through as a result of the current time limitation.

ENJOYMENT FOR generations to come: That's the appeal of fund-raisers in the Committee to Preserve the Great Northwestern Illinois Nature Trail. The group set an April 1 deadline for commitments to purchase all or part of some 80 miles of Chicago and North Western (C&NW) right-of-way between Byron and Galena Junction for a state park. Officials of the committee are banking on action by the Illinois Department of Conservation, once the money is raised. The railway has had offers from area farmers for the land.

"From information available, we've priced the right-of-way at $1 a foot, so if we can raise $100,000, the contributors will be providing 20 miles of future trail to the state," said Thomas Emmenga, committee chairman. The committee is an affiliate of the Jane Addamsland Park Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving open space in northern Illinois. Donations for the trail can be mailed to: Jane Addamsland Park Foundation — Trail Fund, Escrow account No. 09-105-0, 1st National Bank of Freeport, Freeport, Ill. 61032.

DYNAMICS OF land use and related energy problems will highlight presentations at the upcoming 37th annual meeting of the National Wildlife Federation in Washington, D.C. Ecologists, energy experts and politicians are included in the roster of participants at the session March 16-18. More than 1,000 persons are expected to attend the event at the Washington-Hilton Hotel.

National Wildlife Week also will be celebrated during the convention. Sponsored by the 3.5 million-members association and its state affiliates, Wildlife Week sets the theme for this year as "Discover wildlife — it's too good to miss." In addition to conservation awards presented at the annual meeting, the federation is taking the opportunity to dedicate the new Laurel Ridge Conservation Center in Vienna, Va. Additional information is available from the federation at 1412 16th St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

ENCOURAGING results recently were reported following a 12-week study on chloride pollution in Lake Michigan. The study was conducted by students at Loyola University in Chicago. It indicates that chlorides are not harmful, according to Robert Brunetti of Park Ridge, student director. The project was funded through a $9,890 grant from the National Science Foundation's new Student-Originated Studies Program.

"Although chlorides are rising in concentration in Lake Michigan, our study showed no considerable effects on the invertebrate animals we tested in the laboratory," said Brunetti. He added that the possible increase in mental ions as sodium and potassium in the lake should be investigated. Chlorides come from natural rainfall or natural mineral origination, runoff from agricultural and urban areas, sewage and industrial effluents. Professor Robert Hamilton supervised the project.

A CONFERENCE on Prevention and Control of Oil Spills is set for March 13-15 in the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Washington, D.C. Sponsors of the conference are the American Petroleum Institute, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Coast Guard. Among the speakers will be Adm. Chester Bender of U.S. Coast Guard; Frank N. Ikard, API president; and EPA administrator William Ruckelshaus. Registration is $50. Additional information is available from Dr. Jack R. Gould, conference secretary, Suite 700, 1629 K St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20006.

THEY SAID IT couldn't be done: the U.S. auto makers say they can't meet federal cleanup standards for 1975 model cars. They got a federal court ruling which allows extra hearings starting March 12 on the standards, after the federal EPA turned down their request for a delay.

Now a preliminary report comes in that the Wankel and diesel engines, among others, seem to meet the EPA standards. These do not include the use of catalytic converters, the devices pegged by U.S. auto makers as a possible means of eventual compliance with 1975 standards.

EARTH DAY comes this month with celebrations set for March 20 and 21. Increasing worldwide emphasis on the environment is evidenced in United Nations' recognition of the event.

IMPENDING DISASTER of lakefront erosion can be stopped by Army Corps of Engineers action, said U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., this week. He urged the corps to make a reconnaissance study to determine if breakwaters built into Lake Michigan at the Great Lakes Naval Station are causing serious erosion in Lake Bluff, Lake Forest and Highland. If the study proves soil erosion resulting from the breakwaters, preventive work could be undertaken by the corps.

A lesson in saving a city

The city, contrary to gloomy reports of its demise, is not dying of stagnation. In fact, the suburban city of Des Plaines appears to have taken its future in both hands and is now planning a vital and imaginative rebirth of its central business district — seemingly in the face of the cynics who say old cities and towns cannot be reborn.

The announcement last week of details concerning the new Des Plaines "superblock" are exciting in their promise and welcome as evidence that a city like Des Plaines has not thrown in the towel on downtown redevelopment.

In brief, the details are these: the city will allow a major developer, J. R. Gottlieb, Inc. of Chicago, to be the project financier and in turn, the city will use its governmental prerogatives to allow property in downtown Des Plaines to be used for the development.

Initial plans call for the construction of a 10-story office building and a two-story indoor shopping mall. A second phase of "superblock" may include another 10-story building over the Chicago & North Western tracks and a second mall.

Now the city and the developer will go through the various zoning and planning hearings which will bring definite shape to the planned development and will begin the exciting process of reshaping downtown Des Plaines.

As an additional bonus, the project will not rely on federal funds to pay the way. A newly formed corporation, Des Plaines Mall, Inc., will administer the development and will do so in the businesslike way of running the mall for a profit.

We like the whole idea and commend the city and its businessmen for taking the initiative in this way.

The old budget game

President Nixon has put the case. Either Congress hews closely to his proposed budget for fiscal 1974 or there will be more inflation or higher taxes or both.

Funny thing, though. Even with the President's hold-the-line budget, government will continue to dig into everyone's pocketbook. This is because, according to time-honored economic theory, any time federal expenditures exceed federal income, an automatic tax increase is enacted in the form of cheaper dollars which eventually translate into higher prices.

The President proposes a 1974 budget of $268.1 billion, some $12.7 billion more than he estimates the government will collect in that period. It is $18.7 billion, or 7.5 per cent, higher than the $250-billion limit he said was the most Congress should spend in fiscal 1973 (Congress actually authorized $261 billion), a limit he proceeded to enforce by impounding appropriated funds.

This 7.5 per cent increase in federal spending, contrasted with the 6.5 per cent real growth expected

The leaders of Des Plaines are waiting for no one to help them and have decided to do this their own way.

If there is any shadow thrown on this project, it is the unnecessary secrecy which shrouded the preliminary negotiations. Des Plaines is a city which too often masks its official functions in mystery, a lamentable custom which we trust will be eliminated soon as the mall project comes before the city's various boards and commissions.

But despite that one drawback, the fact remains that "superblock" in its concept and planning is too good not to be adapted elsewhere.

Any number of suburban communities — particularly those along the Chicago & North Western route — could use the vitality exhibited in Des Plaines with this plan.

Some years ago, Palatine made its downtown attractive to everyday shoppers. Now, internal changes in the structure of the Mount Prospect village government are being designed so that village can accommodate the sophisticated zoning and planning needed for downtown redevelopment.

We see these changes as evidence of community leadership from business and government which is aimed at making suburban communities into cities and villages of distinction, and we applaud each effort.

We agree with the comments of James Paroubek of the Des Plaines Redevelopment Assn.:

He said "superblock" is not aimed at competing with large regional shopping centers. (But) "We have many things in our favor they can't match — the train service, city hall and banking services within walking distance; the center will be in the middle of a large, well developed city."

for the economy in the coming year, represents — on paper only, not in real life — a built-in inflationary factor of about 1 per cent.

The administration gets around the deficit, or the inflationary factor, by figuring on the basis of a "full employment budget." That is, the government would take in that extra $12.7 billion in taxes if the nation enjoyed full employment.

"Full employment" itself is postulated on the basis of 4 per cent unemployment in the work force, an arbitrary figure that is hardly a universal constant like the speed of light or the boiling point of water.

In other words, if we had full employment, which we don't, and if Congress stuck to the President's budgetary guidelines, which it won't, there might be some hope of a diminishing of the rate of inflation.

About all we can look forward to with certainty is a continuing battle royal between the President and Congress and another year of that "unlegislated" form of taxation called inflation.

Bob Lahey's column

Remember, it's not whether you win or lose...

The people, we keep telling ourselves, are increasingly exasperated by politicians.

True though that may be, the exasperation of non-politicians with politicians can't hold a candle to the exasperation of a politician with a non-politician.

This is the time when people who are loath to think of themselves as politicians are answering the call of civic duty and going out to seek offices in municipal, park board, school board and library board elections. In many cases, they turn to or attract help from wiser heads "with experience in these things." That is, politicians.

These citizen candidates, fortunately, quite often are motivated by a sincere desire to serve their community or to correct what they perceive as some ill in a local governmental body. The politician more often is motivated by one or more of the following:

- A) Power
- B) Money

C) Revenge

D) Love of the game

When the election notices go up, that breed of citizen who has been infected with the political virus is not likely to care whether it is an election for trustee of the mosquito abatement district or President. He finds a reason to interest himself in it and he picks a candidate to make king of the mosquito abatement district.

The resulting pairings of candidate and campaign manager sometimes look like a resurrection of a young Jimmy Stewart campaigning under the loving care of Edward G. Robinson.

Their initial strategy session might go something like this:

Politician: We've got to show the people that the 38 years your opponent has been in office have been marked by waste and corruption in the mosquito abatement district.

Candidate: Well, you know, I don't really think he's been all that bad. I wouldn't want to make this a mudslinging campaign. I'd rather lose the election than slander another man willfully.

P: Well, we've got to give the voters something to talk about.

C: The real reason I'm running is that I just think a man who is 94 has made his contribution. I think we younger people should be ready to shoulder the responsibility for mosquito abatement.

P: Maybe that's the angle. He's senile. Probably wouldn't know it if a mosquito bit him on the nose. We'll organize Youth Against Mosquitoes — YAM.

C: Of course, I've got to admit that he's still alert. When I called on him to tell him of my interest in running, he was playing tennis with his granddaughter. I wouldn't want to make fun of his age. I'd rather lose the election than insult our senior citizens.

P: OK, OK, then we need an issue. That building where they store the mosquito spray is right next door to a kindergarten. If it ever blew up, it could douse hundreds of innocent children in a deadly spray.

C: But the fire chief inspected it last week and he says it is probably the safest storage location in the whole district.

P: The people don't know that.

C: Perhaps, but I know it. I'd rather lose the election than say something that I know to be false.

P: Well, then we better get a good organization. We'll go to every Republican precinct captain and let them know that if they don't carry their precinct for you, they'll never get sprayed while you're in office.

C: But I'm a non-partisan, independent, civic-minded candidate.

P: All the better, we'll put the word out to the Democratic captains, too.

C: I'm Sorry, Pol, but the one thing I refuse to do is to use threats to win the election. I'd rather lose than use the power of the office for my own gain.

P: I think you're going to get your wish.

The fence post

Abortion . . . and the debate goes on

Reference is made to the Herald's continued pro-abortion stand as repeated in your Feb. 6 editorial. You have overlooked one major legal fact with regard to the Supreme Court's decision and I concur that this error is not out of blind ignorance. The myth that your editorial has helped to perpetuate is that the Supreme Court has the power to usurp state laws. As a matter of balance of power, the Court's decision is not mandatory law but is only a ruling on the case at hand. It is evident that your editorial writer is aware of this technicality since the editorial specifically calls for the Illinois legislature to propose a corresponding law. (Refer to Article I, Section 1 of the U.S. Constitution.)

The medical evidence overwhelmingly proves there is life at conception while the Supreme Court chose not to consider this fact and your editorials always overlook. A recent letter to the Fence Post implied that one should not foist his moral principles upon others. This type of reasoning is not valid, because if it was, who would be allowed to judge the moral principle of killing eight student nurses? Quite obviously, Richard Speck did not feel the least bit bound to the moral principles of his victims, nor did Charles Manson care to be bothered with his victims' principles. Adolph Hitler implemented his moral convictions on six million Jews. In recorded history, no nation has survived massive internal moral decay. To abide by moral principles and laws is the definition of civilization.

As for my forcing my opinion on others, might I ask if a portion of my taxes are allocated for government-sponsored medical services? Almost two years have passed since President Nixon signed the bill permitting abortions on all military installations in the United States and its possessions. This bill overrides existing state laws and has left its bloody stain on every taxpayer. I suggest a thoughtful meditation on the first two paragraphs of the Declaration of Independence with special notice to the reference to "nature's laws."

For those pro-abortionists who continuously parrot that a woman has a right to do as she wants with her own body, the infamous master butcher, Lenin, was the first to say it. What strange bedfellows you choose!

From the physical standpoint, medical reports conclude that abortions cause motor retardation and more probably premature births of children yet to be born. Perhaps you should find a trusty Webster's like mine and read the first definition of the word "child" as defined long before you were even a glint in your father's eye.

I challenge the Herald to print a photograph of an aborted child or give everyone interested the opportunity to view your humanitarian proposal. Or is it evident that in order to face the truth, you must close your eyes?

ED. NOTE: For the record — since so many readers like letter-writer Taylor seem to have misinterpreted it — the Herald will repeat its position on abortion. Never has the newspaper supported abortion per se; indeed the Herald consistently has acknowledged that it's an emotional issue that stirs the depths of moral, medical, religious and political considerations, and raises questions that may never be answered. The Herald consistently has acknowledged the sincerity of the opposing forces in the debate. And the Herald consistently has said that the decision on whether to have an abortion should be left to the individual involved, with counsel of her doctor. That is the point, despite all the rhetoric, and we stand by it.

Word a day

Warm thank-you to St. Stephen's

I would like to thank the Reverend R. Melcher and the members of the Mini Parish of St. Stephen's Church for their hospitality and kindness to the residents of the Graceland and Des Plaines Homes recently.

The residents enjoyed going to the mass and ate heartily of the well-cooked turkey dinner, complete with gourmet touches of wine and home-made cake.

The members of St. Stephen's Mini Parish do care about the senior citizens of Des Plaines and have not forgotten that some are young at heart and do enjoy getting out and being entertained!

Also, I wish to thank Mr. Schmidt, principal of Immanuel Lutheran School, who drove and furnished the bus. This transportation was a great help.

I'm certain that God will bless all these people in some way for taking time out to do this important project.

Turn them off!!

Can you tell me why, in this period of "energy crisis" our city fathers let school lights on all day — outside?

If lights are on automatic timers, change the cycle to OFF. Whatever, let them use their brains. It could save some money too.

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — How many times have you wrestled with an umbrella, a briefcase and package of laundry or bag of groceries?

A gadget to be shown at the International Licensing and Patent Show in New York at the New York Hilton starting March 27 may be the solution.

The Portabrella is the invention of Michael Grogan of Lake Park, Fla., who guarantees it will hold any umbrella firmly upright, even in the wind, without the use of either hand.

Or perhaps you're afraid to risk that expensive dental plate cracking the hard shell of a spiny lobster to get that last bit of meat. Joe Kasper of Miami will show a device to get the succulent tidbit out easily.

FLORIDA seems to be the most prolific state for inventors this year. Henry J. Wasofsky of Opa Locka will show a furniture jack, a little tool to enable a housewife to move a piano or a heavy bookcase, normally requiring two or three brawny men.

However, some of the more interesting inventions to be shown come from abroad. Franz Florschtz of Kiel, Germany, will exhibit a "people's helicopter," a make-it-yourself flying machine said to have the smallest diameter rotor blades ever seen. The invention of Masumi Kusumi of Tokyo is a canned plant culture. Open it with a can opener and plant anything in it for fast growth.

Marcelo Arias, a Mexican pharmacist, is the inventor of a self-destructing hypodermic syringe. It can't be reused by drug addicts.

Until they try it, boaters may be a little skeptical about the E-Z-Up anchor invented by Clarence Locke of St. Paul. He claims it's virtually snagproof.

HUNDREDS of inventions and gadgets will be shown and if the experience of the past eight years is repeated, the exposition will draw from far and wide folks interested in the proverbial "better mouse trap."

The inventors exhibiting will range from professionals with a number of patents paying them royalties to the chap and some woman who works in his basement shop and dreams of hitting the jackpot.

The show is sponsored by two firms, New Product Development Services, Inc., of Kansas City and Patents International Associates Inc., of New York.

A NUMBER of inventions shown in past expositions have been licensed for manufacture and one, the Carton Tailor, a tool used in packaging rooms to cut cardboard cartons to any desired size, has brought its inventor about $185,000. The inventor happens to be one of the sponsors of the show.

Others that have been successful are the Tennis Timer, a coin operated gadget that raises and lowers the nets on rental tennis courts, the Tree Stumper, which makes a stump puller out of tractors, and the Dynamic Vibration Generator, an electronic device to make pure tones for the music industry.

It generally takes five to eight years for an invention to be developed and start paying royalties, or the list of successful ones seen at previous shows might be longer.

Experts will view railroad of future

by STEVEN ELLIS

NEW YORK — Sometime late this summer experts will be taking their first appraising looks at the railroad systems of the future. Government test tracks are being set up in Colorado — not tracks, really, but channels — for projected 150-mph and 300-mph air-cushion equipment.

When we say air-cushion you realize none of this is wheel-on-rail stuff. These vehicles "float," so to speak. Rohr envisages its 150-mph equipment as ideal center city to airport transport. Grumman looks on its 300-mph design as long-distance hardware.

In terms of time, it is all well away in years. But the planning has been going on, and now come the first tests. You'll be hearing more. If you're young enough, you'll even be riding some of it.

COMPACT BOOM: The auto industry is chalking up all kinds of sales records. The strong gains are in compacts, but none of the economy guff. What the buyers want are loaded compacts — powered everything, air-conditioning, etc. It's got so that even Cadillac is now talking in terms of a "super-compact," whatever that might be.

ON FARMS, TOO: Speaking of boom conditions, you should be in the farmland business. The Agriculture Department has put the 1972 increase in farmland value at 10 per cent. Illinois ran 12 per cent, Michigan 14 per cent. Biggest increase is for land that can grow wheat, corn, soybeans, cotton.

SLOW DOWN: You can bet that Federal Reserve experts are studying the article in the Morgan Guaranty Survey by Milton Friedman, the U. of Chicago economist. Prof. Friedman is urging a sharply slowed monetary growth, even at the risk of a mini-recession or full recession. Prof. Friedman now thinks there may be no other way to prevent more inflation than to curtail the money supply.

CANDID CAMERA: The Department of Justice is openly unhappy with the way banks (particularly the smaller ones) have been non-protecting themselves against robberies. So Justice is mounting a campaign to force 35mm and 70mm cameras installed instead of the present 8mm and 16mm sizes, and for the adding of exploding tear gas devices. With a 70mm lens looking at you, smile!

AROUND THE BEAT: The pen business is bullish, talks of a 6 to 7 per cent growth rate for the next several years. Not much is being written about it, but the French and British seem very close to true financial disaster on the Super-sonic Concorde. As one British official put it, "Concorde is our Vietnam."

The topcoat business has been rotten for years, thanks to the wide popularity of the all-weather, lined raincoats. But the word now is that the topcoat is making a comeback. As for the stock market, don't even mention it.

Coalition plans protest at Bell rate hike hearing

Today's hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission concerning a proposed service rate increase by Illinois Bell Telephone Co. should be well attended.

A coalition of 57 civic and community organizations is protesting the rate increase bid, as announced on Tuesday. The group is urging as many people as possible to attend the 10 a. m. hearing in the main hearing room, 18th floor of the State of Illinois Building in Chicago.

Ellis Levin, consumer affairs chairman for the Independent Voters of Illinois (IVI) said "Public pressure brought to bear" on the commission could convince the ICC to dismiss the service rate increase petition. Condemning the current $62 million rate boost proposal for following too closely a rate increase granted last August, Levin said the public is fed up with paying more money for service.

The National Organization of Women, the Chicago Peace Federation and the Consumer Federation of Illinois are among the groups participating in the coalition, in addition to IVI.

The Northside Chapter of Scientists and Engineers and the Contract Buying League are also included in the group.

Illinois Bell Telephone contends it needs the added revenues to maintain the present service level. Phone service would deteriorate if the increase is not granted, said a spokesman on Tuesday.

Buy when 'time ripe' stock letter suggests

Standard & Poor's "The Outlook" said "potentially advantageous investment opportunities have developed and should be earmarked for buying when the time is ripe." Nonetheless, as long as the basic uncertainties concerning inflation and the monetary scene remain, "we would advise against abrupt and total departure from a policy of investment restraint..." the letter said.

A. B. Dick

A B. Dick Co. of Chicago reported that 1972 sales and earnings were the highest in the company's 88-year history.

Sales reached a peak of $190,525,406 as compared with $165,927,466 in 1971, an increase of 14.8 per cent. Net income for the year was $9,493,904 as compared with 1971 net income from continuing operations of $6,991,088, an increase of 37.8 per cent. The 1972 earnings per common share amounted to $1.61, compared with $1.15 from continuing operations the previous year.

For the fourth quarter sales were $47,234,921, or 13.3 per cent ahead of last year. Net earnings were $2,244,255 or 37 cents a share, compared with earnings from continuing operations of 25 cents a share in the same quarter a year ago. About 5 cents a share of the fourth quarter 1972 increase in earnings is attributable to tax benefits relating to export sales and increased investment tax credits.

Wall Street chatter

DEAN WITTER views the dollar devaluation as a "giant step on the road to trade negotiations." However, the trade negotiations are likely to produce stock market "uncertainty" as the U.S. gets down to item by item negotiations. There will be fears of further devaluation or trade barriers which can affect particular products. However, Witter concludes, "the pressure may be necessary if we are to create a new monetary system in the next two years. After 1973, after all, Mr. Nixon will be a lame duck."

Heating oil prices spark new government controls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pushed by an outcry over home heating oil prices and a doomsday talk of an "energy crisis," the administration has reimposed price controls over most of the nation's $60 billion oil industry.

The action by the Cost of Living Council reversed the trend toward more relaxed wage-price standards and indicated increased worry at the White House over the possibility of a new round of petroleum products inflation.

In a "special rule," the council ordered the 23 biggest refineries to hold the average price increase on most of their products to 1.5 per cent above the level of Jan. 10, 1973.

Natural gas is excluded from the order. Natural gas rates already are regulated by the Federal Power Commission.

PRODUCTS COVERED include gasoline, home heating oil, aviation fuel, lubricants and greases and petrochemicals. The order also does not cover asphalt, fertilizers and waxes.

Under the order, a company could ask for price increases beyond the 1.5 per cent, and these could be allowed, so long as the company did not exceed a prescribed profit margin ceiling.

In a setback for consumer groups, the council refused to cancel hikes of about 8 per cent in heating oil prices announced by most refiners in mid-January, just days after the strict Phase II wage-price controls were replaced by Phase III voluntary economic guidelines. These increases will be included in the 1.5 per cent price limit.

THESE HEATING OIL price hikes, which followed serious shortages this winter in parts of the Midwest and New England, prompted a public hearing by the council in early February. The new price rule reflects the findings of that hearing.

TAX PROFILES

	MEDIAN HOME VALUE	AVG. TAX RATE $100
Schaumburg	$31,400	7.516
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	32,373	7.755
Chicago	21,200	7.861

MEDIAN INCOME

Schaumburg	$13,888
Northwest Suburban Area (avg.)	16,491
Chicago	10,242

MEDIAN AGE

Female	23.3 years

HOUSING:

Homes older than 9 years in Schaumburg are a rarity. Prices range from $30,000 to $80,000 with new homes starting at $33,500. Plans are for 20,000 apartment units, renting from $190 up (including some luxury units).

SCHOOLS:

There are 5 public elementary and 3 junior high schools and a new ultra-modern High School in the village. Pupil-teacher ratio is 25:1 and $576 is spent annually per pupil. One Lutheran elementary school serves the area.

CHURCHES:

Includes 4 Lutheran, 2 Baptist, 2 Methodist, and 1 Catholic congregation.

TRANSPORTATION:

Milwaukee Road trains stop in nearby Roselle (57 minute local to the Loop; 44 minute express). The Northwest Tollway runs through Schaumburg.

TOWN SHOPPING:

"Original Schaumburg" offers limited shopping; 5 other centers are located in the village, the largest of which is Woodfield Mall, one of America's most prominent indoor shopping complexes. The "downtown" area of Schaumburg at Roselle and Golf Roads offers many fine shops, stores, and services.

MEDICAL SERVICES:

A broad range of medical services is developing in Schaumburg with numerous medical centers open or under construction for doctors, dentists, and other medical specialists.

A hospital site has been designated in the central part of Schaumburg and hospital facilities are close by in neighboring communities.

RECREATION:

Schaumburg's Park District this year moved into a $250,000 recreation center in the Lancer Park subdivision, base of operation for its 22 parks. Two outdoor swimming pools are available to the community through the park district, which is also running its first summer camp this year in addition to a full scale recreational program.

The village is also planning a 250 acre nature preserve along Salt Creek which runs through the eastern part of town. Schaumburg is surrounded by thousands of acres run by the Cook County Forest Preserve District. A public golf course is under construction by the district at Roselle and Central Roads, the privately owned Golden Acres Country Club and golf course is in Schaumburg, and there are numerous other courses a short drive from town. In addition, tennis courts, ball diamonds, and basketball facilities are available, as well as ice skating at 2 areas in season.

GOVERNMENT:

Schaumburg is planning for a population of more than 200,000, using an 11 volume master plan for its actions. Operations of government are handled by a full time Mayor and a Board of 6 trustees who are backed up by commissions for zoning, planning, and environment.

Full time police and fire protection are both under Village Board authority with police operations located in the complex of buildings now serving as a civic center. Ground is to be broken next month for the first building of a new civic and cultural center nearby. The village's first fire station is located in the residential center and a second station, recently opened near Woodfield, is to be dedicated Sunday.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

The conservative German farming community of Schaumburg incorporated as a village in 1958, claimed 986 residents in 1960, and took only ten years to reach the 21,000 mark. Its current population of 25,155 residents marks an increase of nearly 135% in the last 2 years. There are still many farms, barns, and cornfields on the gentle hills in this dynamic suburb, but most of the open land is owned by developers and new construction is always apparent. (The village's projected population increase has been estimated at 80,000 by 1975!) Salt Creek and Poplar Creek wind through the area, and the DuPage River begins here. There are 2,400 zoned acres of industrial land in town and some 40 modern plants have already located in Schaumburg. Government is centered around several former farm buildings now used as a civic center, and a new municipal and public works building. Schaumburg is one of the Midwest's fastest growing communities offering spacious lots, planned residential neighborhoods, and housing of all types.

Household noise a pain in the neck

Sound is a many splendored thing — but it can also splinter your nerves, upset your digestion and play havoc with your psyche. In short, it can drive you nuts.

The dangerous kinds of sound are those that annoy people. Called noise pollution, they are too strident, they bounce all around you to the point of distraction or they are low, off-beat sounds that strain people's hearing, even frighten them.

These are sounds in the home that are capable of breaking up families by building up tensions between husbands and wives, parents and children, according to a University of Wisconsin report. It further stated that household noise is a major public health and ecological problem.

Many problems of noise pollution in the home are caused by hard surfaced walls, floors and ceilings that permit sound to reverberate about a room.

The key to controlling sound is to use sound absorbing material, such as acoustical ceiling tiles, carpeting and draperies, according to the Celotex Corporation, a subsidiary of Jim Walter Corporation, national manufacturer of building and construction materials.

"WHAT HARD surfaces do is recycle sound," said J. E. Ross, acoustical ceiling expert with Celotex. "Recycling waste materials is fine for a lot of pollution problems, but absorbing sound is the answer to the problems of unwanted noise."

A properly installed acoustical ceiling will have a dramatic effect in reducing unwanted noises in any room of a home, Ross added. Tiles are easily installed by stapling directly into a ceiling or into furring strips. Lay-in acoustical panels are dropped into the grids of a suspended ceiling system.

A designer-styled acoustical ceiling with a textured finish on a wheat background is available from Celotex. Called Sonata, it is available in 12-inch square tiles or 2 by 4-foot panels.

Village vinyl siding makes it easy for you to give new, lasting beauty and protection to an older home.

VILLAGER SIDING, made of solid vinyl, won't conduct electricity. Won't absorb moisture, rust, corrode, rot, peel, dent or warp. What Villager siding will do is help insulate your home against heat, cold and noise. And, since solid vinyl's color goes all the way through the material, this siding doesn't require painting.

Horizontal sidings are available in light gray, light green, light yellow and white. The same colors, except yellow, are available in vertical siding. Horizontal sidings can also be furnished with an embossed woodgrain surface.

A single-strip asphalt shingle that gives a roof the deep shadow-line and random pattern of shake roof styling is now available from The Celotex Corporation, a subsidiary of Jim Walter Corporation, national manufacturer of building and construction materials.

Called the Traditional Shake, this heavyweight is 15 by 40-inches and when applied its irregular pattern creates the wood roofing effect. It is available in three colors: Cedarstone, Woodtone and Cedar red. The design and ease of application makes the Traditional Shake shingle adaptable to a wide range of architectural styling in homes and apartments.

Don't do it yourself

If you plan any sort of heating modernization — replacing the boiler, or changing to baseboard heating panels or even adding a separate 'zone' for the bedrooms — the National Better Heating-Cooling Council urges you to select a professional contractor and not attempt it yourself.

'Renaissance' for Fox Lake area

It's not often that you get a crack at a renaissance. The Fox Lake area has, thanks to the rediscovery of a territory rich in leisure-time amenities by Chicago developer, Richard J. Brown. Brown is president of Leisure Technology-Midwest, Inc./Richard J. Brown, Inc., a subsidiary of Leisure Technology Corp., Lakewood, N. J., pioneers in the field of recreational and retirement housing.

Last summer Brown opened Vacation Village, a planned condominium community for weekend vacationers in Fox Lake. Consequently, Fox Lake is enjoying the biggest resurgence of popularity among home buyers since its heyday at the turn of the century.

The reason? The area, approximately 45 miles north of Chicago, is an outdoor buff's dream, with its forest, hills and miles of lakes linked to the Fox River. Grass Lake, Fox Lake and the river provide more than 63,000 acres of waterways. In the winter ice skaters and snowmobilers hark across the frozen surfaces of this, Illinois' largest body of frozen inland lakes.

FOX LAKE is bordered by some 6,000 acres of state park land. Golf courses dot the area from Antioch on the northwest to McHenry on the southwest. Golfers, fishermen, boaters, campers, hikers and skiers get there easily now by car over modern highways.

In the 1900s the Fox Lake area was a wealthy sportsmen's retreat, well insulated from the "toddlin' town" to the southeast. The route from Chicago to the Chain O'Lakes region meandered by way of McHenry and the river boats, or required passage on the Wisconsin Central Railroad to Lake Villa. However, the trip was made, it was time-consuming and a luxury beyond the means of most working men.

The village of Fox Lake's outlook in 1909 was summed up in a program booklet issued by the town's "commercial association." Its environs were characterized as "far from the city's sweat and toil, but only 90 minutes away. A healthful, pleasurable and restful resort."

THE RAILROAD and automobile democratized and helped populate the area. The coming of the Milwaukee Road brought in thousands of newcomers. Many of the vacationers stayed. The wealthy old-time sportsmen moved farther north and Fox Lake's days as a private wonderland were numbered.

Summer cottages were built along the roads. Many became year-round homes during the Great Depression. Interstate Highway 90 to the south and 94 to the west opened up the territory to resident commuters.

The village of Fox Lake was on its way to becoming an all-year town. Emphasis was officially shifted from resort to permanent businesses. In 1942 a folder was produced, inviting manufacturers to locate in the area. It has only been in the last few years that the Fox River Valley has enjoyed real interest by manufacturers and real estate developers. And "we're doing things around here now," says Joseph Armundo, long-time mayor.

"Fox Lake was a resort town before, but now we have highways, a shopping center and a year-round population," mayor Armundo continued. "I saw the potential in the late forties and put up the first new commercial building in the village since the war." In 1950 he opened the first movie theater in the area. A shopping center followed a few years later and the village was fast to establish itself as the center of one of the premier recreational and resort areas of the mid-west.

Aiding the transition from resort to year-round resident, real estate developers are building homes and condominiums in the Fox River Valley. Organizations such as Leisure Technology-Midwest, Inc. thoroughly investigated the area to determine its best potential before developing. In addition to Vacation Village, the company established Leisure Village at Fox Lake, a condominium community for active retirees. Brown said, "Increased leisure time, rapid transportation and the concept of 'total living' communities now enable commuters and retirees to enjoy a lifestyle once available only to the well-to-do."

WITH THE FIRST move-ins at Vacation Village (advertised as a 52-week holiday world) earlier this year, renewed growth in the Fox Lake area is under way. Businesses will prosper as they cater to the "resort trade" condominium owners of the community and, although the development will contribute tax money to the area, it will require little in the way of school services or any other necessities of permanent, in-town residency.

In addition, the community has full recreational and social facilities within its 400-acre site.

"What we have created at Vacation Village," says Brown, "is a holiday center close enough to Chicago, Milwaukee and their suburbs to make it readily accessible and yet far enough away to add a sense of adventure."

When completed the community will have 2,500 studio, one- and two-bedroom condominiums. Center for many of the activities will be the Outrigger Pavilion with its game room, social hall, adjacent pool and sundeck. During the winter months skiing, tobogganing, ice fishing, ice skating and snowmobiling will highlight the agenda. Spring and fall will provide opportunities for fishing, hunting, hiking, exploring and horseback riding. Activities for the summer months include boating, sailing, swimming, sunbathing, water skiing, more fishing, golf and tennis.

Owners at the recreation community also receive automatic membership to the million-dollar Fox Lake Country Club and optional golfing memberships are available to them. Headquarters for tennis programs (lessons and tournaments) will be the Racquet Club and the Voyager Marine provides boat rental and dock space facilities for residents. Boaters can follow the Voyager Channel onto the Chain O'Lakes. "We've also allowed for many recreational lawn areas," points out Brown, "for badminton, croquet, horseshoes, touch football, picnicking and volleyball."

ALTHOUGH THE developer recognizes that most Vacation Village homeowners will commute to the community for week-ends throughout the year, many families may wish to spend the summer there. Day camps (organized by age groups) for youngsters will be conducted during this season. Activities will include use of all the recreational facilities in addition to bus expeditions to points of interest.

All activity areas at Vacation Village are connected by the Holiday Day Trail for use by bicyclists and pedestrians. Cars are unloaded near the residents' home and then parked to avoid congestion and noise throughout the village. A village bus will make regularly scheduled trips to town and can be used by residents for special hunting, fishing and skiing expeditions.

"One thing we decided upon early in the development," says Brown, "is that homeowners want a vacation residence with as little maintenance as necessary. Therefore, we take care of all exterior repair, landscaping and recreational facilities. We've also provided year-round security measures for the village to insure safekeeping of personal property here."

Carrying the concept of total freedom even further, Brown provides a complete decorating and furnishing package with each home. Residents meet with an interior designer to select from a variety of furniture, carpeting, draperies and lamps. Even the kitchen is fully equipped with dishes, pots and pans and silverware.

"Literally, our owners move in with suitcase in hand — and that's it," Brown added.

Fire-resistant roof good form of 'insurance'

A fire-resistant roof is one of the best forms of fire "insurance" you can buy for your house.

Studies by the National Fire Protection Association show that the use of fire-resistant roofing materials, such as asphalt shingles, slate, and mineral fiber are largely responsible for a substantial reduction in house fires that start or spread from the roof. Thirty years ago (when flammable roofs were widely used) roof fires were the third largest cause of building loss. Now, roof fires are last on a list of 22.

The best way for a homeowner to be sure his roof is fire-resistant is to use materials that carry an Underwriters' Laboratories label for fire-resistance. This assures him that the shingles have passed tests for flame spread, flame exposure, and ignition by burning brands, and that they will not emit burning brands or embers.

UL fire tests are stringent. For example, this is the test for ignition by burning brands:

Wooden blocks (1½ inches by 1½ inches by ¾ inch) are set on fire by exposure to 1300 degree flames for two minutes. Twenty-five of these "burning brands" are placed on a roof deck and "fanned" by a continuous 12 m.p.h. wind. They are left there until the brands burn out and all evidence of fire has disappeared, or until failure occurs.

Asphalt shingles that pass this test — and similarly strict tests for flame exposure and flame spread — qualify for the UL Class C label for fire-retardation. Such shingles afford fire protection for the home that no safety-conscious homeowner should overlook.

Metro area housing permits rise 90%

Permits for housing issued in the Chicago metropolitan area during January 1973 were 90 per cent above the same month of last year according to a survey by Bell Federal Savings.

All housing, including single family and apartments, totaled 3,472 compared to only 1,821 in January 1972.

The significant difference occurred in multiple units which nearly tripled, rising from 806 to 2,289.

Single family units posted a gain of 16 per cent reporting 1,173 from 1,015 in January last year.

The unincorporated areas posted gains in multiple family permits (134 to 478) as did the City of Chicago (218 to 694).

The only group which failed to register a gain occurred in single family permits which dropped from 106 to 76 in the City of Chicago.

Snow compactor cuts costs

A new mobile snow-compacting vehicle, developed by the Sno Pac Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y., can cut the average costs for snow removal from 21 cents to 5 cents a cubic yard, according to the manufacturer.

Called the "Mobile Sno Pac," the new vehicle scoops up snow as it moves along the road. By means of hydraulic rams, it compresses the snow into two-cubic-foot blocks, and transfers them to haul trucks.

The vehicle has been successfully tested over a four-year period, in temperatures down to -15 degrees Fahrenheit. Production is expected to reach four units a month by mid-1973, according to Sno Pac.

The economies of the "Mobile Sno Pac" are suggested by comparing its operations with those of conventional front-end loaders. Over a one-mile stretch, one "Sno Pac" loading three trucks can remove as much snow in a given amount of time as could 10 front-end loaders dumping into 21 trucks.

WITH FRONT-END loaders, snow removal costs 21 cents a cubic yard — 12 1/2 cents for the loaders, and 8 1/2 cents for the trucks. With the "Mobile Sno Pac," removal cost is reduced to 5 cents a yard total.

Moreover, since the "Sno Pac" compresses snow to one-seventh its original bulk, hauling costs are reduced from an average $100/yard/mile to 143 cents/yard/mile.

The "Mobile Sno Pac" measures 32 feet in length and eight feet in width. On the front end are two scoops that guide the snow into augers, which feed a conveyor to the compacting unit. In this unit, hydraulic rams compress the snow into blocks, which are then conveyed out the side to haul trucks.

Sno Pac Corporation engineers were aided in the design of the hydraulic systems by the MADAC Corporation of Buffalo, N. Y. MADAC is the local distributor of hydraulic and pneumatic components made by Cleveland-based Parker-Hannifin Corporation. Most of the hydraulic components on the vehicle — including rams, pumps, valves, power packs, hose and fittings — are Parker-Hannifin units.

New roof can do wonders for cottage

If your vacation home is looking ragged instead of rustic, you can revamp its appearance with a new roof. One of the bright colors or blends now available in roof shingles will give your summer cottage a fresh new look.

When choosing building materials for a vacation home, don't stint on quality. The roof, for instance, should be durable enough to give you many years of service with a minimum of maintenance.

Heavyweight asphalt shingles are a practical choice for re-roofing vacation homes. They can generally be applied right over the old roofing, and their extra thickness protects against damage from wind, rain, snow and sun. The fire-resistance of asphalt shingles is an added safeguard for summer homes which are often located in heavily wooded areas.

How to get best ground water results

In an increasingly affluent America, there are still too many families and farms relying upon poor, inadequate water supplies. Both surface sources (such as ponds and creeks) and ground water sources (cisterns and shallow wells) often fail to meet modern requirements. Often, they produce too little water. Sometimes there is a taste problem, and even questions of sanitation.

One solution frequently proposed these days is to construct large, complex (and often expensive) central water supply systems, with elaborate treatment equipment and extensive pipeline networks. Sometimes this is the answer to a water supply problem. However, millions of American homeowners and farm families have found another answer to their water supply needs — their own private well and automatic, electric water system.

Ground water can be used easily and economically by the individual for supplying his own home or farm. Ground water offers several major advantages for the homeowner who uses it. It is generally uncontaminated, since it is naturally filtered through layers of soil and stone. And ground water is generally inexpensive, since it is available at the point of use, and there is little need for costly treatment.

How do you go about tapping this "hidden reservoir?" The Ground Water Council suggests that you start by contacting a reputable well drilling contractor. He will be able to tell you about the water potential underneath your property. And he'll make sure your well is properly located from the standpoint of sanitation and convenience.

Most well drillers install water systems. If not, you should turn to a pump dealer. He will help you size your system so that you get the maximum benefits from your well. Choose your dealer and your water system with care. He can make sure it is installed and serviced properly.

For more information on ground water, write Dept. 17, Ground Water Council, 221 N. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Hydronics: modern water heating way

Hydronics is the new name for modern hot water heating. Water is heated in a small boiler and circulated through finger size tubing to baseboard heating panels located at ankle height on the outside walls of the home. The baseboard panels keep the floors and walls warm and act as a barrier against the cold.

Home sales set fast pace during January

Reported sales of existing homes in Cook County for January, 1973, show that the year is starting off at an even faster sales pace than did 1972, according to First Federal Savings of Chicago's home sales index.

Existing one-to-four-unit residential properties brought $71,791,000 or 10.5 per cent more than the $64,967,500 recorded for January, 1972. This mark was achieved despite the fact that sales totaled 2,200 — only 0.8 per cent or 17 more than last January.

Compared with December, 1972, sales for January, 1973, showed a slight decline both in dollar volume and in number of sales. Dollar volume was down $9,396,700 or 11.8 per cent from December, and the number of sales dropped by 312 or 12.4 per cent.

However, the dropoff from December to January was much less severe this year than in 1972. Dollar volume for January, 1972, was 33.6 per cent less than for December, 1971. Taking this into consideration, James C. Fitzmaurice, vice president, in charge of mortgage lending at First Federal Savings of Chicago, says: "We stand by our earlier forecast of high activity and volume."

Jefferson Township regained the lead among the 33 Cook County townships, with sales totaling $7,578,500 for 10.6 per cent of the dollar volume and 209 transactions for 9.5 per cent of the total number of sales.

Second in number of sales was Lake Township with 182 or 8.3 per cent of the county total. Wheeling Township ranked second in dollar volume with sales of $4,350,000 or 6.1 per cent of the market.

Lake Township followed third with $4,300,000 for 6 per cent of total dollar volume, and Calumet Township placed third in number of sales with 165 or 7.5 per cent of the county total.

An interesting trend noted so far this year in mortgage financing is the increased competitiveness of conventional, rather than government sponsored, financing. First Federal's Fitzmaurice attributes this to "private mortgage insurance, new regulations which permit savings associations to lend up to 95 per cent of value, and the increasing willingness of associations to do so."

He also notes an increase in home sales of all kinds in the south and southwestern suburbs, due to the availability of land there and to the recent expansion of the Chicago expressway system. Finally, Fitzmaurice says that the "new towns" bear watching. They seem to be continuing in popularity, although Chicago area developments have yet to fully prove themselves, he says.

Chairs pilot meeting of relocation service

John L. Markay, partner in Gladstone, Realtors, was chairman of the pilot meeting of the Chicago Metropolitan Area Committee of Inter-City Relocation Service held last month in the Regency Hyatt House.

A panel on "how we generate more referrals" was moderated by Markay, and expected growth of the relocation service was reported by Stuart Edinoff, sales manager of the Des Plaines office of Gladstone, Realtors. Gladstone, Realtors, which also has offices in Mount Prospect, Franklin Park, Villa Park and Elk Grove Village, is one of 33 RELO members in the Chicago area.

Chicago membership, up from 24 in 1969, is part of more than 600 RELO members who help families on the move to or from more than 6,000 communities in the U.S. and overseas to sell former residences and buy new homes.

COMPANIES CONTINUE to transfer personnel or entire facilities to new locations. Because they do, the market for transferres' homes will continue to grow, from 20 to 25 per cent in 1973.

Broker-members and their sales associates attending the area committee meeting were part of a RELO force that last year referred nearly 3,500 transferres from Chicagoland to distant members for house-hunting help. Incoming transferres sent to Chicago-area brokers by RELO members elsewhere purchased nearly $23,000,000 worth of houses here through the referral program, Edinoff reported.

Comparing November-December 1972 (the first two months of RELO's new fiscal year) with the same 1971 months, RELO's nationwide membership increased referral production by 21.07 per cent, sold 40.77 per cent more homes through the referral program and increased dollar volume 50.21 per cent.

Do-It-Yourself show revival set

The 1973 Do-It-Yourself Show, a revival of one of the nation's most popular public events during the late 40s and early 50s, will be presented at the International Amphitheatre from May 2 through May 6. The Do-It-Yourself Show was the world's largest showcase of home remodeling and improvement products, hobbies and crafts, and more.

According to Ronald Ranke, president of American Exposition, "this Do-It-Yourself Show has been scheduled at a time when 'home improvement month' has been proclaimed by mayors of Chicagoland. Since this show will contain exhibits dealing with hobbies and crafts with an emphasis on home remodeling and gardening, features to help provide a cleaner environment, and programs developed to encourage civic beautification, we feel our timing is excellent."

Ranke explained that since this show once enjoyed great popularity, scores of manufacturers and merchants have signified an interest in participating. They had expressed a desire for this revival, and the Chicago show will be the first of a series planned for major markets throughout 1973 and into 1974.

EXHIBITS AND demonstrations will be presented to hobbyists whose interests include art, ceramics, rug-weaving, knitting, sewing, model-making, music, photography, electronics, sports and painting — to name a few.

For the handy-man around the house, and the lady with the "green thumb," features and demonstrations will highlight wood-working, paneling, paint, power tools, tile, aluminum, carpeting, electrical work, plumbing, gardening, cement and stone work.

Frequent demonstration will provide step-by-step instructions for the "how-to" enthusiast, regardless of the project in mind. There will also be contests for schools, a wide array of door prizes, and entertainment of all types.

The Do-It-Yourself Show affords an opportunity for exhibitors to meet prospects face-to-face, to make direct sales to a large audience, to measure product acceptability, to augment regular sales activities, to present live demonstrations, and to increase their share of the market at a modest cost.

Many unusual exhibitor services will also include a consultation staff to help them maximize their coverage in publicity and promotion, and to offer assisttance in related fields through a full-time Press Office.

Additional information on the 1973 Do-It-Yourself Show may be obtained by writing Ronald P. Ranke, American Exposition Corporation, 135 N. LaSalle St., Chicago Real Estate Board.

Homes for Living Network plans communication system

Edward J. Busse, president of Annen & Busse, Inc., and Donald G. Heldorn, vice-president and general sales manager of Annen & Busse, Inc., is attending the Eighth Annual National Convention of the Homes for Living Network being held this week at the New Orleans Marriott. More than 1200 Realtors from 48 states & Puerto Rico are also attending.

The Homes for Living Network, of National Multi List Service, with headquarters in St. Louis, is a National Marketing Network of some 725 cooperating Realtor offices providing numerous services and programs for the American Home Buying and Selling Public. The more than 7000 HFL Brokers and Sales Associates serving over 5000 U.S. communities accounted for more than $3 Billion in residential sales in 1972.

The convention will incorporate special and general sessions, brainstorming discussions, several principal talks and the introduction of new programs which will not only set the pace in real estate marketing for 1973, but for years to come.

These new programs include a national communications system now being field tested in 20 cities, including in the Chicagoland area by Annen & Busse, Inc., utilizing Xerox telephone facsimile and TWX teletype equipment; a "One Source, One Call" national moving package incorporating a national mover, motel chain, airline, car rental service and a Guaranteed Sales Plan. Also to be introduced is video tape, which can be used both by showing to a client current listings in their market area, and also by building a library for members of taped educational events.

Special speakers addressing the four day convention include Lt. Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma; and author, lecturer and prominent Minneapolis businessman, Bob Conklin.

Annen & Busse, Inc. are charter members of MAP Multiple Listing Service, members of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, and members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers.

New models introduced at 'The Trails'

Two new Court Villa townhome models have been introduced at The Trails at Woodfield.

One new model features an entry foyer, a garage and an unfinished area on the grade level. The area may be used for storage, a hobby room, or finished as a family/recreation room.

On the mid-level are the main living quarters including the living/dining room with a two-story ceiling, a kitchen with a breakfast area, and a den-family room next to the kitchen. The master bedroom suite also is on this floor, with "his" and "hers" closets and a bathroom.

On the upper level is another bedroom and bathroom, plus a storage room which may be converted into another bedroom. For a young couple, the upper level may be purchased unfinished if the extra bedrooms are not needed immediately. The upper level hallway overlooks the living room from the balcony railing. This home is priced from $36,350.

The second new Court Villa model has a living/dining room on the mid-level, a room which also accommodates an eating area and a powder room. The upper level has four bedrooms and two bathrooms including a master bath. An optional sundeck is available on this level. The home also has an optional fireplace. The lower level, like the other new model, has an entry foyer, built-in garage, and unfinished area. This Court Villa is priced from $38,450.

OTHER COURT VILLA townhomes are available with the built-in garage level, priced from $31,850. The Trails at Woodfield also comprises single-family homes and a recreation complex. The recreational facilities for the townhome and single-family home residents include:

THE TRAILS AT Woodfield are single-family homes and elaborate recreation complex. The recreational facilities for the townhome and will include deluxe condominiums with a second recreation complex, and a shopping center.

Furnished models at The Trails at Woodfield are open daily from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. and on Sundays until 4 p.m. To reach The Trails, exit the Northwest Tollway (I-90) at Route 53. Drive south four miles to Nerge Road, then west two miles to the models.

How to build a waterfall, pond in your backyard

According to information published by Ortho Garden Products Division of Chevron Chemical Co., here's how to build a water fall and pond in your backyard.

Dig a hole the size and shape of the pond you desire. Use the dirt you dig to form the hill for falls.

Shape the creekbed and falls.

Smooth the pond bottom and creek. Be sure to remove sharp stones and other material that may damage plastic liner.

Cover entire area with plastic liner.

Sheet plastic is available at most garden or building supply stores. Trim to about one foot from water line, cover and decorate edges with rocks, driftwood, logs, etc., to keep plastic in place.

Set pump in bottom of pond, run length of plastic tubing from pump to top of spring and cover with dirt to conceal.

Landscape pond area with additional rocks and plants to give it the look of a natural setting.

If you'd rather — some companies make complete Waterfall Kits and Fountain Kits containing everything you'll need except the dirt, rocks, plants, and ambition.

Baird & Warner finances building

Baird & Warner, Inc. recently placed financing on a 30,000-square-foot industrial building to be built on a 50,000-square foot lot on Touhy Ave. in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village.

The financing was arranged for J. L. Williams & Co., represented by Robert L. Stovall, executive vice president. The Williams firm is the developing agent, in addition to carrying on the architectural engineering functions.

The 25-year loan for $305,000 carried an interest rate of 8-5/8 per cent on this speculative industrial building.

'Operation Anchor' protects trailers

Operation Anchor-Safe, a nationwide effort to alleviate problems of wind damage to mobile homes, has accomplished landslide success.

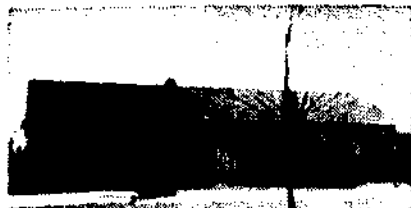

This program, launched by the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association a year ago, encompasses both educational and legislative action for guidelines in anchoring mobile homes.

"The response to Operation Anchor-Safe has been fantastic. Since its inception, we've had more than 4,000 requests for our information leaflet on anchoring mobile homes," said Julia Herron, MHMA's director of consumer education.

"Mobile homes are subject to storm damage, like any housing. Operation Anchor-Safe provides consumers, retailers and development management with educational material and a legal means for reducing most of the wind damage factor," said John M. Martin, MHMA president. Martin also noted the industry is attempting to have every state adopt legislative requirements for safe mobile home anchoring.

Since Jan. 1 this year, all mobile homes built by MHMA members must have tie-downs or provisions for tie-downs. This requirement complements engineering drawings for tie down procedures prepared by Herb Behrend, a licensed engineer and MHMA's Director of Consulting Services. Behrend has designed more than one million mobile home sites.

"Hopefully, the nation's mobile home owners will realize a savings in insurance premiums and increased resale price in addition to the safety factors generated by anchoring," said Behrend.

Mobile home association backs building standard

The safety and health of consumers is the main goal of the mobile home industry which is attempting to gain national adoption of its A119.1 construction standard.

Standard A119.1 regulates body and frame design, construction requirements and installation of plumbing, heating and electrical systems.

"To this date 35 states have adopted the construction standard and a few more are seriously considering it," said Robert A. DeRose, DeRose Industries, chairman of the board of directors of the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association.

"The mobile home industry pioneered national building standards for manufactured housing and we will not be satisfied until all 50 states have adopted A119.1," noted DeRose.

The ANSI standard was developed by more than 60 firms, trade associations, governmental agencies and code groups. It was adopted by MHMA members in 1969, DeRose said, and covered only plumbing, heating and electrical installations.

"We have made great strides. On Jan. 1, 1969, the industry added construction requirements and now MHMA members certify that homes built to A119.1 meet performance tests covering wind, roof, wall, frame and other structural loads," explained Henry Omson, MHMA standards director.

MHMA HAS INCREASED its number of standards inspectors so more frequent plant visits can be achieved. This has resulted in better quality control. Inspectors also instruct and advise MHMA member plants in defining the standard and how to use it, noted Omson.

Omson said MHMA has orders from its Standards Committee to expel any MHMA member which repeatedly violates standards in areas of life safety, as recommended by the MHMA Standards Committee.

Penalties for life safety violations are:

- Correct defects in all preceding and succeeding homes at once.
- If not corrected by the next visit, the MHMA seal will be lifted and state governments notified the homes do not meet safety standards; also, a $1,000 fine is assessed by MHMA.

- If not corrected by third visit, the manufacturer will be expelled from MHMA membership and will not be reinstated until the problem is corrected; also, a $10,000 fine is assessed and reinstatement must be ratified by the Board of Directors.

"A buyer can distinguish between a home that has been constructed to the ANSI A119.1 and one that has not, by MHMA's seal next to the door. The seal guarantees a home is constructed in accordance with the ANSI standard," noted Gaylord Jones, chairman of the MHMA Standards Committee.

Greenery, walls serve best in seeking privacy

Privacy is perhaps the most essential ingredient of any outdoor room, and landscape architects agree that for most patios, a combination of natural greenery and man-made walls gives the best effect.

While a traditional hedge is apt to outgrow its bounds, look untidy and require constant attention, an unrelieved wall is confining.

Blending plant materials with a structure, however, does just what's needed: limits a view of the patio without impairing the view out. At the same time, it can make a tiny garden room appear much larger than it actually is.

The plan begins with a fence built around two or more sides of the patio but set three to five feet away from the edge of paving or decking.

Any pattern could be used, but the deceptively open appearance of a slat-style screen works beautifully in nearly any situation. Even a fence eight feet high will seem open, almost lacy, built of slats.

A basic pattern calls for western cedar 1x2s applied vertically over the fence framework, with a one or one-half inch space left between slats.

VARIATIONS OF the basic pattern are almost unlimited. Groups of three 1x2s nalled on alternating sides of the fence framework produce a strong dimensional effect particularly good for a tall fence.

To further an illusion of openness, slats can be cut six inches short of the cap board. This type of fence should be built with three horizontal 2x4-inch rails in addition to the cap board to keep slats perfectly straight.

With the fence installed, planting can begin. Trees will be the principal accents in planting and should be chosen with care to be sure that their mature height and breadth will complement the garden room.

Needleleaf shrubs are also dominating materials. Of all plants, they appear darkest in color and placing them in a corner often gives an illusion of greater depth.

The balance of the garden could be in broadleaf evergreens, blending a variety of heights, masses and leaf types to achieve the layered, interwoven effect most pleasing to the eye.

Plantings serve screening needs, too, creating density where needed and blending into lower, softer materials elsewhere. Planting outside the slat screen beautifies that area and creates a still greater illusion of space within the garden.

Property management seminar set

Two local experts on residential property management are taking part in Chicago's first all-day executive seminar on property management sponsored by the renting & management division of the Chicago Real Estate Board.

Today's seminar at the Hillside Holiday Inn is being moderated by Harold D. Rider, president of Realty & Mortgage Co. Rider's company deals extensively in residential property management. He is a noted lecturer, and the author of several technical publications.

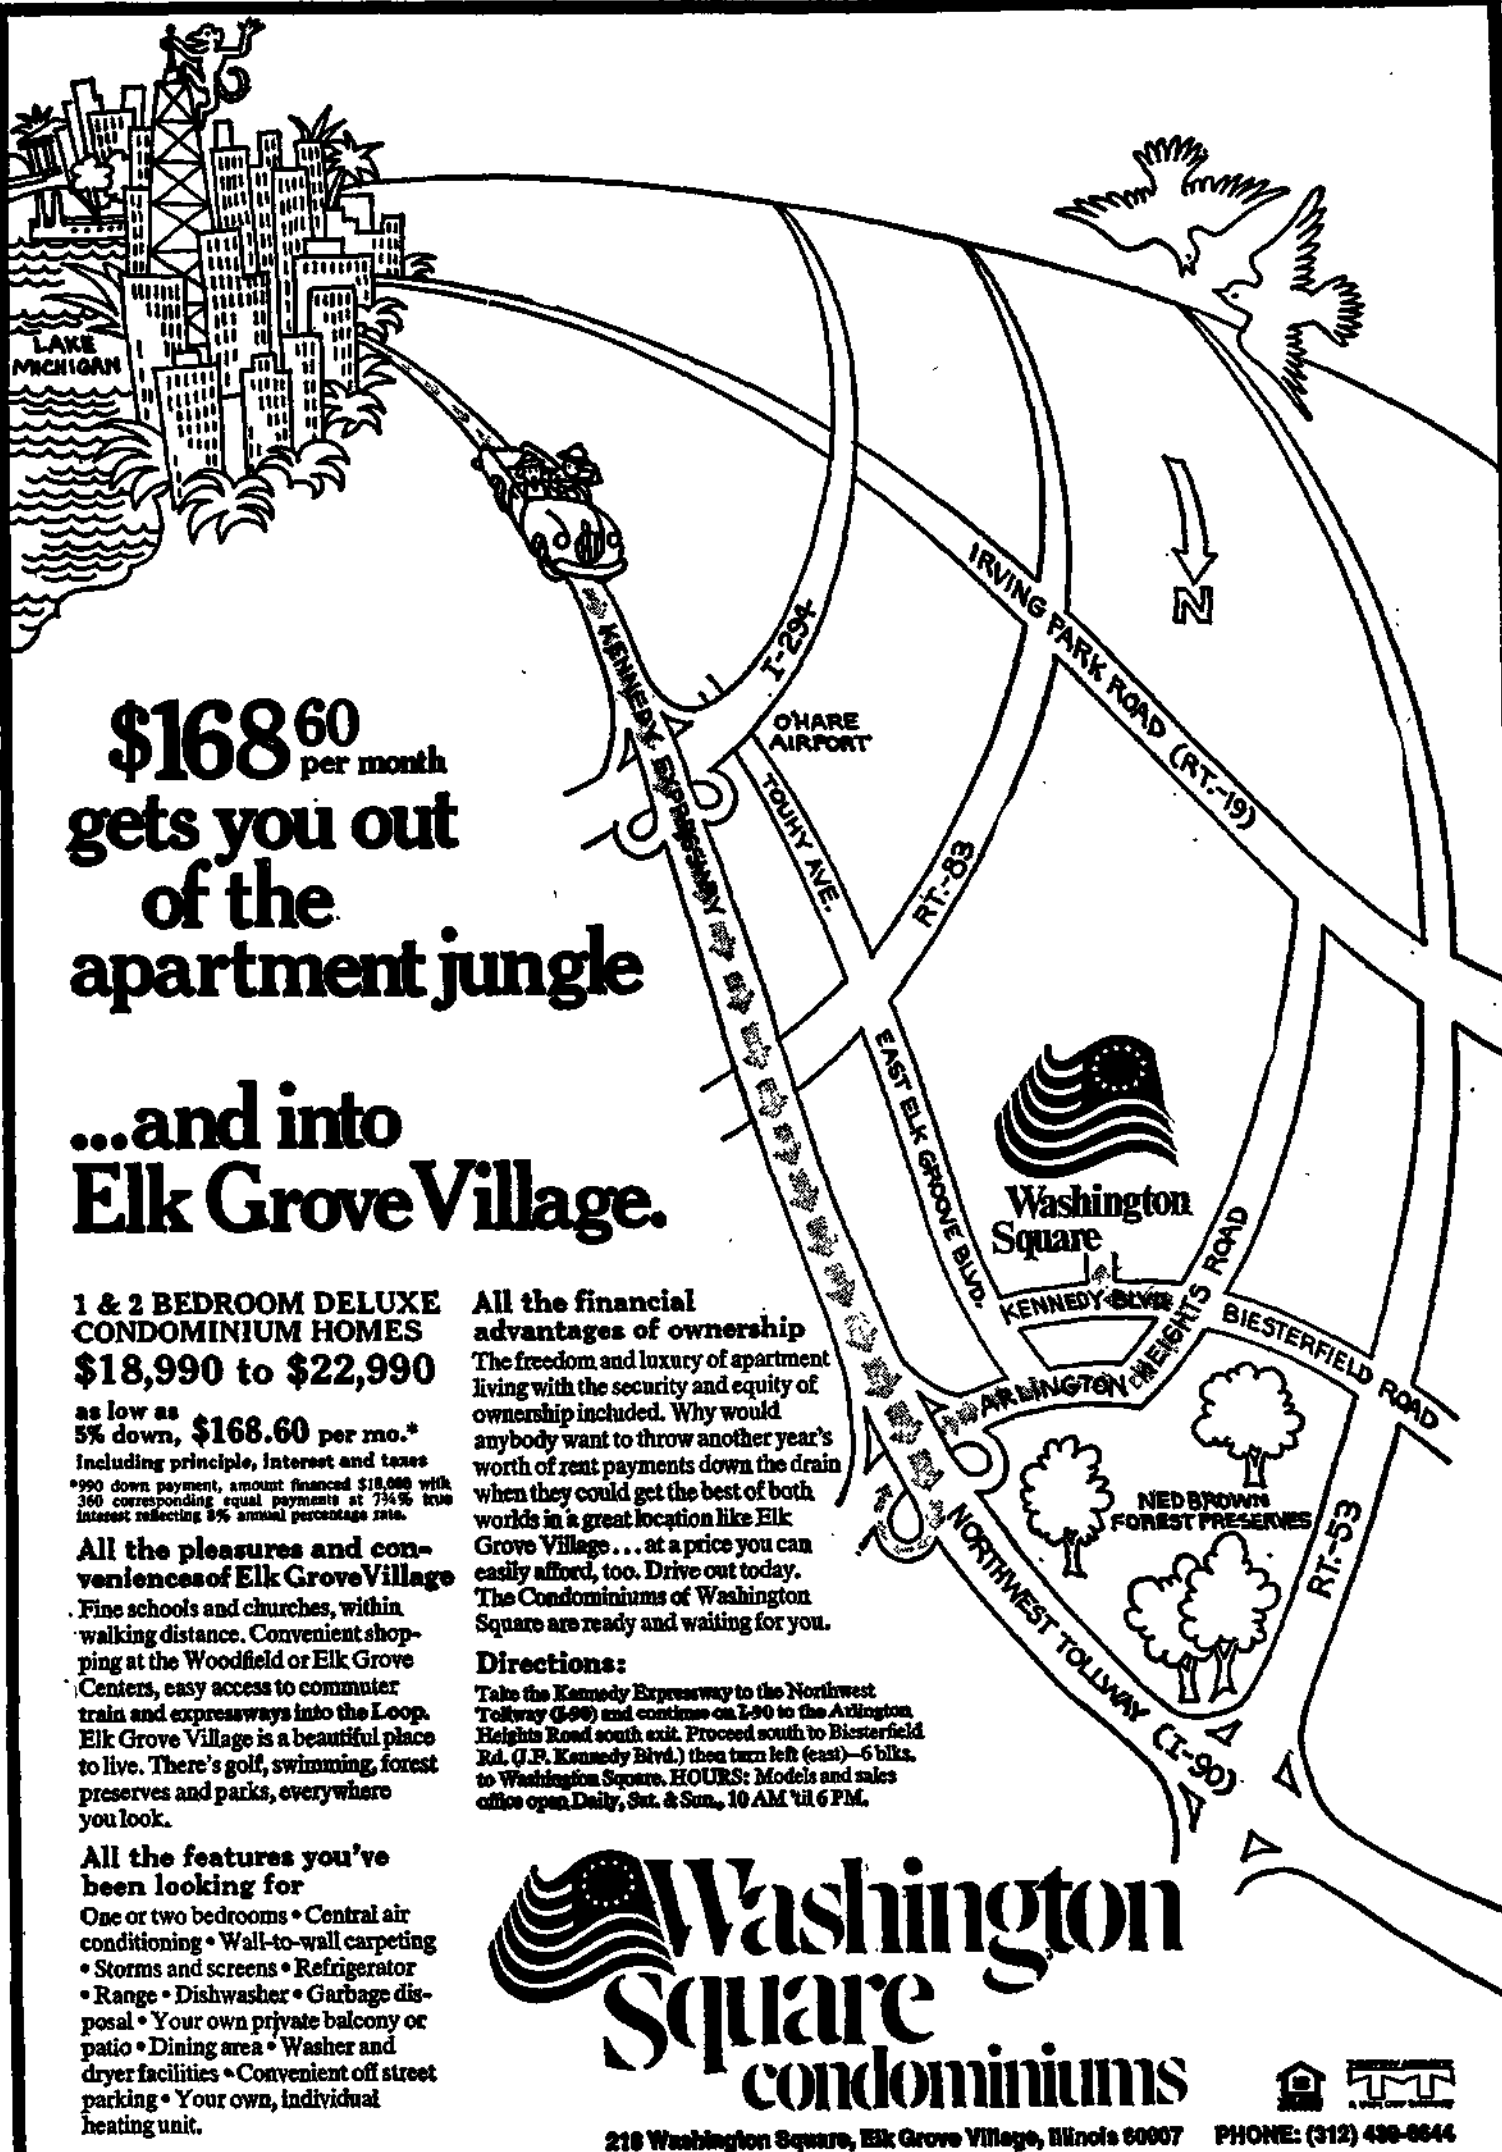

Sheldon L. Baskin is the general counsel for Downs, Mohl & Co., a firm that manages thousands of FHA-insured housing units. Baskin is assisting the discussions of management contracts. He is the author of several articles which have appeared in national real estate publications.

A SPECIAL portfolio of management material will be distributed to each person attending the seminar. Included will be a special management packet prepared by the FHA, several types of lease application forms, re-letting and sub-letting agreements, conventional and condominium management contracts, and a brochure about condominium cooperative ownership.

Among the questions to be answered today are: When is the best time for the expiration of a management contract? Does an escalator clause have any place in an apartment lease? What possible changes might be made in the standard lease form? What are the potential developments in the landlord-tenant laws and what are their ramifications?

The seminar is also having an extensive session on human relations, and special round-table discussions of all the program subjects at the end of the day.

You don't need a ladder to check roof

You don't have to get up on a roof to check its condition, if you follow the practice of men who inspect homes for a living.

John J. Heyn, president and founder of National Home Inspection Service, Inc., of Washington, D. C., says inspectors employed and trained by his firm carry field glasses and flashlights when they make field inspections.

NHIS offers its services to homebuyers who want the reassurance of a structural inspection before making an offer or closing a deal for a new or used home. For a fee, inspectors check the house from roof to basement and furnish buyers with a written report, including items such as the roof that may have to be repaired or replaced.

NHIS inspectors use field glasses to check the roof from ground level. The flashlight is used to peer around dark corners of the attic, where telltale water stains may warn of a roof leak.

"Climbing up on the roof is not only dangerous, but can damage the roof," says Heyn. He offers these hints in estimating the condition of the roof:

THE HEAVIER and thicker the roof covering, the better the quality. For example, a heavyweight asphalt shingle roof is designed to last 25 years or more, whereas standard shingles have a 15-year life expectancy.

From the ground, look for cracks, blistered surfaces, curled or missing shingles. Granules of a new roof have luster, whereas a dull, flat or faded color is a sign of aging.

Check base of downspouts for excess granule deposits. Ceramically-coated mineral granules protect asphalt shingles from the sun's drying rays and provide the shingles with fire resistance. Loss of granules accelerates the aging process.

National real estate group picks panels

Over 1,000 real estate brokers and executive officers of local real estate boards and state associations have been appointed to serve on the 35 standing committees of the 108,000-member National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB).

In making the announcement, newly installed president J. D. Sawyer of Middletown, Ohio, underscored the impact 1973 committee programs will have on the progress of organized real estate. "While each committee is charged with planning Association programs in areas ranging from governmental relations to equal opportunity in housing," said Sawyer, "cumulative effect of committee programs will be to guide the Association through a period of change that will reshape the image and structure of NAREB."

Changes include conversion of NAREB's name to the National Association of Realtors and incorporation of a new category of membership which will make NAREB the world's largest business association with more than 500,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates.

ARLINGTON REALTY announced plans for their new office building to be located at 115 N. Northwest Highway in Palatine. The firm recently purchased the building adjacent to their present office. Extensive remodeling is now under way. With the addition of the new property, the Arlington Realty Building, when completed, will have a total of 7,100 square feet. Owners will use 2,100 sq. ft. for their Palatine real estate office. Approximately 4,000 sq. ft. will be made available as office rental space all with central air conditioning. The remainder is already under lease. Most of the available office space is on street level with a small amount located on the 2nd floor.

Some pointers on reroofing

If your home improvement plans for the year include re-roofing, there are five points you should consider before selecting a roofing material.

They are: durability, appearance, fire-resistance, wind-resistance and low-maintenance. If the roofing material qualifies on all counts, the new roof should give you many years of good service.

Here are some facts to keep in mind:

Durability — The life expectancy of an asphalt shingle roof increases with the weight of the shingles. Heavyweight asphalt shingles — those weighing 290 or more pounds per 100 square feet of applied roofing — can be expected to last at least five to ten years longer than standard shingles. They cost a little more initially, but installation costs about the same.

Appearance — Since the roof is the largest unbroken expanse of the house, and one of the first areas to meet the eye, it should be used as a visual highlight for the entire house. Unlike your old roofing material which was probably limited in color choice, modern shingles come in a wide range of colors and blends that can complement the architectural style of your house and improve its over-all appearance.

Fire-resistance — Until fire-resistant roofing came into use, roof fires were one of the biggest threats to homes. To protect your house and family, select roof shingles that carry an Underwriters' Laboratories' seal for fire-resistance. This means the shingles have successfully passed tests for resistance to flame spread, exposure and flying fire brands.

Wind-Resistance — Even if you live in an area not normally subjected to hurricanes or wind storms, it's a good investment to use wind-resistant shingles. Self-sealing asphalt shingles have a factory-applied adhesive strip or patch that's activated in the sun's heat to bond each shingle to the one below. Interlocking shingles are another type of wind-resistant roofing.

Low-maintenance — Periodic and extensive roof maintenance can be troublesome and expensive. Discuss low-maintenance qualities of roofing with the dealer or contractor before you buy. A good roof, when properly installed, should be practically maintenance-free, and should stay fresh-looking and attractive for many years.

Low voltage and lighting for garden

The quiet beauty of an evening among moonlit plantings is one of gardening's greatest rewards. All too frequently, however, an unobtrusive moon or cover of clouds has forced the gardener to abandon his garden to darkness, or to resort to unnatural overlighting if he wants to enjoy his garden after sunset.

There is a new and ideal alternative for moonless evenings outdoors: simply create a soft, glare-free illumination for your garden with a low-voltage lighting system. And the system can be rearranged with very little trouble or expense to provide unending variety of illumination in your garden after dark.

When you plug in a modern garden light transformer and reduce the 120 volt household current to a 12 volt current (1-v), the wiring you carry into the garden is shock proof. You can string it along a fence, run it up tree trunks or into a garden pool, or bury it a few inches in the ground without the slightest fear of electrical shock.

A child can poke his finger in an outlet, you can make connections under water or cut a wire with a shovel without a chance of a dangerous electrical shock.

According to information published by Ortho Garden Products Division of Chemagro Chemical Co., the fixtures are inexpensive, ranging in price from $7 to about $20. An attractive basic lighting job can be installed for $100 to $120. Complete sets are available at garden and hardware stores.

The 1-v system is easy to install. You can experiment and change your mind a hundred times with no trouble. You can string the wire on top of the ground and leave it there until you are sure you have fixtures placed for the best effect.

Inspect shade trees now for signs of deterioration

Taking care of your shade trees in winter is a great way to get the jump on the spring season when outdoor projects all seem to come at once.

Now is an excellent time to have your trees inspected for decline or decay, broken limbs and signs of scale insect attack, and start correcting these problems before spring arrives, according to J. W. Joy, vice president of The Davey Tree Expert Co. To restore your trees' strength, deep root feeding can be done whenever the ground is not frozen. Dormant spray applications for control of scale, insects and Dutch elm disease can be done in late fall through early spring, weather permitting.

Pruning, cabling and bracing, removing dangerous trees and stumps, woodlot cleanup, vista pruning, or tree planting — if the ground is not deeply frozen — can be accomplished during winter months. Pruning, one of the most important tree-care steps, can be done at any time of the year. Even in the dormant period, dead wood can be identified by bark discoloration, fungus growth, or appearance of the buds.

If dead branches and stubs are not pruned out, decay can spread into the sound wood until large branches or even main trunks become hollowed, weak and dangerous. Pruning out dead limbs improves the appearance of your trees, eliminates breeding sites for insects and disease, and reduces risk of serious injury to people and property.

While many types of tree care can be done throughout the year, such services as tree moving and spraying must be timed to weather, geographic location or insect life cycles.

NOISE POLLUTION GETS TO YOU!

If you stop and think about it . . . better yet, stop and try to analyze what's bothering you at the moment, you may just find that you're reacting to a thousand hidden hums and vibrations.

Even the constant drip of a water faucet is Chinese Water Torture, you know, so fix the leak fast, and save our water resources, too!

Appliances, particularly heavy ones, like furnaces, refrigerators and television sets, can set up annoying vibrations that drive you to distraction.

So look around your home and check every possible source of irritation of this kind. Then do what you can to reduce it . . . there may, after all, be something wrong and you're getting far more noise and vibration than necessary.

The Mobil Oil Corp. facility can process 164,000 barrels of crude oil a day into gasoline, home heating oil, jet fuel, and other products. It is the only new refinery built recently in the continental U.S. at a time of developing shortages of refining capacity. No new refineries are currently under construction, the company said. "With the completion of Joliet, we have more than doubled our total refining capacity in the upper Midwest, and are processing all of the crude oil — both domestic and foreign — available to us at all of our refineries," Mobil chairman Rawleigh Warner Jr. said. "LIFT THE GOBLET" is the slogan as Arlington Federal Savings observes the 20th anniversary of its founding this month. The $115 million savings and loan association opened its door in a leased store front at 11 N. State Road in downtown Arlington Heights on March 14, 1953. To celebrate the occasion, Arlington Federal Savings is offering a free silver-plated goblet to depositors of $50 or more. Extra goblets (water, wine, or champagne/sherbet) may be purchased for $3.95 each with additional deposits of $25. Those making deposits of $1,000 or more may purchase as many additional goblets as they wish. "It's a kind of silver anniversary five years ahead of schedule," explained Donald F. Morton, president. "Actually our projections did not anticipate our reaching the $100 million level in total assets until we were 25 years old." The association passed the $100 million mark last July, at the conclusion of an open house observance of its expansion program at Campbell and Evergreen streets in downtown Arlington Heights.

DISCOLORATION AT HOME — COOK CLEAN!

Wise cooking habits can go a long way to cut down on, if not entirely eliminate, those invisible films of grease that absorb dirt and cause discoloration of walls and ceilings.

Water and grease-vapors evaporate and condense, producing in the average home more than 700 pounds a year of grease-laden moisture in the air. And it settles on flat surfaces.

Keep a ventilating hood over the range . . . have a fan going before cooking begins. And since water boils at only one temperature, slow boiling or simmering in a covered pot produces the same cooking result as fast boiling, but a lot less moisture.

When possible, use a splatter-mesh lid when frying. Control the flame. And be sure to wipe all surfaces with a damp, detergent-dipped cloth when you're through.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

It Pays To List With The Leaders

There are many, many reasons why it pays to list your home with a MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate office, but actually, when all is said and done, it's really RESULTS that count.

MAP "results" can best be reflected in the overall sales figures compiled by the entire MAP organization. In 1972 participating MAP offices made 3,256 cooperative sales amounting to $200,987,942. Month after month, year after year, MAP sales figures show continual increases, due mainly to the fact that MAP GETS RESULTS, and results are what home buyers and sellers demand.

When you're ready to sell, talk over the current market situation with a MAP broker in your area and get all the facts on why MAP gets the job done quickly and conveniently.

Outdoor decorating gaining in popularity

The trend toward outdoor living, as seen in the increasing use of patios, decks and atriums, has given home design a new dimension — exterior decoration.

Women are already masters of interior design. Now, they have the wide outdoors to decorate. Many are investing as much time and thought in developing beauty for their home's exterior as they do on interior colors, textures and furnishings.

This new emphasis on exterior design results from the indoor-outdoor theme that is influencing the construction of new homes. Extensive glass areas are replacing walls, and sliding glass doors are converting patios into extensions of the living room. Atriums, or indoor courtyards, are the highlight of many new homes. Owners of older houses are remodeling with decks and glassed-in porches.

When modernizing, you can dress up the exterior with exciting new colors, unusual textures and dramatic accents. One area with extensive decorating possibilities is the roof. Recent color advances in asphalt heavyweight shingles make this feasible.

As a decorating tool, color serves three functions. It gives visual impact, accents the house's focal points, and plays down architectural flaws. Since the roof is the largest expanse of the house, it's logical to begin color design there.

With all her decorating experience, the lady of the house is a "natural" to make color decisions about the roof. She'll have a large canvas on which to work, and there are many decorative possibilities.

One of the aspects of asphalt heavyweight shingles that appeal to women is their new "glamor" look. Now they have richer colors, deeper textures and stronger, more distinctive shadow lines. Improved color treatment has made the shingle colors more resistant to fading, has resulted in the development of new blends, and has widened the color choice.

The use of blends makes it easier to coordinate roof colors with the site. The so-called "earth" and "forest" colors — tones of brown and green — are often used for this purpose.

The architectural design of your house needn't limit your choice of roof color. Rather you can use color to complement or emphasize the structural lines of the house: bright shades for lively contemporary styles, browns for a rustic ranch home, or conservative white or black for Colonial. If excessive dormers, gables or overhangs are making your house look outdated, you can de-emphasize them with a light shingle that will blend them into the background.

Colors can also be used to create a mood, as with cool blues or warm reds. And, distinctive roof color is one of the most effective ways to individualize your home.

To complete the color picture, exterior walls can be matched or contrasted with the roof. Trim and accent areas, such as window frames, doors, shutters and gables can also add bright color contrast. Even fences and lamp posts can enhance the colorful effect of a house's exterior design.

Savings deposit rise aids housing

The "greening" of the nation's savings and loan industry helped the housing industry break all existing records in 1972.

"And it now appears that the process may well be repeated, with even greater impact, this year," said Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston.

"The 'greening' was the inflow of more than $32.9 billion in net new savings deposited in the nation's S&Ls last year," Goss said. "This total was more than 18 per cent above the previous year's record — also a volatile year for the thrift industry and for home buying."

According to Goss, "S&L deposits were poured back into home mortgages — more than $26.6 billion," representing an increase of 41 per cent above 1971 lending levels.

Goss says thrift institutions are discovering the advantages of greater participation in high-ratio financing programs supported by private mortgage insurance and an active secondary mortgage market.

He pointed out it is now possible for a home buyer to purchase a $37,895 home — with a mortgage from a savings and loan association — for as little as $1,895 down.

"Savings and loans and mutual savings banks continue to provide mortgage money at attractive interest rates, assuring continuing stability for housing — both for builders and buyers," Goss said.

Architectural firm wins design awards

Theodore Brickman Co., Landscape Architects & Contractors, Long Grove, recently received two Residential Design Awards from the National Landscape Association for the outstanding landscape design and planting of a multi-family residence in Northbrook. Mr. Robert O. Brickman and developer Bruce Biletz accepted the awards at NLA's 1973 Landscape Management Clinic held February 18-21 in Louisville, Kentucky.

The Residential Design Award Program was initiated in 1970 to encourage improved residential landscape design. The program recognizes those professional landscape architects who create meritorious designs and those who carefully plant the design.

Brickman was honored for his firm's excellent design which takes full advantage of a difficult site and makes a perfect blend of plant and construction materials. The firm was also cited for its outstanding execution of this design. The National Landscape Association is a Washington, D.C.-based organization of over 400 firms engaged in landscape design, installation and maintenance.

Who ever heard of a formal dining room in a one-bedroom condominium?

Here at Cambridge On The Lake, we do things a little differently. But not just to be different. To be better.

Most one-bedroom condominiums for example, have a make shift dining area at one end of the living room.

We don't. The dining room is a separate room. (Which means when you have special people over for dinner by candlelight, they feel like they're dining, not just eating.)

We do other things differently, too. The bedroom is roomy enough for a king-size bed. And a dresser. And a chair. And bedside tables.

Then there's a 4'4"x8' entrance foyer with two guest closets, not just one.

The kitchen is not only large enough to cook in, there's plenty of room for a breakfast table and chairs. Plus generous cabinets, a double-oven range, a two-door refrigerator, a dishwasher and a disposal unit.

We think you'll like our 24-hour security system, too. Like the friendly guard at the entrance gate. And the closed circuit TV camera in the lobby, that lets you see who's buzzing your apartment right on your own television set.

You don't park outdoors in the cold, either. Under your building there's a heated garage with automatic doors, and elevator service to your floor.

There's more we think you'll like. The indoor swimming pool. The sauna. The putting green. The stocked, 2½-acre lake. The card room. The billiard room. And the hobby room.

There are other points of difference we invite you to find out about. Your scrupulous inspection is welcome.

Luxurious one, two and three-bedroom condominium apartment homes. From $27,790 to $57,290, with as little as 10% down.

If you're now a homeowner, ask about our unusual trade-in plan.

... this says it all!

Yes, another home both listed and sold by Starck. Sure, some of our listings are sold by other brokers through MAP Multiple Listing Service, Inc. BUT, we sell a whole bunch of our listings and we do it FAST!

How?

In any successful business the most valuable resource is people. We are very proud of all the salesmen, managers and office personnel in our organization. We select them carefully, train them well and keep retraining so that our clients and customers get total real estate service.

In addition, our advertising and merchandising is aggressive and combines both quantity and quality. Every home we list has its own merchandising campaign put into writing. You are kept informed of all details and progress every step of the way until the property is sold.

An important part of merchandising is establishing the proper selling price for your property. Using established and accurate appraisal techniques we prepare a Value Analysis on your property. This results in a fast sale at top market price for you.

We offer three exclusive extras that greatly assist us in selling your property:

1. Inter-City Relocation Service Inc. 650 nationwide Realtors constantly are referring their transferred clients to us. In 1972 this has resulted in over $2,000,000 in additional sales.
2. Palace Guard, Inc. In this age of consumerism buyers expect to purchase things and know that they will work properly or will be fixed so that they do. Palace Guard Service is only offered through us.
3. The Starck Home Guarantee Purchase Plan and Potere PET Equity Program permits us to sell a buyer your property and "take his home in trade" anywhere in the country.

Since 1960 Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors have sold thousands of homes in the great Northwest Suburbs. We have grown to five offices with over fifty associates.

We'd love to spotlight your home with our SOLD sign!

Fitzgerald stars in Palatine win with four firsts

Versatile Jan Fitzgerald of Palatine put on quite a one-man show to pace the Pirates to an impressive indoor track quadrangular victory Saturday over host Wheeling, Conant and Arlington. Palatine's winning margin was 36 points.

Fitzgerald won three different events and also participated on a winning relay combination to have a hand in 19½ points by himself — 2½ less than the entire Arlington team. He won both 50-yard hurdles events, the highs in :6.7 and the lows in :6.4, plus the long jump with 18-11½. He also led off the four-lap relay team which won.

Fitzgerald appears set to make up for last season when he probably would have been one of the best hurdlers in the area had he not been sidelined most of the spring by an injury.

Steve Drake of Wheeling was the only other two-time winner and his double was impressive — 2:00 in the 880-yard run and :5.4 in the 50-yard dash.

Palatine had one other individual winner besides Fitzgerald, Larry Mennes with :54.6 in the 440, and the Pirates also won both relays events. The four-lap crew of Fitzgerald, Eugene Mollenkamp, Bob Castle and Dave Bailey posted a 1:12.8 time and the 12-lap team of Doug Patterson, Larry Mennes, Tom Glenn and Scott Williams was timed in 4:08.9.

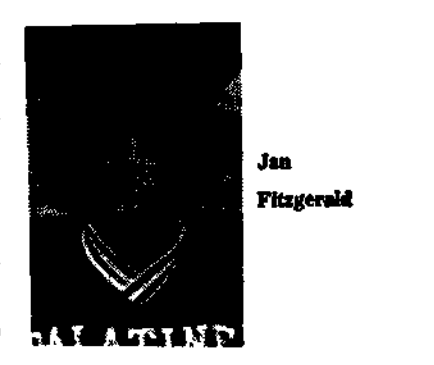

Wheeling had five firsts, one less than Palatine, with three other Wildcats joining Drake in the winners' circle. Bill Chlebek won the shot put with a very commendable 53-5¼, John Lortz won the high jump with 6-1 and Steve Wilhelm took the mile run with 4:40.3.

Other winners were Arlington's Dave Hillert with 12-0 in the pole vault and Conant's John Bond with 9:58 in the two-mile run.

Competition was also held on two other levels with Palatine winning the sophomore meet and Conant claiming the frosh contest.

Prospect, Wheeling survive scares; Fremd romps; Maine East bows out

by THE HERALD SPORTS STAFF

Prospect, Fremd and Wheeling kept their hopes alive for regional championships with wins last night at Herald area tourney sites.

WILDCATS EDGE LIONS

A 25-foot field goal attempt by St. Viator's Fred Hallihan bounced off the rim, Wheeling's George Kaage pulled down the rebound and the Wildcats escaped with a pulse-pounding 40-39 victory at the winners' own regional.

Coach Ted Ecker's Wildcats, now 17-4 for the season, received the scare of their lives from a fired up group of Lions. The 'Cats now advance to the finals on Friday night against Arlington, the fourth meeting of the two clubs this season.

St. Viator nearly played the spoiler before bowing out of the tourney with a 4-18 record. Putting on possibly its best performance of the season, the Arlington Heights parochial team held a 39-36 with 22:50 left in the ball game.

Then Wheeling's Pat Smith, playing inspired ball the second half after being held to just one bucket in the first, fired through two of his dozen second half points to pull his team within one.

Following a jump ball with 1:54 left, Smith came down the court and slammed home a 20-footer. So, with 1:24 remaining, the 'Cats held a precarious 40-39 advantage.

Wheeling had chances to put the game away in the final 36 seconds as Steve Schmitt and Pat Smith took turns at the free throw line, but both times their first shots failed. On the second occasion, with just 19 seconds left, St. Viator controlled the rebound and Wheeling fouled.

St. Viator took the ball out of bounds because the bonus free throw rule wasn't in effect. Down the court came the Lions.

Time was running out when Hallihan let go his bomb, but the shot just missed and Kaage, who finished with 10 points on the night and some clutch rebounds, came up with possibly the biggest board of his career. The last couple of seconds ticked off and the Lions' season was over.

St. Viator was paced by Mike Cook. The strong senior pumped in 14 points and shared rebounding honors with Dave Hutchinson. The Lions outrebounded the 'Cats 30-17. However, Wheeling made up for that deficit by only committing six turnovers to St. Viator's 16.

Smith was high for Wheeling with 14 points.

Both clubs were tied at halftime and at the three-quarter mark with Wheeling — now the winningest team in the Herald area — outscoring just one more point in the final eight minutes, but what an important tally it was.

Wheeling	8	11	10	11-40
St. Viator	7	12	10	10-39

PROSPECT ADVANCES

Prospect, behind the unnered marksmanship of substitute Val Grafitti and the second-effort of forward Will Freeman, staged a spectacular fourth-quarter rally and defeated Hersey, 44-37 in the opening game of the Prospect Regional.

The Knights trailed 31-28 with 6:02 remaining in the contest, but the hosts began to solve Hersey's zone defense by going to Freeman in the middle as the dramatics started.

Six-foot-five Freeman cashed an offensive rebound and then watched as teammate Brian Groth was on target from 20 feet down the baseline. Freeman casually dropped a pair of free throws and Prospect trailed just 31-28 with four minutes left.

Dave Corzine, Hersey's 6-foot-11 center hit a layup to extend the Huskies' advantage to 33-28, but Prospect's 6-foot-9 counterpart Tom Bergen popped a charity toss and Grafitti gunned from 20 to slice the margin to 33-31, Hersey.

Corzine was successful on ensuing trips down the floor by the Huskies, but Grafitti first clicked on a pair of crucial free throws before Freeman plunked in a six-footer with 1:24 to knot the score at 35 apiece.

Grafitti was flawless from 18 feet after Hersey turned the ball over on a bad pass for a 37-35 Prospect edge and another converted rebound and two more clutch free throws by Freeman iced the decision for the Knights who will now advance to the championship game Friday night against either Rolling Meadows or Elk Grove.

The defensive struggle reflected the absence of the expected dominating forces of Corzine and Bergen who were too busy neutralizing each other to prevail.

Neither center was effective in the first half. Corzine managed a freak tip-in for two points, but the Huskie giant failed to net a rebound during the initial 16 minutes. Bergen was equally stilled. He failed to score at all while hauling down eight bounds.

The meager scoring burden fell in the hands of Freeman and revitalized Bob Bostrum who sparked Prospect to an 18-16 halftime advantage with eight and six points, respectively.

Hersey counted on the half-dozen markers by soph Tim Conard to come away with a 10-all first quarter deadlock. The Huskies were successful on just five of 17 first-half shots for 29 percent while Prospect struggled to 37 per cent on 9-of-23 shots.

Hersey caught fire in the third period as Greg Hale entered the game and carried the Huskie torch. The 6-foot-5 forward dumped in six third-quarter points, grabbed four important rebounds and gave Hersey an added force on the boards.

Corzine also tossed in six points in the stanza as Hersey outscored Prospect, 13-4, to assume what appeared to be a somewhat comfortable 23-22 advantage after three bells.

But the Huskies had to resort to a zone defense after guard Kevin Lephart found foul trouble and Prospect took off on an incredible 22-0 scoring binge down the stretch to pull the victory from the coals and end the season for Hersey.

The Knights will carry a 15-7 overall mark into the Prospect Regional Championship Friday night while Hersey finished the campaign at 11-12.

Hersey	10	6	13	8-37
Prospect	10	8	4	22-44

NO TROUBLE FOR VIKINGS

Fremd methodically pulled away in the second half to eliminate Schaumburg, 70-45, in the Palatine Regional. The Vikings will meet Palatine Friday night at 7:30 with a Fremd Sectional berth at stake.

The Saxons stayed even in the first quarter but fell behind by eight at halftime and Fremd continued to expand the margin thereafter. The winners had exceptional scoring balance with Bob Frank putting in 13, Terry Whiteley 12, Larry Coughlan 11 and Randy Weber and Doug Mize 10 each. Schaumburg's Jim Schimbke led all scorers with 14.

Fremd had slim leads through the first quarter with Whiteley scoring three of the Vikes' first four baskets, but Schimbke put in four buckets in the period, which ended 14-14.

Fremd moved to a 30-22 halftime advantage with all five Vikings scoring in the second quarter.

An occasional Viking man-to-man press forced turnovers and helped coach Leon Kasuboske's club gain a comfortable lead in the third quarter. Weber hit three quick baskets early in the period and the Saxons were held to eight points in the third quarter. Frank hit all seven free throws he took in the fourth quarter.

Schaumburg	14	8	6	15-45
Fremd	14	16	18	22-70

DEMONS DUMPED, 74-48

Powered by Clem Naughton's 17 second-half points, Notre Dame blasted Maine East, 74-48, in semi-finals of the Maine West Regional.

The Dons, who trailed 10-6, after one quarter, now look forward to Friday's 7:30 p.m. championship contest with Maine South.

Marty Draths had the hot hand for Notre Dame during the opening two quarters hitting 12 of 18 points.

Then Naughton took over, scoring 11 third quarter points and six in the fourth period. He finished with 25, high for both clubs.

Notre Dame also had Mike Callero (11) and Mike English (10) in double-scoring figures. Rich Schmacher led Maine East with 10 points.

East's strip to oblivion was cemented during four minutes of the third period when Paul McClelland's club was held scoreless.

Bill Castonzo's field goal at 4:50 pulled the Blue Demons to a 39-26 deficit. Notre Dame splurged to 50-36 before Mike Faden managed a field goal for East, 43 seconds before the third period ended.

Maine East couldn't capitalize on numerous first-quarter chances to blow out Notre Dame. Both clubs ran up and down the floor continually passing the ball out of bounds and passing up scoring opportunities.

At first quarter's end, the Blue Demons had a 10-6 lead, primarily behind six points by Castonzo. The 6-foot-5 Maine East center hadn't played in Tuesday's game against Maine North because of a sprained ankle.

Notre Dame took control early in the second quarter outscoring East, 13-4, in three minutes. They rolled up a 25-16 margin and led 31-26 at the half.

Notre Dame	6	25	20	23-74
Maine East	10	16	12	10-48

Grunnah, Robertson win speed skating crowns

The Mount Prospect Skating Club traveled to the Oakton rink in Park Ridge to participate in the State Indoor Speed Skating Championships.

Twenty-five members of the club skated in the Class B and Class A events and Coach Chuck Serchuk was proud of two of his Class A skaters who won state titles in their class.

Tommy Grunnah won the state indoor title in the Junior Boys class by sweeping the 440-yard and 880-yard races. Teammate Rich Vehe fell in one of his events to eliminate him from the scoring. Eric Jonland and Dan G'Elgoly had the same problem on their Juvenile Boy events.

Joan Wagner, the club's outstanding Juvenile Girl competitor, fell in her 220-yard sprint to eliminate her from contention. Tim Gillogly had the same bad luck in the Midget Boys' Class. John Guzzardo, competing as an Intermediate Boy, skated well in his races, and just missed scoring in the 880-yard and one-mile events.

Helen Lutsch scored two second place finishes in the Senior Women's 440 and 880-yard races, while teammate Meg Hayes scored a fourth place in the 440-yard race and a fifth place in the one-mile event.

The second state indoor champion from the Club was Dick Robertson, who won the Class B Men Championship with a first place finish in the 440-yard sprint and a second place in the 880-yard event.

Coach Serchuk has been particularly pleased with the improvement shown by Robertson and other members of the club and looks forward to next year to have many National Qualifiers and state champions.

He announced the club plans a summer conditioning program that will allow the skaters to get off to a fast start when ice is available. The final local meet of the season will be held at the Willow Ice Chalet in Willow Springs on Wednesday evening, March 21.

Rick outfoxes hounding foes

by PAUL LOGAN

"It's over with in a blink."

Six plunge in a collective splash . . .

... They scramble over a scanty 25 yards in synchronized fashion . . .

... Flailing babbling ducks, they flip under water together and bounce off the wall . . .

... Only one has a slight advantage as they surface for the gut portion of the race — the return . . .

... Thrashing for all they're worth, the six streaks close in on the electronic pad . . .

... One touches first . . . The rest slap the barrier almost simultaneously . . .

Describing the shortness of the 50-yard freestyle was Jerry Lovejoy, Prospect's swim coach, after the Hinsdale South hosted state finals Saturday.

Describing his reaction to his victory in the state championships was Rick Fox, Prospect's first swimming star.

"I was on 'Cloud Nine,'" continued Rick, who still hadn't left his lofty perch later that evening. He had just watched his win on a delayed television show, so his effort was easy to remember.

"I was surprised with my start. It was a good race. I came off the turn well and I got past the wave."

"I saw everybody behind me," he said, almost reliving the earlier thrill. "I knew (Brian) Linderoth (Rockford Guilford) had a better second 25."

"But I was psyched up. When it goes down to the state meet like that, it's 95 per cent mental."

Rick Fox was ready both mentally and physically for the grueling 50 yards. It paid off in the first state title ever won by a Prospect High School or Mid-Suburban League swimmer.

He looked back two months to the day at the Glenbrook South dual meet as his moment of dedication. "When I went 22.6, I thought I could place if I worked really hard. It led me on."

This senior sprinter, who didn't begin concentrating on the 50 until his junior year, hovered around the top spot on the state honor roll most of the season after that. His confidence was boosted when he won the 50 and 100 freestyle events in the MSL meet and again in the New Trier East District.

At Friday night's preliminaries, Rick admitted that he was a little surprised when Linderoth registered a 21.798 to lead qualifiers in the 50.

"That kind of worried me a bit," he said. "But at least I didn't have the pressure on me going into this meet. With the pressure off, I slept good last night."

Feeling loose Saturday afternoon, he mounted the blocks and — four breaths later, returned to them a champion. Herald area swimmers in attendance and Prospect fans joined Rick in erupting with joy. He leaped all over his lane longer than it took to take the title.

His near record performance of 21.669 (Hinsdale Central's Glen Discoway set the mark of 21.5 last year) prompted a TV interviewer to talk to him after the medal presentation.

"The 100 kind of subdued me," he said, referring to his sixth place. After being in contention most of the way, he missed his final turn.

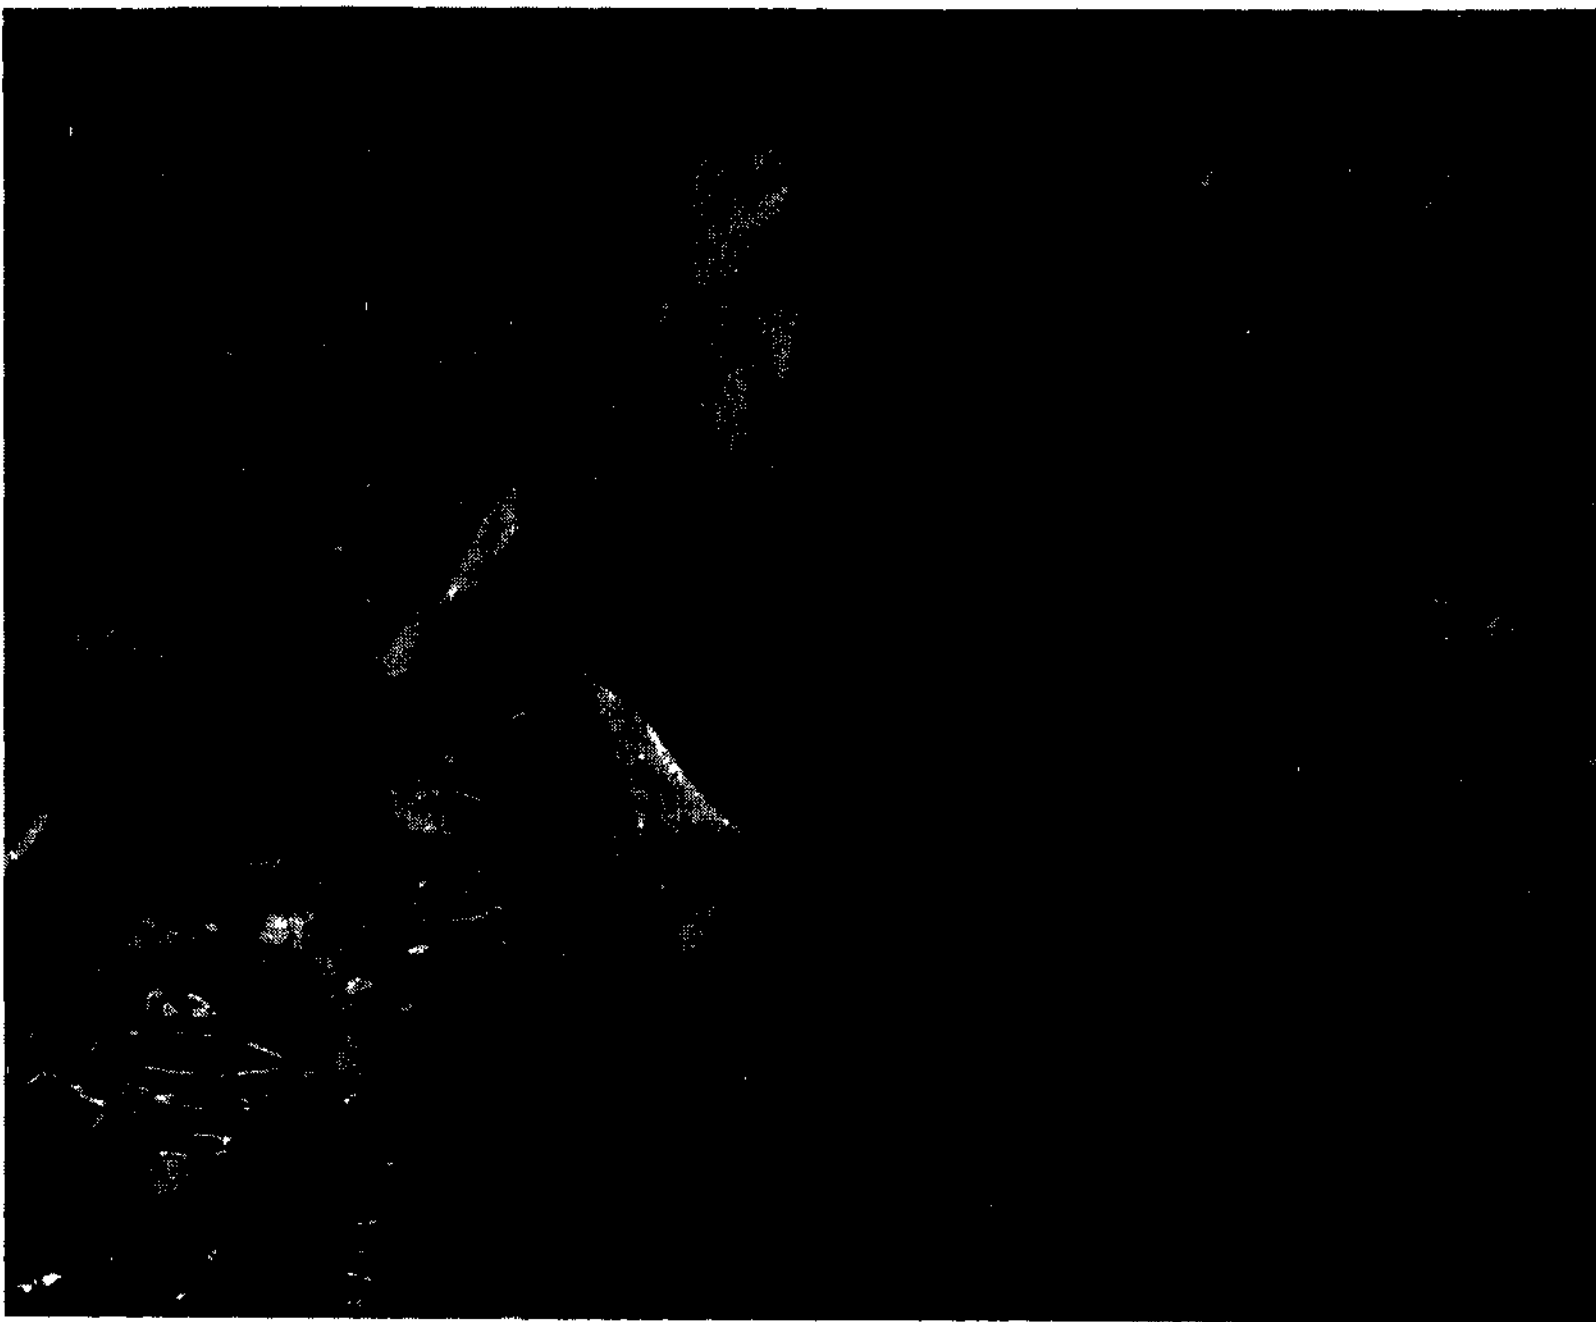

"I just couldn't get up for that race. I thought I was prepared, but I wasn't. But nobody can take that title away from me."

His disgust at not being a double winner — a feat that's tremendously difficult in such short state races — was blotted from his mind when his friend, Mike Salerno, became the second area performer to make history by winning in the backstroke. Together they have provided examples for other area youngsters.

"I remember that I used to look up to Rick Lynch," said Fox of his former St. Viator sprinting idol. Lynch finished third in the 50 and fourth in the 100 freestyles in the 1969 state meet, the highest area finishes ever in those events. And, ironically, he accomplished his heroics when the state meet was at the same pool.

"It really helps to have someone you have been associated with do well," he added.

Now young sprinters have a new hero.

Salerno — a never satisfied champion

by PAUL LOGAN

The towel, ough, mantle passed from first-place winner Russ Meyer to third-place finisher Mike Salerno in the 1972 state swim meet.

Hinsdale Central's state champion backstroke and second-place performer Mark Trenor of Deerfield were both seniors. Salerno, the first St. Viator swimmer to make it as far as third since sprinter Rich Lynch in 1969, was only a junior. He became the heir apparent.

Someone also passed on mononucleosis to Mike just about that time, forcing him out of the water until last fall. Anyone who follows the sport knows that it's almost a year around process if you want to excel.

Nevertheless, by early January this talented senior had turned in the fastest time in the nation — 54.8. Now there was no question about it — Mike was a marked man. The No. 1 contender.

Experts began seeing a fine showdown for the title between Salerno and hopefuls Mark Wintercorn of Lyons Township and Neil Hansen of New Trier West. The matchup never came off.

Wintercorn, a two-time loser to Mike in earlier meetings, broke his neck in a pool accident and was sidelined for three months.

The hoped for battle with Hansen was finally terminated with the Illinois High School Association's ruling him ineligible and then the court upholding the decision. Hansen had turned in a slightly faster time than Salerno in the districts, but Mike had also defeated him at an invitational meet.

Now Salerno became a "look" to take

St. Viator's first title. The pressure had to grow within him, especially when he was sidelined just days before the state preliminaries with a cold. Missing that time in the water had to add to his worries.

Despite the problems of being expected to win and the pressures of being possibly too weak to hold off a strong finish by an upset-minded opponent, Mike finished first in the prelims on Friday, and more importantly, first again on Saturday.

"I was glad it was over with," said Mike Saturday night. "I was mad because I didn't do a good time."

Mike backed his way over the 100 yards in 55.896. He had turned in a faster qualifying time in last year's preliminaries (55.882).

"I didn't think I went out that fast," he said, referring to the replay of his race on television. "I was really tired that last 50. I wasn't ready to sprint."

Prior to the finish of the consolation heat of the backstroke, Mike killed time before his race on one of the officials' chairs as they eyed the finish of the race. He appeared like a cool veteran.

Along came Paul Sigfusson, former Prospect swimmer, draped in a bright red towel which had a large "H" on it — symbolizing Hinsdale Central. Sigfusson, who knew Salerno, gave him a friendly slap on the back, but the St. Viator swimmer's concentration seemed unbroken.

Salerno had a smooth fast start ("I think the only good point about the race was my start.") and began to open the lead. By the second turn, he enjoyed about a body length over the field. His advantage melted over the final two trips across the pool, but he managed to hold on and win by 3/10ths of a second.

"I saw them (Evanston's Jim Carlson, who took second, and Hinsdale South's Bob Hamer, who was third) the last lap and I thought they were really coming on," he remembered. "I was really dying."

Mike admitted that he "was really concerned" and "a little afraid" when the cold struck him the first of the week.

That final 50 yards lacked his usual strong finish.

Asked to pass along to future area stars what it takes to be a state champion, Mike emphasized hard work and setting high goals. He did both, especially the latter when he took aim on the state record of 54.7 by Meyer.

"It's nice," he said, referring to standing on the top of the small pyramid where the top six finishers are honored. "But it would have been nicer if I'd have

Hinsdale's coach probably waiting for win No. 17 . . .

by A STAFF WRITER
"The swimming's getting much faster and faster. They're closing in."

Don Watson spoke in serious tones as he conducted a two-man press conference next to the Hinsdale South pool. Just a half hour before, his Hinsdale Central team sent him splashing for the seventh straight time after winning the state championship. His clothes still dripped the sweet drops of victory.

"There wasn't a state record broken," he continued, "but the times overall have really dropped. It gives you an idea of the overall degree of the improvement in swimming in the state."

That's all well and good, coach. Still, it all boils down to other teams getting elated over an individual champ on their double figure point totals while the Red Devils wonder how high above 200 points they'll soar.

The Devils only figured to have two champions last weekend — Mike Capek in the breaststroke and the medley relay team. Besides them, they won the butterfly and the 400 freestyle relay. That jacked up their overall champion record to a whopping 57 (14 relays and 43 solos) since the school opened in 1960.

"We probably worked harder than any other team we've ever had," said Watson. "But we had to because we weren't as talented."

The school's seventh team title in a row, starting back in 1967, smashed the consecutive victory string held by Lane Tech (1938-1943). Now the Red Devils are just one more victory away from tying Lane for second place on the all-time list of school champions with nine. New Trier leads the list with 16.

One gets the feeling that Watson just might retire if he eclipsed that all-time win total. That could mean only nine more years (let's hope) of Central domination to go.

Keep the faith, swim fans.

Don Watson

... Former area product aids dynasty

What's it like being on a perennial championship team?

Pose this question to the team's new-comer swimmer and you'd expect any one of these reactions:

- "Fantastic!"
- "The greatest thing that's ever happened to me!"
- "What a thrill!"

None of the above was uttered by Paul

Paul Sigfusson

Sigfusson, a former Prospect High School freshman standout who moved to the Hinsdale area last year.

"It was a different experience," said Sigfusson, a very serious, mature talking sophomore who helped Hinsdale Central to the title with 215 points, two more than the super team of 1972. He was a member of the winning medley relay team and placed fifth in the backstroke.

Paul had a super career ahead of him after a fine freshman year at the Mount Prospect school. Swimming with the varsity in the conference meet, he led off the medley relay team that finished fourth and took a pair of fifths in the 400 freestyle and the 100 backstroke. This was especially impressive because the Mid-Suburban League was loaded with talent for the first time.

However, he left one of the most improved leagues in the state for a chance of making the first string at Hinsdale. Paul said he enjoyed his brief stay at Prospect, but he just didn't get enough pool time.

After practice he'd journey to Lake Forest for more swimming. In moving to Hinsdale, he received all the time he needed in the excellent facility at the Red Devil campus. His Prospect pool had to use the local park district pool. And then there was the other important motive:

"People want to move here. They want to be a winner."

Paul appeared headed for the loser's bracket earlier in the season. He broke his arm playing football with the rest of the team in October, but he was out just two weeks. Bronchitis knocked him out for another week in December. He completed his medical calendar with the London flu and four more missed days.

Despite the adversity, he managed to remain the No. 1 backstroke. Just before the West Suburban Conference championships, he lost his first swimoff to Bob Dudley. But his chief competitor dislocated his shoulder in the conference meet. This left Paul in the pressure position of being counted on heavily in the state meet.

"We might of have had our doubts (of winning a state title) about Christmas time when Mike Capek (their star breastroker) hurt his back," said Sigfusson. "After we lost the Indian Relays by one point, we really started working."

Paul added that the team kept reading about how the streak (six straight state titles) was going to be ended this year, and it really fired the guys up. Being the underdog made them anxious to prove their ability.

Nevertheless, the team — almost entirely underclassmen — was a little tense in the Friday night preliminaries.

"I false started in the backstroke," Paul admitted. "I was pretty nervous before that."

Still, he and his teammates came through like seven other Hinsdale championship teams had done to cram the finals with Red Devils. Paul had the fifth fastest qualifying time — 54.7. St. Viator senior Mike Salerno had the top time — 55.2.

"When Paul came with us, his first time trial was a 59.8," said enthusiastic head coach Don Watson. "He had a 26.8 split on the relay."

"He's grown a tremendous amount in the last year (five inches). Once he gets his strength back, he's going to be a heck of a backstroke. We're glad to have him."

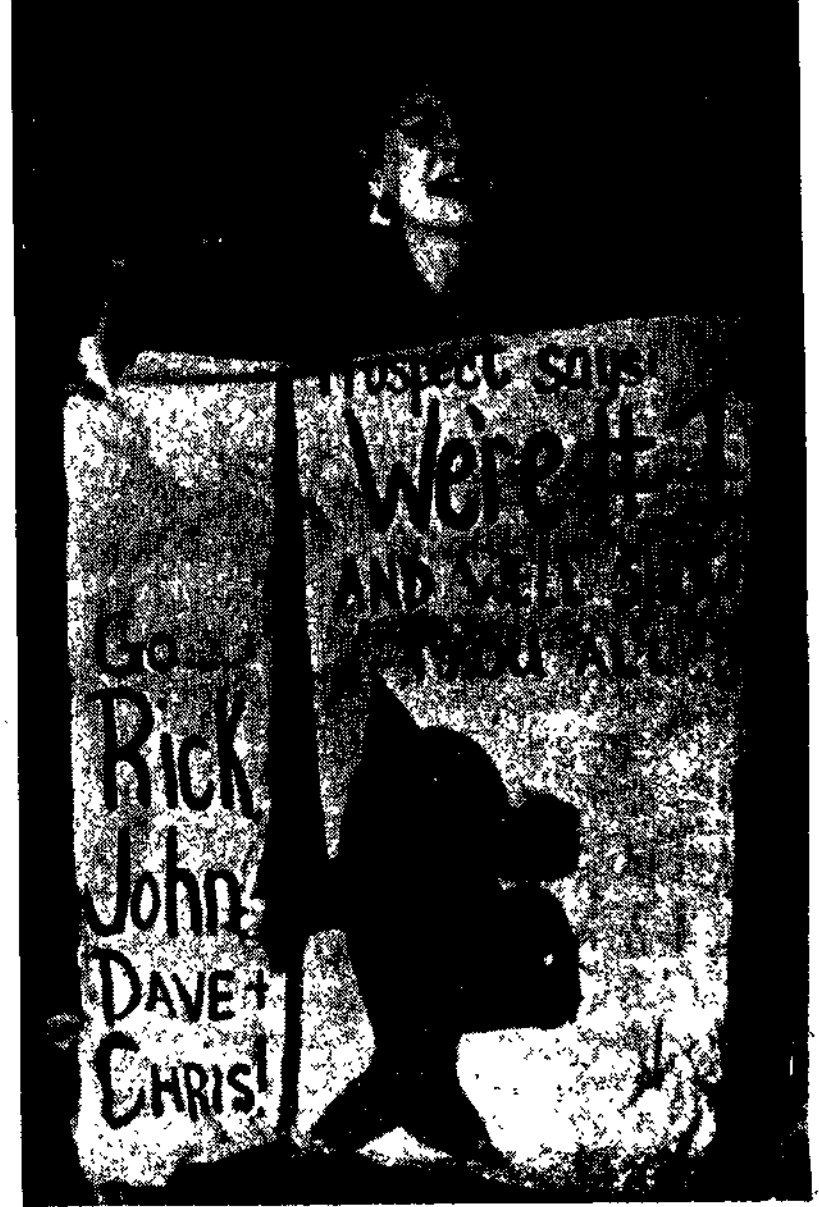

Watson's glad to have all of his boys. Capek, this year's junior star and leader, moved to Hinsdale in the sixth grade.

"The beginning of the dynasty (1967) had mostly original residents," pointed out Paul. "My class is made up of mostly move-ins."

That has to be a frightening fact for the state's swim coaches. This solid group of sophomores and juniors, coupled with a freshman team that has one boy who's breaking former super prep star John Kinsella's frosh records, means possibly three more titles in the offing.

And, as far as Paul Sigfusson's future is concerned, he appears to be one of the prime contenders to take over Salerno's title spot in 1974. Maybe for the new two years.

It's a shame the area had to lose such a potential star.

Salerno — a never satisfied champ

had a good time.

"You could see it was a bad year (for not having many top-notch backstrokers). I lucked out."

For the first time in the interview, Mike was partially wrong. It wasn't his fault that his top competitors weren't in there Saturday. And, as was mentioned before, he had beaten them both already.

Mike Salerno didn't luck out. No way. He earned that championship medal as much as any other titlist. Nobody set a state record this year.

By saying he lucked out he, just proves that he's championship caliber.

Only a champ wouldn't be satisfied with just winning. The great ones always continue to seek what is just beyond their grasp.

Powerful Maine South eliminates West, 81-60

Maine South strode away in huge chunks Tuesday night, eliminating sister school Maine West from the Class AA state basketball race.

Paced by 24 points from Bill Harbeck and 22 by Jerry Jones, the Hawks were 81-60 winners and never in trouble.

The Warriors led just once, 2-0, on the opening basket by John O'Connor. Buckets by Pete Boesen, Jones and Harbeck put the Hawks up, 6-4. They were never equalled again.

Maine West finished its season 11-12 overall and 9-5 in Central Suburban play, good for third in the South Division.

South's Hawks, co-league champions with New Trier West and Highland Park, moved to their 18th win against four defeats.

Maine South will face the winner of Wednesday evening's Maine East-Notre Dame game at 7:30 p.m. Friday for the Maine West regional championship.

Results of the East-Notre Dame game can be found elsewhere in today's Herald. East advanced to second round play by defeating Maine North, 61-42, in Tuesday's first game.

Maine South's easy victory over West was its sixth straight and third conquest of the Warriors this season. The Hawks had won 93-53 and 86-64 in Central Suburban play.

West was paced by senior All-Conference forward Joe Thimm who had 18 points in his final varsity performance. He scored 749 career points for the Warriors during two All-CSI seasons.

The Hawks led 16-10 at the quarter and 41-25 at halftime. West made it a better game the second half, losing that stanza only 40-35.

Other scorers for the Warriors were Doug Myers, 14, O'Connor 11, Chris Bouchée 8, Joe Prang 2, Jim Olsen 2, Paul Pesse 2, Andy Richardson 2 and Mark Drysch 1.

Remaining Maine South scorers were Tony Rebel 10, Jim Hirsch 3, Pete Schmelzer 7, Pete Boesen 6 and Bob Westman 4.

Donkey basketball comes to Maine East High School

The "Craziest Show on Earth" comes to town on March 10, at 7:30 p.m., when it's men and women vs. donkeys at Maine East High School.

The opposing teams will be pom pon and cheerleaders vs. faculty women in the first half and M-Club members vs. faculty men in the second half, in a game sponsored by the Maine East M-Club.

A second contest will feature the M-Club members vs. the faculty in a regulation basketball game.

The donkeys will be stubborn, as usual, sometimes a little contrary, and to put it mildly, sometimes a bit uncooperative.

The rules of the game are that you can only shoot while sitting on the donkey and recover loose balls while holding on to the donkey.

This is where the fun comes in. About the time a player goes to shoot, the donkey decides he has been on his back too long. The local "cowboy" will then show his skill as a rodeo star.

Trying to move the donkey two or three inches when going after a loose ball can sometimes seem like a city block. It will be a real challenge to the local men of strength. There will be thrills, spills, laughs and more laughs.

It's fun for members of the entire family. It's the basketball game of the year, where everyone goes home laughing.

Buy tickets in advance from any M-Club member or at the student office. Tickets will also be on sale at the gate Saturday, March 10.

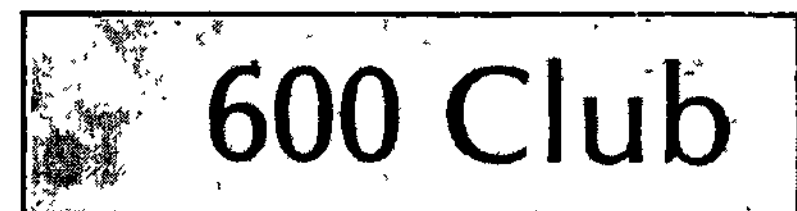

Ticket prices are 75 cents for grade school students and $1.25 for high school students and adults.

PRESSURE. This scene typified Tuesday night's opener in the Palatine Regional. The host Pirates pressed, forced turnovers, raced to a 19-point lead early in the second quarter, then survived a mad ending for a 54-53 upset over Conant. Here, Tracy Robertson tries to get rid of the ball and Scott Cole hounds him.

District survivors poised for sectional gymnastics

An army of 149 Mid-Suburban League troops will march to two state sectional gymnastics sites beginning tonight and extending through Saturday in their quest for a berth at the climactic 16th Annual State Finals at Prospect, March 16-17.

Conant and Niles West will host two of the four meets that directly determine who earns tickets to state. While the area's numbers are certainly impressive, it will be quality, rather than quantity that will emerge from the sectionals.

The Conant Sectional will be conducted in two evening sessions tonight and tomorrow (Friday) beginning at 7 p.m. Free exercise, side horse and horizontal bar will be contested tonight with trampoline, parallel bars and still rings scheduled for Friday.

The teams, with the number of qualifiers in parentheses, headed for the Conant Sectional include District Champions Hersey (20) and Rolling Meadows (17) in addition to Conant (16), Palatine (15), Wheeling (13), Prospect (13), Arlington (12), Fremd (11), and Schaumburg (4).

District Champ Elk Grove (20) and Forest View (8) are poised for competition at Niles West (Skokie) during a two-session affair Saturday. Three events will be run in the afternoon beginning at one o'clock with the final trio to be decided in the evening starting at seven.

The demanding sectional standards provide for only the top three places in each event to advance as "ranked" qualifiers into the state meet. In addition, 12 competitors in each event from the combination of the four sectionals who have the highest scores among those who are not ranked, will also be given the green light to the State Final meet.

Homewood-Flossmoor and Downers Grove South will also be sites for sectional competition this weekend.

Harper posts fine marks

Harper College's indoor trackmen recently got their season in gear with some fine individual performances in two informal meets. The Hawks of coach Bob Nolan are not blessed with great depth but have several men who figure to reach impressive times and distances.

The Hawks finished third in a 10-team meet at the University of Illinois to start the indoor season. Their 52 points trailed only Florentine Valley of St. Louis and DuPage.

Returning pole vault expert Tom Rambe was first in his specialty with 14 feet and Phil Lindberg, a Palatine grad, was third with 13-6. Bill Brown won the shot put with 47-6, John Geary was first in the two-mile run in 9:33, Mike DeLaBruere (like Geary a standout in cross country last fall) was second in the same event with 9:39, and Bill Bates was fifth in two events — the 1,000-yard run with 2:25 and 880 with 2:01.

In a more recent meet at North Central College, no team scores were kept but Harper picked up two firsts and two other places. Rambo again won the pole vault, improving to 14-4, and Brown took the shot with 46-2. In the two-mile Geary was third with 9:49 and DeLaBruere fourth with 9:53.

In its next competition Harper will be in a 15-team invitational at Morton College March 17.

Elk Grove trackmen breeze

Elk Grove had little trouble in doubling the score of Crown, 72-36, in an indoor track dual meet. The Grenadiers of coach Jim Wendler swept the top two places in six events and collected nine firsts.

Steve Busse was a double winner and also ran on the victorious four-lap relay team. He won the 60-yard high hurdles in :9.0 and the 50-yard dash in :5.9 and was second in the 80 lows in :7.4.

Brian Walther and Dave Jensen each won an event and also helped on the same winning relay. Walther took the pole vault with 10-6 and was second in the long jump with 19-0. Jensen ruled the low hurdles in :7.2 and was runner-up in the highs in :8.1.

Distance stars Brian Powell and Damian Archbold — past standouts in both track and cross country — dominated the long runs. Powell won the two-mile in 9:55.6 and was second in the mile in 4:46. Archbold took the latter event in 4:44.9 and was runner-up in the two-mile in 19:08.6.

The other winner was Mark Miezio with 47-7 in the shot put. Seconds went to Dick Radzic with 40-1 1/4 in the shot, Bob Nardello with :57.7 in the 440 and Joe Lawson with :5.9 in the 50. Lawson was also on the winning relay.

Elk Grove also defeated Crown in the frosh-soph meet, 64-45.

The Grenadiers will visit state power Thornton on Saturday.

IWF junior wrestling sectional Saturday morning at Maine West

One of eight Illinois Wrestling Federation sectionals for youngsters 14 years old or younger will be held this Saturday at Maine West.

Two contestants from each of 16 weight classes will qualify for the Illinois state championship meet to be held Saturday, March 17, at Maine North.

Over 2,000 entrants are expected at this Saturday's eight Illinois sectionals. Wrestling begins at 10 a.m. at Maine West. Finals will be held during the afternoon.

Other sectionals will be held at sites in Chicago, Carpentersville, Centralia, DeKalb, Joliet, Sterling and Tinley Park.

Last year's group of Illinois winners represented the United States at the Pan-American games in Mexico City. They came home with the world trophy. The Maine West sectional is being coordinated by Ron Silverstein, wrestling coach at Apollo junior high in Des Plaines.

At Elk Grove Bowl

Northern lands Streich, Mincey

Bob Streich

Dan Mincey

Two linebackers from Elk Grove High School's undefeated 1972 football team have signed letters of intent to attend Northern Illinois University.

They are 6-2, 205-pound Bob Streich and 6-1, 205-pound Dan Mincey. Mincey also starred as an offensive guard and was an all-Herald area selection.

Both were two-year standouts for Greendale teams which won two consecutive Mid-Suburban League titles and lost just one game in two years covering 17 games. Elk Grove was 9-0-0 last season and owns a 15-game winning streak. Mincey and Streich helped Elk Grove post an amazing total of just 660 yards yielded on the ground for the entire season, the second-best defensive performance against the run in area history.

Northern finished with a 7-4 record last season. The Huskies were formerly a member of the Midwestern Conference which disbanded this year. NIU will compete as an independent as the situation now stands.

Lion Michuda picks Wisconsin

Andy Michuda, a member of the Herald's all-area football team and a standout on St. Viator's powerful outfit, will attend the University of Wisconsin in the fall.

Michuda at 6-2, 212, was a defensive end who was credited with 47 solo tackles and two fumble recoveries. He was one of the big reasons why St. Viator held opponents to seven or less points in eight of 10 games.

Vietnam returnee drama won't be shown

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A television drama about the callous reception given a blind Vietnam veteran returning to his family has been withdrawn by CBS-TV from its Friday schedule after a reported 60 affiliate stations refused to run it.

The network said it would be "unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning POWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war."

THE PRODUCER of the telecast, Joseph Papp, whose New York Shakespeare Festival organization did the drama, called CBS-TV's action "prior censorship."

The play, "Sticks and Bones," adapted from a prize-winning stage drama, depicts the relationship between the blinded veteran and his father, mother and younger brother in angry, satirical terms.

CBS-TV said it was postponing "Sticks and Bones," not canceling it.

PAPP SAID: "I don't accept that as far as I'm concerned, postponement is a word for backing down." He added that he doesn't think the network will put the drama on, even though it has the rights to it for two years.

A telegram to CBS-TV affiliate stations from network president Robert Wood said:

"In light of recent developments, many of us both at the network and among the stations are now convinced that ... presensation on the air of 'Sticks and Bones' at this time might be unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning POWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war."

The telegram added: "Never has there been a greater or more serious and responsible sense of concern expressed by our affiliates about a projected program and the timing of its broadcast."

SAID PAPP: "Wood told me the affiliates in great numbers don't want it. I told him, 'You have the responsibility to put it on. If you knuckle down to this, you are a party to the whitening away of the First Amendment'."

"He said the mood of the country is such, with the returning prisoners, that people are not ready for this thing, that they are hostile to it ... I said I don't think anyone has the right to deny anyone the right to watch TV. I consider this prior censorship. People can turn the dial. They don't have to watch the show."

A network spokesman, asked for Wood's response, said the CBS-TV president stands on the telegram, which added that the play will be rescheduled "when the context of its showing will be less distressing and its possible application to actual events less immediate."

Writers' strike may mean reruns

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television writers, seeking $12,000-per-hour dramatic script, went on strike against producers and studios Tuesday in a dispute which could bring on a year of TV reruns...

The Writers Guild of America West, which supplies scripts for almost all network specials and weekly series, threw pickets around all the major studios and independent producers early Tuesday morning.

Guild President Ronald MacDougal said guild members were willing to hold out for six months or a year to win their point.

"This is the first time the union has struck in a dozen years," he said. "The last time we were out eight months before the dispute was settled."

"But unemployment among writers is endemic. We were offered a 5 per cent raise but turned it down. It's not adequate."

MacDOUGAL, husband of comedienne Nanette Fabray, said the basic wage for an hour dramatic show for television is $4,500, but only a limited number of such scripts are sold each season by the 2,900 membership.

Comedy writers are paid slightly more, earning $3,500 for a half-hour script. The guild is seeking $12,000 per script plus an end to seasonal employment.

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a widow in my late 60s and in fair health. I would like to know why I have low blood pressure in my left arm and high blood pressure in my right arm.

Dear Reader — Of course, I don't know how much difference in pressure you actually have between the two arms. Small variations in pressure are common. Also, in people whose blood pressure fluctuates rapidly, the difference may be evidence of the lability of the blood pressure. The doctor can eliminate this possibility by repeating the pressure after the lower reading is obtained in one arm.

Assuming that you do have a significant difference in blood pressure in the two arms which is not just a fluctuation, then one has to think of some obstruction of the arteries. The artery to the right arm is the first artery to come directly from the aortic arch (the main artery that carries blood from the heart to most of the body). The artery at the other arm originates from this main aortic arch artery a little farther along. If there is an obstruction in the arch between the origin of these two arteries, it is usually situated in such a place that the blood pressure will be higher in the right arm (before the obstruction) than it is in the left arm (beyond the obstruction).

One common cause of an obstruction in the aortic arch between the two arteries is a birth defect, technically called coarctation of the aorta. I would be very much surprised if this was your problem in view of your age, and since apparently such a diagnosis has never been made. If you do, however, you should also have lower blood pressure in both legs as compared to your right arm. I would also expect to see a fairly large pulsation at the bottom of your throat, just at the top of the breastbone. Such large pulsations occur because the aortic arch is enlarged before the obstruction.

If you do NOT have this type of birth defect, one has to look for other causes for obstruction in the artery leading to the left arm. These can be caused by muscles or ligaments that press on the arteries in this area, and sometimes even the collarbone (clavicle) or an extra rib from a neck vertebra may cause pressure. Then, of course, there is the possibility that you do have an obstruction within the opening of the artery to the left arm, perhaps from a buildup of fatty deposits causing artery blockage. If any cause for blockage occurs in the artery to the arm alone and your blood pressure is truly high in the right arm, then your blood pressure should be high in both legs as well.

It seems to me that you have an important problem which hasn't been resolved which needs careful medical evaluation. If you truly have high blood pressure, you may need treatment for that. If you have something like arteriosclerotic blockage of the artery to your left arm, perhaps some examination and possible treatment of the problem also is indicated. If you have a birth defect causing an obstruction in the aortic arch between the two arteries to the arm and have done this well until your late sixties without evidence of important complications, it may be well to do nothing. In any case, you will need a good medical examination to make a proper diagnosis.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Sir Dinadan was the worst bridge player of the knights of the round table, but he knew enough about the game to raise the peerless Lancelot whenever he got the chance. Therefore, Dinadan wasted no time getting to six no-trump after Lancelot's opening two-no-trump.

The wily Mordred, sitting West, saw no reason to make a fancy lead and put the jack of hearts on the table.

Lancelot won with the king and promptly led his seven of clubs. He had planned to make the well known safety play of a low club from dummy. This is a sort of non-finesse since he would be playing a card that could not win the trick but he would also be insuring his contract against four clubs in the West hand.

As we said, that was his plan, but the wily Mordred was just as familiar with this safety play as Lancelot, so Mordred produced the queen of clubs with his most nonchalant air.

Almost any bridge player could be pardoned for going up with a high club. But not Lancelot. He had known Mordred a long time so the peerless one played the same low club from dummy he had intended to play in the first place.

"Gadzooks!" cried Mordred. "Verily thou art too good a bridge player."

Miss Schneider is a member of the Association of Operating Room Nurses, and has been a member of the association's board of directors. She has also been secretary of the group, chairman of the hospital's committee, member of the nominating committee and currently is a member of the committee organizing the hospital's duties for the 20th Annual Congress for the association held this March.

Social Security and You

Q. I am 67 years old and I haven't received any social security checks since May of 1972, when I returned to work. I have already filed my income tax for 1972 which showed how much I earned. My neighbor told me that because I received social security checks for the first part of the year, I must file an annual report with social security. Is this correct?

A. Yes, your neighbor is correct. You must file an annual report of your 1972 earnings if 1) you earned more than $1,680 in 1972 and 2) you received any social security benefits. The annual report for social security is different from your income tax return. It must be filed in addition to the income tax return if the two conditions mentioned above are true. Note: the allowable earnings for 1973 has been raised from $1,680 to $2,100.

Q. My wife and I recently became covered under Medicare. I understand that we must meet a $60 deductible under the medical insurance part of Medicare. Can I put my wife's bills and my bills together to be applied towards this deductible?

A. No, each of you must meet the $60 deductible. Medicare will begin paying an individual after this deductible is met.

Q. In a couple of months, my 14-year-old son is going to start a part-time job working as a stock boy. Should he get a social security card before he starts working?

A. Yes. Your son's employer will need his number as soon as he starts working. Your son should apply immediately for a number at any social security office. He should allow several weeks for his social security card to arrive because his application must be screened against social security's national record center in Baltimore, Maryland to make sure that a number was not previously issued to him.

A special reminder to all social security beneficiaries who earned more than $1,680 in 1972 — an annual report of earnings must be filed with the Social Security Administration by April 16, 1973. No report is necessary if an individual did not work or if he worked and earned less than $1,680. In 1973 an individual can earn $2,100 and not have to file an annual report.

Big Yankee wife swap knows no bounds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interest in baseball took a great upward leap this week with the news that two left-handed pitchers for the New York Yankees had traded families.

The wife and two children of Mike Kekich are now living with Fritz Peterson, whose wife and two children lived for a time with Kekich.

I don't think this is exactly the sort of thing the American League had in mind when it adopted the new "designated pinch hitter" rule.

But it could go a long way toward restoring baseball to its former status as "the national pastime."

At any rate, it may add a whole new dimension to the "training camp briefs" that are filed each day from the pre-season outposts in Florida.

SUCH AS:

Fort Lauderdale — Reserve outfielder Bimmy Saltlick of the New York Yankees announced today that he and infielder Henry Napper of the Boston Red Sox had traded grandmothers.

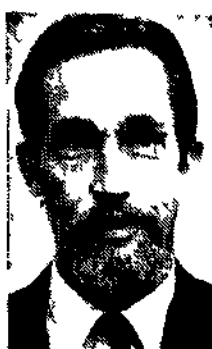

Saltlick said it was a straight inter-family transaction with no cash involved. Both players stand to benefit from the trade.

Napper's granny loves to bake strawberry pandowdy which Napper, who has to watch his waistline, can't eat. But Saltlick dotes on all kinds of pastries.

Saltlick's granny, on the other hand, is a health food nut who can be counted on to send Napper many gift boxes of homemade crunch granola, a nonfattening cereal, while he is away from home on road trips.

Daytona Beach — The biggest kinkfolk trade of the season was completed today in a three-way swap involving Virgil Nip-tucket of the Phillies, Delbert Dalper-dang of the Expos and Preston Thawout of the Pirates.

Nip-tucket traded an uncle and two nephews to Dalper-dang, who acquired the rights to Thawout's maiden aunt Tillie.

Thawout obtained from Dalper-dang a half-sister, a niece and a second cousin. In addition, Thawout assumed the obligation of sending birthday presents to Dalper-dang's godson.

Nip-tucket, a bachelor, obtained mothers-in-law from both Thawout and Dalper-dang, plus getting Thawout's step-father.

St. Petersburg — Amos Seersocket, younger brother of utility outfielder Bernhard Seersocket of the New York Mets, has demanded that he be traded.

But Bernhard, who would like to pick up another mother and a new kid sister, said he had been unable to make a deal.

Tampa — Fermus Augg, who has given his unconditional release as the great uncle of catcher Lemuel Shagworth of the Minnesota Twins, has been signed as a free agent brother-in-law by Lancelot Mistlefoot of the Houston Astros.

Skylab flight covers to be available

The U.S. Navy's Manned Spacecraft Recovery forces in the Atlantic and Pacific will catch and cancel philatelic mail to commemorate NASA's Skylab II manned space flight.

Skylab I, an orbiting laboratory, will be launched April 30. Three astronauts will be launched from Cape Kennedy in a Saturn IB (Skylab II) on the following day.

The special Skylab covers will be processed through coordinators at Norfolk, Va. and Honolulu, Hawaii. The names of the primary recovery ship and the units participating in the mission will be released at a later date.

To receive your Skylab covers, follow these directions closely:

Send only two covers to each coordinator. If more than two are received, the remainder will be returned to the collector unprocessed.

Be sure and place your correct address on the covers with sufficient postage to mail them back to you. They must be stamped; cash, checks or money orders received in lieu of postage will not be accepted.

Covers will be canceled on the date of splashdown (about May 29) but must be received at the coordinators by May 1.

Covers received after May 1 will be returned unprocessed.

Only standard size covers, 3 5/8x6 1/2 inches, will be accepted. A three-inch square should be allowed on the left-hand side of the envelope so the cachet may be applied.

Addresses for the coordinators are: Atlantic: "Skylab II Covers, Task Force 140, Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va. 23511" and Pacific: "Chief-in-Charge (Skylab II), Task Force 138, Navy Terminal Post Office, Fleet Post Office, San Francisco, Calif. 94619."

THE UNITED nations postal Administration withdrew from sale the F.S.20 postal card on Jan. 1.

First day cancellations of the UN postal stationary items numbered 85,600 for the 9-cent post card; 84,800 for the 15-cent post card and 85,500 for the 15-cent air letter. These items were released Oct. 16, 1972.

TODAY'S PHOTOS are from the Canada Post Office series honoring the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police being released tomorrow, March 9. Space limitations prohibited their publication in last week's column.

The 9-cent stamp commemorates the trek of 300 recruits across the western frontier in 1874 and honors G. A. French, the Mounties' first commissioner.

The 10-cent stamp symbolically portrays the spectrograph and represents the up-to-date devices used in crime detection by the Canadian police force.

Collecting Coins
by Mort Reed

With the issuance of their Silver Medal in 1972, the Sovereign Nation of the Crow Tribe assumed its rightful place in the Indian Tribal Series. Part of the information needed to complete this release was not delivered in time to allow for a regular announcement through most numismatic columns. But we have been assured that all regular subscribers will be accommodated, either by the Indian Tribal Series office in Phoenix, Ariz., or by the Crow Headquarters.

The Crow people are proud but highly reserved and while they enjoy a sophisticated inner tribal culture, they readily decline any attempt to dilute that culture with so-called white man's refinement. They still cling pretty much to older tribal dress codes and speech, with "English" accepted as the second language. But being a highly intelligent people, they have not allowed their economy, education and religious pursuits to become bogged down with tribal resentment.

AT ONE TIME the Crow was considered strictly big-game hunters, but with the signing of the Treaty of Friendship with the United States in 1825, the Crow life style began to change rapidly.

In 1868 tribal land holdings were depleted from 38 million acres to 9 million acres which eliminated many of the big bison herds, forcing the Crows to turn from hunting to agriculture and ranching as a means of survival.

A transition that would have spelled doom for many whites as well as Indians. But in the case of the Crow there was a special rapport between man and mother earth that made the new association fruitful. To bear out my point I was able to secure a copy of the Crow Invocation. Read it and you will see what I mean.

"Mother Earth, I am offering next this pipe of peace to you. May our lives on you be long and happy ones. Do not permit us to travel crooked paths, nor let any of our trails go astray. And may our mocassins follow the trail of Beauty forever."

The past and present, and plans for the future of these people are outlined in the book "The Crow People" by Dale K. McGinnis, that accompanies each of the pure silver Coin-Medals. The book and the medal have matching serial numbers with a limited edition of 15,000 of each.

Book and medal may be purchased in person at the Crow Headquarters, Crow Agency, Mont., or ordered by mail from Indian Tribal Series, 2937 West Indian School Road, Phoenix, Ariz. 85017.

WE HAVE received many phone calls and letters asking for an ordering address for: 1) 1973 American Revolution Bicentennial Medals and First Day Covers, and 2) the Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins latest revision.

In most cases these addresses have been given in previous articles and have either been lost or misplaced. As a service to our readers we suggest that in the future when such information is needed, a call to their newspaper will usually get the desired response.

Veterans' News

Q—My wife served in the Marine Corps during World War I. She passed away several years ago, but her illness and death had nothing to do with her military service. I hear there is some kind of new law allowing widowers like me to get a VA pension. Is this true?

A—Yes. This is Public Law 92-540. But there is an income limitation for the pension.

Q—My husband was killed in the Army in Vietnam and I would like to enroll in a well known university in Paris, France. Will VA help me do this?

A—Yes. If you are eligible for assistance under the Dependents' Educational Assistance Program, you may now attend approved foreign institutions of higher learning.

Q—My brother is blind from a Vietnam war injury. He's home now but we can't seem to get him interested in living again. Isn't VA doing anything about young men like him?

A—VA recently entered into an agreement with the Blind Veterans Association for B.V.A. representatives, themselves blind, to augment VA services to blinded veterans.

Q—My husband was totally disabled as the result of an accident while he was in the Air Force. With him and the children to look after, I can't leave home to go to school so I can get a job. Can VA arrange for me to go to school at night or take a correspondence course?

A—Yes. Women in your situation are eligible for education benefits under more liberal rules under the new education law. Please discuss this with the veterans assistance officer at the nearest VA regional office.

Do-It-Yourself

Your garage, standing out there completely surrounded by the weather, takes a beating all winter long. Such a lightly constructed building is likely to need more maintenance than your home.

Most garages have thin walls, are not insulated and are unheated. First thing in the spring, check it over to see how much damage the weather did.

Open up the doors and windows to let the garage air out and get dry and make a careful inspection of the building some warm spring day.

Inspect from the ground up. Use a screwdriver or a pocketknife and probe the bottom boards. These are the ones likely to rot from heavy snows and water leaving them submerged.

Siding that is rotted or warped should be replaced.

ON THE INSIDE, take a look at the plate at the base of the wall. Stains on the floor will indicate that water has leaked in. Calk these seams and any others through which you can see daylight. Inspect all the walls carefully on the inside for open seams between pieces of siding.

The wood plates are bolted to the concrete base. It's a good idea to check the nuts on these bolts. Try giving them a turn with a wrench.

Snow and rain generally enter under an overhead door. There's a special rubber weatherstrip you can nail to the bottom of the door to prevent this. Lacking such a weatherstrip, you can make one by slitting an old length of garden hose and nailing it to the bottom of the door.

If the inside and base of the door are not painted, treat these areas with linseed oil. Do the same for panel edges that are exposed when the door folds up.

Check all painted surfaces. Scrape and sand wherever the paint is cracked or peeling. Plan to paint when warm weather comes. Prime all the spots you sand.

IF THERE ARE stains where nailheads have rusted through the paint, sand these areas and spot-prime with shellac or aluminum paint.

If the garage has gutters, check them for rust. Scrape, sand and repaint with rust-preventive paint. If the downspout is not connected to a drain, then install a splash block. This will keep the water away from the foundation and wall.

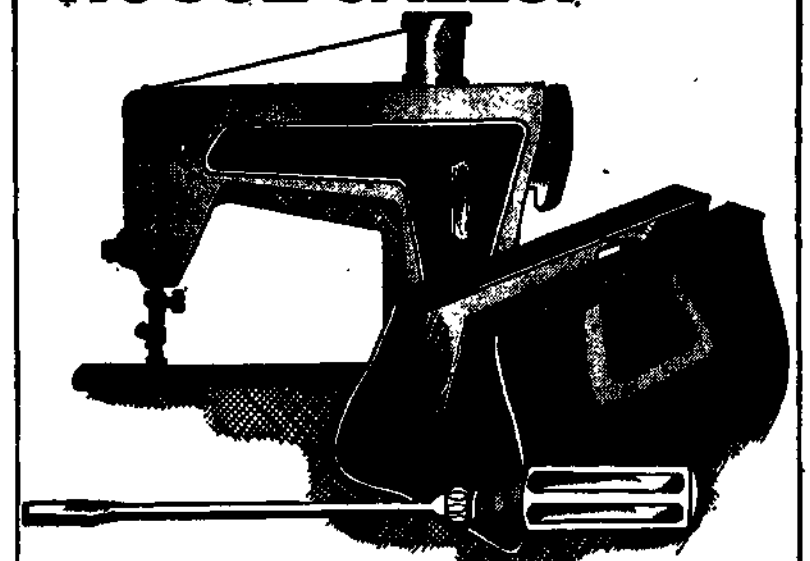

Take a look at the roof. Plan to replace any shingles that are damaged or blown loose. Cover new nailheads with roofing asphalt.

If your garage roof is covered with roll roofing, use asphalt cement to fill cracks and reinforce seams. If the roofing has been on for some time, you may want to brush on a coating over the entire area.

Liberty plates commemorate nation's 200th birthday

VALUABLE HEIRLOOM plates commemorating our nation's bicentennial in 1976 are available through members of all area federated women's clubs. The series of four decorative plates have been designed and produced by Fenton Art Glass Co. of Williamstown, W. Va., where secrets, skills and know-how of the glassmakers' art have been handed down through the family. Patrick Henry is portrayed on the first plate, available this year.

The first in a series of four collectors' plates commemorating the nation's upcoming 200th birthday is now available through members of federated women's clubs.

The series, "Portrait of Liberty," tells in chronological order the four major movements of the American Revolution. Produced in limited quantities the General Federation of Women's Clubs expects the series to become a cherished heirloom and a valuable collector's item.

The first of the series, "The Seeds Are Sown," was issued Jan. 1, 1973. It portrays Patrick Henry with the inscription, "Give me liberty or give me death." The dates 1776-1976 are inscribed also.

Others in the series will be released Jan. 1 of the three following years and on July 4, 1976, the original molds of the plates will be destroyed in a public ceremony in Independence Hall.

The second plate, "Independence Is Declared," pictures the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the inscription, "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"IN GOD WE trust" is the inscription on the third plate which pictures a praying George Washington at Valley Forge. This plate is called, "A Test of Courage."

The final plate pictures the Liberty Bell with the inscription, "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land."

Additional inscriptions on the back of each plate tell the story of the picture and inscription on the face.

The plates are available in antique powder blue and Early American milk glass, and sell for $10 the year of their release. Prices the following years will increase progressively and after July 4, 1976, the prices will be $15 or market bid.

For each of the years of the project and indefinitely after 1976 a service of selling the plates previously purchased will be offered by the General Federation.

Anyone interested in purchasing the 1973 plate may contact any member of a federated woman's club.

SECOND AND third plates in the series of four will be released Jan. 1, 1974, and Jan. 1, 1975, respectively. The last will be available Jan. 1, 1976, to July 4, 1976. Selling at $10 the year of release, each plate is expected to have a market value of $15 on July 4, 1976, and thereafter.

Best diet plan is a hobby

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reach for a hobby instead of a chocolate-covered grasshopper or some other munchie if you want to lose weight.

Opt for wood carving or any hobby that busies your hands, maybe makes them dirty and preferably needs to be done standing — if you are serious about whittling your waistline. Skip the gumdrops and chocolate-covered everything.

Somehow, standing at your hobby, soiling your hands while working helps you look down your nose at potato chips or a plate heaped with hunks of cheese and fattening crackers. It enables you to turn your back on all kinds of snacks.

Two doctors who found hobbies helped them lose up to 50 pounds and keep it off (one for eight years) recommend the hobby-instead-of-a-sweet therapy for reducing.

Drs. Seymour Isenberg and L. Melvin Eiting, of Teaneck, N.J., limit their practice to persons who want to reduce. Preaching what they practiced successfully in their own lives, they prescribe hobbies — not the collecting kind (bottle tops, coins, stamps).

"We believe in the kind of hobby that keeps the hands busy, gets you a little dirty and keeps you standing," Dr. Isenberg said.

TAKING UP making stained glass things helped Dr. Isenberg lose. Silversmithing helped Dr. Eiting.

"Most fat persons eat out of boredom and find it helpful to keep the hands and mouth busy snacking," Dr. Isenberg said. "Hunger is secondary. Our RX is keep the hands in motion at your hobby."

Making something also helps to boost the ego. The chronic muncher finds that with the self-image brightened there is less of a tendency to get such reinforcement through food the body doesn't need.

Dr. Isenberg believes it is vital to get the hands soiled at your hobby. "Before you can eat then," he said, "you have to go through a process — washing the hands. It provides a buffer zone between the hobby and eating. It makes you stop and think."

Both Drs. Eiting and Isenberg are avid hobbyists. Dr. Isenberg's wife, Anita, is president of the Stained Glass Club of America. Dr. Eiting is such a whiz at silversmithing that he appeared at a New York demonstration of handcrafts, sponsored by the Hobby Industry Association of America.

THEY RECOMMEND silversmithing, making jewelry out of silver, and stained glass hobbies. Woodcarving is another on their list of preferred hobbies.

"We give our patients a choice of hobbies," Dr. Isenberg said. "First we convince them how important it is to keep the hands busy at something besides eating during the peak boredom hours in the evening."

Tomorrow's dream home

Technology will change it

by DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your dream house: what will it look like when you finally get to buy or build it a few years from now?

It's most unlikely to be a plastic bubble or any other "far out" concept. In fact, it probably will look pretty much like those on the scene today.

But it won't be like most of today's houses. The biggest changes in homes will be in building materials.

"Housing design is always evolutionary, never revolutionary," says Byron C. Radaker, president of Certain-teed Products Corp., a major building products manufacturer.

"New building materials are being developed that are more efficient than traditional materials, that are maintenance free and less costly for the homeowner, that lessen environmental pollution and conserve natural resources. Some new products are being made from recycled materials."

It is changes in building technology that will make the biggest difference in homes in the next few years. "That and changes in consumer demand," he said.

HOMEBUYERS have been looking for maximum size for the dollars spent, Radaker says. And builders have been giving them just that.

Increasingly, he feels, home buyers will be looking not just for floor space, but for the best value for dollars spent. This, he says, means a demand for quality and longevity in the products that go into a home.

The home you build or buy in the future is almost certain to have a maintenance-free exterior. It will be extremely well insulated, probably have thermal pane glass and heating and cooling systems designed to conserve energy.

It may have an aerobic sewage disposal system — rather than the often inefficient plumbing septic system, or inadequate municipal system.

The treated wastewater will be discharged into the ground as a clear, harmless effluent. You may even use it for irrigating your flower beds and vegetable garden since it retains its nutrients.

A major consideration will be sound conditioning. People are realizing just how detrimental noise can be.

YOUR HOUSE probably will include some building materials made of recycled materials. Even now the paper that carries asphalt shingles is recycled waste wood, paper and rags. The asphalt is a residue and the rock granule a waste material.

Discussing new products now coming into general use, Radaker cited the many plastics, some of which look more like wood than wood itself, and are being produced at lower cost.

He suggested, for instance, that wooden shutters will become a custom, rather than a stock item within five years, being replaced in general use by the plastics.

Various types of heavy plastic also will be used for window frames and jambs, as will plastic-wrapped wood, which combines the thermal qualities of wood with the maintenance-free advantages of plastic.

Extruded structural foam is being introduced for molding products and, he said, one of the most exciting new products in home construction in recent years is vinyl siding — a virtually maintenance free exterior. Although it has been on the market for a few years, its relatively high price has restricted its use as is the case when new products are introduced.

RADAKER SAID Certain-teed, and the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, a non-profit research organization, have developed in a joint venture two new building products and several others still are on the drawing board.

Going into production shortly, he said, is a new Beam Board — a wood-like reinforced vinyl-covered paper fiber that will make interior wood-type paneling feasible in almost any home — and Franklin Fiber, a whisker fiber, which is flame-retardant and has a host of physical properties as a reinforcement agent, which can enhance the physical properties of other materials.

Radaker said Certain-teed also is marketing a new Fiberglass-based roofing shingle which has the aesthetics of wood shingles, but carries a Class A fire rating from Underwriters Laboratories.

New, too, is a brick-like building material composed of recycled waste, such as industrial tailings of granite, asbestos or glass.

ANOTHER BIG construction item made of synthetic materials, Radaker said, is plastic pipe of a wide variety that is less costly, easier to install and works more efficiently than traditional pipe. It is being used now for gas distribution lines, water distribution lines, underground communications conduits, sewer lines and irrigation projects.

Rather than radical change ahead, Radaker feels, "we're just about gone full cycle. We're concentrating on the basics again."

'Life is coming to junior club

"Life" comes to the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m., at St. Mark's Recreation Center, 206 S. Wille, Mount Prospect.

"Life" is an eccumenical group of 67 high school students from 15 denominations throughout the community who spread God's Word through music, according to the Juniors.

Student organized and produced "Life" is the second production following "Tell It Like It Is" last year.

Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club meets once a month from September to April and is dedicated to service projects. Anyone desiring further information regarding this organization may call Mrs. Charles Whittemore, 394-3294.

AUTOGRAPHED COPY of "Reach to Recovery" is especially interesting to Mrs. Eldon Anderson, Arlington Heights, and Mrs. David Waltman, Palatine. Both are volunteers for the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery program, calling on mastectomy patients in area hospitals.

Luncheon honors callers for Reach to Recovery

Volunteer callers for the American Cancer Society's Reach to Recovery program were invited to lunch Saturday at Mrs. David Waltman's home in Palatine. Mrs. Waltman is coordinator for the program. The volunteers she hosted are all from the northwest suburbs.

Since Reach to Recovery started in the area, these women have been visiting mastectomy patients in four area hospitals to give them reassurance and an emotional boost.

In recognition of the services they have given, each will be receiving a book, "Reach to Recovery," written and personally autographed by Therese Lasser, founder of the program. The books were purchased with a portion of the memorial gift from the husband of the late Dorothy Foss, former Illinois Division Reach to Recovery coordinator.

AT MRS. WALTMAN'S luncheon the volunteers had an opportunity to discuss new ideas and materials for the recovery program.

Those attending were Clara Schacher and Mrs. Robert Stahl, Des Plaines; Mrs. Jack Schrage, Mrs. Arden Grossnickle, Nancy Manos, Mrs. Milton Chapin and Mrs. Eldon Anderson, all of Arlington Heights; Mrs. Marvin Lubinski and Dorothy Hermann, both of Palatine; and Mrs. Delbert Miller of Inverness.

Five other area women involved in the hospital visitation program but who were not able to attend the luncheon are Mrs. Alfred Bowyer, Prospect Heights; Mrs. Oscar Gruber, Wheeling; Mrs. Brad Shinkle, Barrington; Mrs. Ronald Smith, Mount Prospect; and Mrs. James Watson, Rolling Meadows.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

This column has frequently urged consumers to contact the Better Business Bureau (BBB) as their first recourse in a dispute with a merchant. We have pointed to the BBB's fairly high rate of settlement of consumer problems, despite their lack of legal authority.

Now, however, the BBB is getting more teeth. In a number of cities across the country, BBBs are implementing arbitration boards to settle disputes.

Under the system, all merchants who accept or continue membership in the BBB must agree to allow all complaints against them which are not resolved through the bureau's informal complaint procedure to be submitted to binding arbitration.

In Seattle, where the system was recently initiated, arbitrators are volunteers recruited by a panel of lawyers and businessmen, thus eliminating any expense to consumers.

According to James Baumhart of the Chicago BBB, arbitration has been approved by the board of directors and will be set up here within the next two or three months.

The Federal Trade Commission has dismissed charges against the ITT Continental Baking Co. that it made false nutritional claims for Wonder Bread and Hostess snack cakes.

Wonder Bread commercials have been aimed at children, and according to the complaining charges, contained "aspirations for rapid and healthy growth."

In ruling on the case, the FTC judge recited a lot of analysis on the capacity of children to be skeptical about commercials, and concluded that by age 8, "children generally exhibit a clear, consistent and widespread reaction that television commercials cannot be taken as literally true."

This appears to me to be a reversal of the principle of truth in advertising and a bad precedent. It took a long time for government to reject the "buyer beware" philosophy in advertising, and to embrace the concept that advertisements ought to be truthful and informative statements about the real properties of a product.

This decision puts consumers back into the era of "You can't believe anything in an advertisement."

The new FTC commissioner, Lewis Engman, who replaces Chairman Miles Kirkpatrick, appears to have a good background for his new job as chief defender of consumer interests.

A graduate of Harvard Law School and former student of economics at the London School of Economics in England, he served as director of legislative affairs and general counsel for the President's Committee on Consumer Interests — better known as the Office of Consumer Affairs.

Engman later was named an assistant director of the President's Domestic Council, where his areas of concern were tax policy, antitrust and trade regulations, and school finance.

If you have any consumer problems or questions, write Monica Wilch in care of Paddock Publications, Box 290, Arlington Heights, 60006, or call 394-2300, Ext. 270.

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We've had some strange flying insects showing up recently — particularly in the kitchen. I caught one and examined it under a microscope. It is reddish brown, about a tenth of an inch long and has a head bent down at a right angle which gives it a humped appearance. I've discovered some in boxes of cereal-like foods and, if it didn't fly, I would say it looks just like a flour weevil. Do any weevils fly? And do you know what we might do? — Mrs. Daniel O.

Curiously, because there's been a run of letters about weevils, I've been checking with entomologists. And what you have is called a cigarette beetle. The treatment is the same as for weevils. Everything has to come out of the shelves. Spray thoroughly with diazinon, malathion or methoxychlor.

Throw away all infested foods, but if you're not sure about a box of food, put it in a plastic bag and leave it for 30 days (the life cycle of this type of insect egg). If nothing shows up after then, the food is clean.

To prevent any further infestations, this type of food should be stored in glass or metal containers — and try to keep flour, dust and fuzz off your shelves. This is precisely where the eggs are laid.

Dear Dorothy: I've just learned that even in the winter months when air conditioning isn't necessary, it's wise to turn it on once a week for five minutes or so to prevent the equipment from deteriorating. — A.B.T.

Dear Dorothy: It's much easier to open clay bottles and the tabs on orange juice cans with a small six-inch pliers. — Hazel Carey.

Thank you, Hazel. Those tabs on the juice have been a bugaboo for me. With the pliers, it's become a cinch.

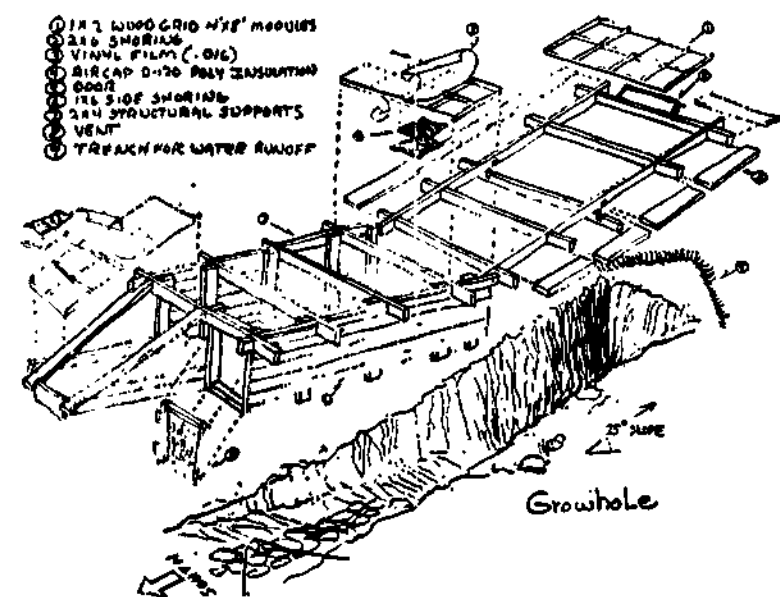

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The Potting Shed by Mary B. Good

There are the greenhouse and the pot-hole, but have you heard of the "grow-hole"?

The concept of the growhole is intriguing as an alternative to a greenhouse, which costs much dollars.

A growhole is just that — a hole in the ground that allows the gardener to cultivate vegetables and things in the winter. The fact that the sun is a source of free energy and the earth stores heat makes it possible. A growhole is something like a king-sized hotbed.

It helps if the site of the growhole is sloping: the side of a hill is great. Construction of a growhole means digging a hole that faces south to catch maximum sunlight. The hole is covered with vinyl that lets light in, but won't let heat out. The walls are shored up with 2 x 6 lumber, and the dirt walls and floor are kept wet to store enough heat to keep the hole warm through the night. Optimum areas of the country for a growhole are Missouri and points south, but that doesn't mean a gardener couldn't successfully grow the hardiest greens like radishes, carrots, onions, turnips, beets, etc., in a Chicago area growhole, especially with poly insulation.

COMPLETE directions are available for 25 cents from Biotechnic Press, P. O. Box 26091, Albuquerque, N.M. They explain the principle of the heat economy and solar energy bit, plus tell you what you need and how much it will cost, in the correspondence.

In a letter the growhole people told me they are trying to get Enco signs to use on their growholes (in the commune, perhaps?). They say that Enco is changing its signs to read "Exxon" all over the country and that these signs make ideal growhole covers. The Enco lettering can be removed with a thinner so that the plexiglas is transparent.

"Plexiglas of this size is very expensive," says Susanna Horton of Biotechnic Press. "We have gone to different sign companies to see if we could haul away the old ones, and they said contracts with Exxon obligated them to take the old Enco signs to the dump. Disgustingly wasteful," said Susanna. "The aluminum and Plexiglas in each sign is worth several thousand dollars, and there are over a million old Enco signs. Our nation's most plentiful resource is REFUSE and yet here at the city dump we aren't allowed to take anything."

MISS HORTON hopes others will join her in bringing this uncycling waste to the attention of the president of the corporation.

C. C. Garvin Jr., Executive Offices, Exxon Corp., 1251 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y.

Speaking of growhousing, here is a sneak preview of the geodesic redwood dome I'm hoping to put up come spring. It comes unassembled, but complete down to the screws and washers, and every part is color-coded for easy assembly (giggle).

My personal opinion is that the redwood dome is much more attractive than other conventional greenhouses. I've window-shopped. It's also stronger, cheaper ($500) and has alternative uses as a sauna, breakfast nook, jungle gym, cabana, gazebo, potting shed, overnight guest house, aviary and sun room. I'm adding a fieldstone foundation to mine, and the size I've picked out is 14 feet in diameter, 8 feet, 6 inches high with 150 square feet of floor area.

I'm not selling greenhouses, but if you're interested in greenhouse ideas, more information on redwood domes and others, drop me a line at The Potting Shed.

CHOPPED ONIONS, bacon and dill pickle strips make a tasty filling for Beef Roll Ups. The recipe is a favorite of Mrs. Robert Swanson, Mount Prospect, and makes excellent dinner fare. She rolls round steak around the filling ingredients then simmers the roll ups in bouillon after browning. The gravy has a unique hint of dill flavor.

Recipe clipper shares her main dish favorites

by LOIS SEILER

Clipping recipes and cooking is fun for Mrs. Robert E. Swanson of Mount Prospect, who finds it hard to resist a new food idea she might spot in a newspaper or magazine.

Today the procedure is reversed, and three of her favorite recipes are being featured for other homemakers to clip and enjoy. Each is a different meat recipe, and all are appealing main dishes.

Nice for a family or company meal are Beef Roll Ups, made with thin pieces of round steak. Along with chopped onions and bacon, Mae Swanson rolls up strips of dill pickle in the steak. After browning, the roll ups are simmered in bouillon.

"The meat becomes very tender, and the gravy has a mild dill flavor that tastes delicious over mashed potatoes," Mae said.

A unique recipe for ground beef is her Olive Hamburger Pie. As its name suggests, this entree consists of ground beef, olives, onions, and catsup baked in a pie shell with a topping of beaten eggs and cottage cheese. After baking, this dinner pie is garnished with additional sliced olives and cut in wedges to serve.

"There are two definite layers, as the cheese-egg mixture stays on top," Mae said. "It goes together in a hurry and makes a hearty family meal served with a tossed salad."

Another specialty of this homemaker is called Golden Chicken Breasts. It is surprisingly simple to prepare, consisting of chicken baked in mayonnaise seasoned with mustard and Worcestershire sauce. This mixture gives the chicken a different taste and keeps it tender and moist. Mae suggests baked potatoes, buttered asparagus and tossed salad as accompaniments.

Employed part time at Chicago Faucet Co. Mae finds that these recipes are easy enough for the working woman, and give variety to her menu planning. And they all make a hit with her husband, Bob and children, Judy, 14, and David, 11.

In addition to cooking, Mae is an accomplished seamstress and likes to read. A hobby which she and Bob have pursued for years is putting together intricate jigsaw puzzles, some of which have been framed for wall decorations in their family room.

BEEF ROLL UPS

2 pounds round steak,
1/4-inch thick
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

1 beef bouillon cube dissolved in 1 cup hot water
Trim fat from steak. Pound to 1/4-inch thickness using meat hammer or edge of a heavy plate. Cut into rectangular pieces. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Put 1 teaspoon onion, 1 teaspoon chopped bacon and 1 pickle strip on each piece of steak. Roll up and secure with toothpicks. Brown on all sides in melted steak fat.

When all are browned, add remaining onion, bacon, and pickle, chopped, and beef bouillon. Simmer, covered for one hour. Makes about 8 servings.

OLIVE HAMBURGER PIE

Paprika
Additional sliced olives for garnish

In skillet, brown beef and onion. Drain off any excess fat. Stir in flour, salt, pepper, catsup, and 1/2 cup olives. Spoon into pastry shell.

Mix together eggs and cottage cheese. Pour over meat mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes, or until top is lightly browned and set. Garnish with sliced olives. Cut in wedges to serve. Serves 4 to 6.

GOLDEN CHICKEN BREASTS

4 large whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
About one hour and ten minutes before serving, place chicken breasts, bone side down, in greased 15x10x1-inch pan. Start heating oven to 400 degrees.

In a bowl, combine mayonnaise, mustard and Worcestershire sauce. Spread all of it over top and sides of chicken breasts. Cover pan with foil. Bake 45 minutes. Remove foil and bake 15 minutes longer or until golden. Serve on heated platter garnished with sprigs of parsley. Serves 4.

New technique for easy lasagna

A homemade Italian dish using prepared foods is a simpler way to satisfy the family appetites. Italian foods are high on the list of ethnic favorites but some cooks shy from making some dishes from scratch because the old technique can be time consuming. A Lasagna Spinach Casserole is well worth the little time it takes to put together.

LASAGNA SPINACH CASSEROLE

1 package (1 pound, 7-7/8 ounce) complete lasagna dinner
1 package (10 ounce) chopped spinach, cooked and drained
2 tablespoons minced onion
1/2 pound Swiss cheese, cut in strips
Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Grease 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Cook lasagna noodles as package directs. Drain well. Mix spinach and onion together. Layer ingredients in pan as follows: noodles, sauce, Swiss cheese. Repeat layers until all ingredients are used. Bake for 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Age of cheese

You can tell the age of cheese by the sharpness of the flavor, says the California Farm Bureau. Cheese 30 to 90 days old has a mild flavor, from four to nine months the flavor is medium and a sharp flavor indicates the cheese is more than nine months old.

Late evening Russian tea party is easy with convenience foods

Dancing is as much a part of Russia as caviar! Whether it is a classical Bolshoi Ballet or an energetic, foot-stomping, whirling-through-the-air type of Siberian folk dance, dancing and going to the theatre to watch performers dance has always been a part of Russian culture.

The thought of such energetic dancing makes one thirsty for a refreshing drink. Russian Tea Punch is made with a Russian favorite — tea. For modern ease of preparation, instant tea is used with orange flavor instant breakfast drink and cinnamon. Served hot with triangular clove-studded lemon slices, the fruit flavor of the hot tea punch goes well with most desserts. It's an especially nice accompaniment for Dream Cake with Cherries Jubilee. Dream Cake is a delightful recipe — made by combining a package of cake mix with an envelope of whipped topping mix, eggs, and a cup of water. The light and delicious cake that results has a texture and flavor similar to a chiffon cake — with much less effort.

Both cake and punch are perfect for a late evening snack. All that needs to be done at serving time is to heat the Cherries Jubilee for the cake and stir boiling water into the tea punch mixture — a bit of elegance and a lot of convenience for the perfect and relaxed hostess.

RUSSIAN TEA PUNCH

1/3 cup orange-flavored instant breakfast drink
1/4 cup sugar
4 teaspoons instant tea
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
Dash of salt
2 quarts boiling water
Lemon slices
Whole cloves
Combine instant breakfast drink, sugar, instant tea, cinnamon, and salt in a large heatproof serving bowl. Add boiling water. Stir until dissolved. Cut lemon slices into triangles; insert 1 or 2 cloves in each triangle and float in punch. Serve in heatproof punch cups. Makes 2 quarts or 16 servings.

DREAM CAKE

1 package (2-layer size) yellow, white or devil's food cake mix

1 envelope whipped topping mix.
(do not whip)

4 eggs
1 cup cold tap water

Combine cake mix, whipped topping mix right from envelope, eggs, and water in "large bowl" of electric mixer. Blend until moistened. Beat at medium speed for 4 minutes. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch Bundt pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes or until cake tester inserted into center of cake comes out clean. Cool in pan 15 minutes. Then loosen from sides and center tube with knife and gently remove cake. Finish cooling on rack.

CHERRIES JUBILEE

1 package (10 oz.) frozen sweet cherries
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
Dash of cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon rum extract
Thaw cherries; drain, reserving the syrup. Combine sugar and cornstarch in small saucepan. Add cinnamon and reserved syrup. Heat, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened and clear. Remove from heat. Add rum extract and cherries. Serve warm over cake. Makes about 3 servings.
Note: Recipe may be doubled.

Pickles add zest to hamburgers

A hamburger, the king of sandwiches should always be served with its loyal companion, the pickle.

To remind homemakers of this unique combination, March has been designated International Pickle and Hamburger Month. Celebrate with these new hamburger ideas developed by home economists for the pickle pickers of the world.

The first suggestion is a jumbo Hamburger Club Sandwich, a hefty stack of toasted sandwich bread, lettuce, tomato, bacon, a square hamburger and sweet fresh cucumber pickles.

The popular cheeseburger has been given a new taste, too. Gruyere cheese is used for a change of flavor, and the cheese is tucked inside the burger along with sweet mixed pickles. The spicy pickle flavor is literally cooked into the meat as it broils.

HAMBURGER CLUB SANDWICHES

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 12 slices white sandwich bread, toasted
- Mayonnaise
- Shredded lettuce

- 8 thin slices tomato
- 12 slices bacon, cooked crisp
- 1 1/3 cups sweet fresh cucumber pickles (about)

Additional pickle slices
Lightly mix together beef, salt and pepper; shape into 4 square thin hamburgers 1/2 inch larger than slice of bread. (If bread measures 3 1/2 x 4 inches, make hamburger 4 x 4 1/2 inches.) Broil 3 to 4 inches from source of heat, 4 to 5 minutes on each side, or to desired doneness. Stack sandwich in this order: toast, mayonnaise, lettuce, tomato, bacon, toast, pickles, hamburger and toast. Cut sandwich in half on the diagonal and garnish with additional pickle slices on wooden picks. Makes 4.

CHEESE-STUFFED 'BURGERS

- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
  - 1 egg
  - 3 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
  - 2 teaspoons seasoned salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
  - 1/4 teaspoon celery seed
  - 2 tablespoons sweet pickle liquid
  - 6 slices process Gruyere cheese
  - 2/3 cup chopped sweet mixed pickles
  - 6 hamburger buns, split and toasted
- Combine beef, egg, crumbs, seasonings and pickle liquid; mix lightly. Shape into 12 (4-inch size) squares. Top 6 with cheese slice and pickles; cover with remaining beef squares (use pancake turner to lift). Seal edges of beefwicks; broil 3 to 4 inches from source of heat 5 to 7 minutes on each side. Serve in buns. Makes 6.

Fortunately in these days of high meat prices, chickens remain at bargain prices. Fortunately, too, chicken lends itself to literally hundreds of different recipes.

Here is one which not only requires minimum preparation time but also cooks without attention and turns out a delectable main course.

For Chicken Parmesan, wash a 2 1/2 to 3 pound cut up fryer and wipe pieces dry. Melt 6 tablespoons margarine, season with garlic salt and chopped parsley, then add 1/2 cup dry white wine.

In a bowl mix together 1 cup fine bread crumbs, 1 cup grated parmesan cheese, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper.

Butter a large shallow baking pan. Dip chicken pieces in butter mixture then roll in the cheese and crumbs. Place each piece skin side up in the baking pan. Include giblets because they are delicious. In fact, this method is excellent to prepare chicken livers as an hors d'oeuvre.

Bake in a preheated oven at 350 for 30 minutes, then reduce heat to 300 and continue baking for another 30 minutes. If chicken gets too brown, cover with aluminum foil. Serves 4.

A NEW FAVORITE with our guests is an unusual baked apple. Pare and core 6 tart, firm apples (Jonathan or McIntosh will be fine). Place apples in a shallow baking dish and brush generously with fresh lemon juice (2 tablespoons in all).

Melt 6 tablespoons of butter, fill the core cavity of each apple with a tablespoon of white sugar, then spoon in a tablespoon of the melted butter. Cover pan with foil and bake 30 minutes in a preheated 400-degree oven, uncovering to bake at 15 minutes. If the apples are very large, baking time may have to be extended to 45 minutes.

Remove apples from the oven and with a spatula spread each with apricot preserves (or orange marmalade), 1/2 cup in all. Sprinkle with a mixture of 1/4 cup crushed vanilla wafers and 1/4 cup shredded coconut. Return to the oven for an additional 5 minutes.

Heat 1/4 cup brandy and pour over just before serving to 6.

Do you have a favorite recipe for chicken, or a question about food?

Stuffed fillet deserves raves

A stuffed fillet of beef makes an enviable entree, one that should bring only raves. Fill the fillet with sauteed onion, carrot and celery and top with diced Austrian Swiss cheese. When almost roasted, cover top of fillet with additional cheese slices and return to oven until cheese is melted. Serve on a platter surrounded with baby whole carrots and asparagus spears.

BEEF TYROLEAN

- 1 beef fillet
  - Salt, pepper and mashed garlic (to taste)
  - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
  - 1 large onion, chopped
  - 1 carrot, chopped
  - 1/2 cup chopped celery
  - 2 packages (6 ounces each) Austrian Swiss cheese
- Remove all fat and sinews from meat. Slash fillet lengthwise on one side and open out. Sprinkle meat on all sides with salt and pepper and rub with garlic. In a small skillet, heat butter and saute onion, carrot and celery until soft and lightly browned. Spoon mixture onto cut surface of fillet. Finely dice one package of Swiss cheese and sprinkle over vegetables. Fold over meat and fasten opening with toothpicks and string. Place in a shallow roasting pan and roast in a preheated 400-degree oven for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and remove string and toothpicks. Place remaining slices of cheese over roast. Replace in oven and roast for another five minutes or until cheese is melted. Serve garnished with baby whole carrots and asparagus spears. Cut into thick slices to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Cookware notes

Are aluminum pots and pans safe for cooking? According to technical reports found in professional literature, aluminum is suited for the cooking, processing and storing of foods. It conducts heat evenly and quickly, bringing liquids rapidly to a boil. It is splinter-proof and can be cleaned with steam. It is usually resistant to fatty acids, which gives it an advantage in handling meats, fats and oils. It causes no discoloration or change in the flavor of the food.

The stain which sometimes forms on the inside of aluminum cooking pots does not affect food and can be removed easily by boiling a slightly acid substance in the pot, or by use of a suitable cleanser

Over-dried flowers

Researchers at Sharp Electronics Microwave Oven Test Kitchen have developed a fool-proof method for drying flowers in minutes, in a microwave oven.

Besides time, there's another advantage to the new process; colors stay bright and fresh.

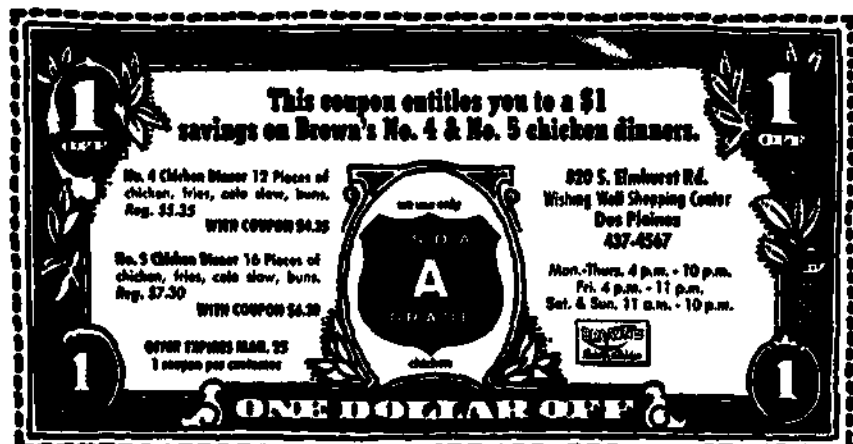

For a free booklet describing the process, readers may send name, address and zip code to Dept. K, Sharp Microwave Oven Test Kitchen, 223 E. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Milk not for all

The amount of milk a person can drink beneficially may depend on heredity, says a Stanford University pediatrician and biochemist.

Writing in the Scientific American, Dr. Norman Kretschmer said persons with ancestors from non-milk drinking areas in Asia and Africa may get indigestion from too much milk. Those with northern European or white American ancestors can drink a lot of milk, he said.

Good taste and economy in 'crowned' casserole

The family bored with budget dishes? Then it's time to try something new with everyone's favorite — stretchable ground beef. Here are two well seasoned meat and potato combinations that belie their economy. What's more, they're easy to fix and attractive enough for company meals.

Ground beef simmered in a tomato sauce spiced with barbecue seasoning is the basis for the Potato Crowned Casserole. The crown is a topping of light and fluffy mashed potatoes quickly stirred together with an envelope of instant mashed potato granules.

Just one-half pound of ground beef and a package of scalloped potatoes complete with its own sauce mix makes the tasty Hashed Beef and Potatoes. This dish can be ready to serve in about 30 minutes so it's a good recipe to have handy for spur-of-the-moment meals.

Accompany either dish with a green vegetable, pickled beets, bread or rolls and top off with a fruit dessert. Served with glasses of milk, these suggested menus are balanced to provide servings from each of the Basic Four Food Groups.

POTATO CROWNED CASSEROLE

- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon barbecue seasoning or chili powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Potato Crown

Brown ground beef in casserole, stirring to crumble; drain excess fat. Stir in tomato sauce, onion, vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon barbecue seasoning, and salt; bring to a boil, stirring occasionally. Spoon into 2-quart casserole. Prepare Potato Crown; spread over casserole and sprinkle with remaining barbecue seasoning. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes, until deep golden brown and puffed. 4 to 6 servings.

Potato Crown: Prepare 1 envelope (6-servings) instant mashed potato granules as directed. Separate 3 eggs. Beat whites until stiff peaks form; beat yolks lightly, until well blended. Stir yolks into potatoes, then fold in egg whites.

HASHED BEEF AND POTATOES
1 package (5 5/8 oz.) scalloped potatoes

- 2 tablespoons shortening
- 1/2 pound ground beef
- 1/2 cup chopped celery

Empty potato slices from package of scalloped potatoes into medium size saucepan; cover with water. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat, and simmer 15 minutes, until tender. Drain. Melt shortening in large skillet. Add beef and celery; cook until beef browns. Stir in drained potatoes and contents of seasoning mix envelope from package of potatoes. Cook over medium heat 5 to 10 minutes, turning occasionally, until crisp and browned. 4 to 5 servings.

POTATO CROWNED CASSEROLE

Franfare by Fran Heckart

About the best call to breakfast on Sunday morning, or any other day, is the spicy aroma of coffee cake drifting through the house.

You can stir up this quick one in less time than it takes the hungry family to gather around the table. The secret is to keep the shortening and dry ingredients, mixed, in the refrigerator. Toppings can be changed for variety.

For the coffee cake mix sift 8 cups flour, 4 tablespoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon salt and 2 teaspoons cream of tartar into a large bowl.

Cut in 2 cups shortening with pastry blender, or use electric mixer at low speed 1 to 2 minutes. (Overmixing will cream flour and shortening; mixture should be dry and crumbly, like coarse cornmeal.)

Store mix in tightly covered container in the refrigerator. This master mix will keep 4 to 6 weeks and makes about 12 cups (enough for 6 coffee cakes).

Once the master mix has been prepared coffee cake can be prepared at a moment's notice.

For the basic cake measure 2 cups mix into bowl (pile lightly into measuring cup; level with spatula).

Beat 2 eggs until fluffy; gradually add 2/3 cup sugar. Combine egg mixture with mix; beat 2 minutes until light and fluffy. Add 1/2 cup milk — 1/4 cup at a time, beating well after each addition.

Spread batter in buttered 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking dish or pan. Put on topping. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 35 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 6 to 8 servings. Use any one of the following toppings for the coffee cake.

PEACH-CINNAMON: Add 3/4 teaspoon lemon extract and 3/4 teaspoon almond extract to coffee cake batter. Arrange 1 cup canned, cling peach slices, drained, over batter in pan and bake. Mix 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon and sprinkle over warm cake just before serving.

Brown sugar-cinnamon: Blend 1/4 cup butter or margarine, 1 cup brown sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons flour and 1 1/2 cup chopped nuts with fork. Add 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg to mix before adding liquids. Sprinkle topping over batter in pan and bake.

Honey-pecan variation: Use 1/2 cup brown sugar instead of 1 cup in recipe above and omit nuts. Sprinkle topping over batter, as above, then arrange 1 cup pecan halves over that. Pour 1 cup honey over all. Bake.

Toasted coconut: Toss together 1 cup flaked or shredded coconut, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 cup light cream. Add 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg to mix for coffee cake. Sprinkle topping over batter in pan and bake.

Pineapple-apricot: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine in 8-inch round pan; sprinkle with 1/2 cup brown sugar. Arrange 4 pineapple slices (drained) and 6 apricot halves (drained) on top of sugar. Spread batter over pineapple mixture and bake. Cool 15 minutes. Turn out on plate.

Little cakes are big on flavor

Cupcakes have a charm of their very own; toy cakes they are, redolent of real vanilla, frosted all alike or variously as suits the occasion, one or more to a customer. Children especially love cupcakes because of their size.

The cupcake baker, like the baker of standard size cakes, who has a reputation to maintain, goes by the book. She studies, critically, required amounts of sugar, fat, flour in accurate measuring cups and spoons. Her oven is heated to the baking temperature needed. She times beating, if that's what's needed, but stirs or folds in if that's what the recipe says.

She's careful, too, in her choice of ingredients. Eggs which are too cold, baking powder that's too old, shortening which may have picked up a cheese or onion odor in the refrigerator — these can defeat her efforts. So can the quality of flavoring ingredients.

For best results, use the pure extract of vanilla — enough to make it taste great. The extract is dispersed most evenly if creamed with the shortening and sugar. If you're making a cooked frosting, let the mixture cool somewhat before stirring in the vanilla extract.

When you make cupcakes from a packaged cake mix, add some pure vanilla yourself, even if the directions do not specify it. This little trick, which several mix manufacturers themselves recommend, will improve your results.

VANILLA "SMARTIE" CUPCAKES

- 1 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons pure vanilla extract
- 3 eggs
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup mini chocolate candies in a sugar shell

Fluffy Vanilla Frosting

In the large bowl of an electric mixer beat butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in vanilla extract. Beat in eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Combine flour and baking powder. With electric mixer at low speed, gradually blend flour mixture into butter mixture. Gently blend in chocolate candies. Line twenty-four 2 1/2-inch muffin pan cups with paper baking cups; fill 2/3 full with batter. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans; cool on racks. Frost tops with Fluffy Vanilla Frosting.

FLUFFY VANILLA FROSTING

- 2 1/2 cups confectioners' sugar
  - 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
  - 1 egg, lightly beaten
  - 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
- Combine confectioners' sugar, butter, egg and vanilla extract; blend well. Swirl over tops of cooled cupcakes. If desired, decorate with chocolate candies. Yield: 2 dozen cupcakes.

VANILLA CHOCOLATE SURPRISE CUPCAKES

- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1 cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons pure vanilla extract
- 3 eggs
- Vanilla Coconut Cream Filling

In a medium bowl sift together flour, cocoa and baking powder; set aside. In the large bowl of an electric mixer cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in vanilla extract and eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. With electric mixer at low speed gradually blend in flour mixture. Line twenty-four 2 1/2-inch muffin pan cups with paper baking cups; fill 2/3 full with batter.

Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans; cool on racks. With a small pointed knife, cut out a circle from the top of each cupcake. Fill hollow with about 1 tablespoon of Vanilla Coconut Cream Filling (any remaining may be served as a pudding). Replace caps. Chill. Sift confectioners' sugar over all before serving, if desired.

VANILLA COCONUT CREAM FILLING

- 1 package (3 1/2 oz.) vanilla pudding and pie filling mix
  - 1 tablespoon pure vanilla extract
  - 1 can (4 oz.) flaked coconut
- Prepare vanilla pudding mix as label directs; cool. Stir in vanilla extract and coconut. Yield: 2 dozen cupcakes.

How much punch?

Will you serve cocktails and mixed drinks at the reception after a champagne toast to the bride and groom? Figure on 13 to 17 1/2 to 2-ounce drinks from each fifth of liquor, or 16 to 21 drinks from each quart, says the Women's Division of Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc. One hundred ice cubes, or an 8-10-ounce bag of commercially made ones, supplies enough cooling for 30 to 35 drinks. But a large block of ice chills punch best.

Flowers adorn cake

Give a professional look to a homemade wedding cake with decorations made from real flowers glistening with sugar crystals. Several hours before the cake will be served, brush tiny unsprayed rosebuds or other small unsprayed flowers with egg white beaten just until foamy. Use a shaker or sieve to sprinkle the flowers with superfine granulated sugar. Let them stand upright on cake racks until they are dry enough to arrange on the frosted cake.

U.S. government figures on food consumption for the past 10 years show a 11 per cent decline in the amount of animal fats eaten by Americans. During the same period, consumption of vegetable fats and oils rose 17 per cent.

Canadian bacon is fully cooked, cured and lightly smoked pork loin, with fat content ranging between 9 to 15 per cent.

MAKE
DAILY LIFE

Cook macaroni in lightly salted boiling water for 10 to 12 minutes, or until barely tender. Drain and rinse with cold water.

In saucepan combine milk, reserved salmon liquid, mustard and horseradish and bring to a simmer. Cook over low heat for 2 minutes. Add cheese and stir over low heat for about 1 minute longer, or until cheese is melted.

Combine salmon mixture, macaroni, cheese sauce and melted butter.

Line a 9x5x3 inch loaf pan with foil. Oil foil well. Turn salmon mixture into the pan. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Remove from oven and serve hot or cold. Garnish with sliced stuffed olives and surround by buttered peas. Serves 6.

Salmon loaf Italiene

The brisk breeze of fall sets appetites to work, and woe to the family cook who isn't prepared with a few good solid, stick-to-the-ribs dishes to satisfy a hungry family. Such a dish is a salmon loaf, which may be served hot or cold, depending on the weather's last-minute whim, a time-saving, money-saving, convenient recipe that can be prepared one day and, if necessary, baked the next. Such a dish is excellent for children who need plenty of good food, full of vitamins, minerals, and complete proteins, combined with an interesting flavor.

SALMON LOAF ITALIENNE

- 4 eggs
- 1 cup sliced stuffed olives
- 2 tablespoons minced

- onion
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 one-pound can salmon
- 2 cups elbow macaroni (8 oz.)
- 1 2/3 cups evaporated milk (large can)
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
- 2 cups shredded American cheese
- 1 cup melted butter
- Additional olives for garnish

In Mixing bowl beat eggs lightly. Add sliced olives, onion and bread crumbs. Drain salmon, reserving liquid, flake salmon and stir into bread crumb mixture.

Food labeling is only first step

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Selecting food to eat daily that helps the average person maintain a reasonable balance of health is tricky.

With so many canned, dry or frozen-packaged and multiple-food combinations available in supermarkets and specialty stores, a shopper is overwhelmed. It is difficult to determine what exactly does go into the various foods we eat. Until recently it has been almost impossible to determine what nutrients are included in foods and beverages many choose for daily meals.

A step in answering the SOS of food shoppers is the recent Food and Drug Administration introduction of voluntary food labeling for all canned and packed foods.

According to the new FDA rule, the label must state the amount of calories, protein, fat and carbohydrates. It must interpret nutrition quality of a normal serving as a percent of U.S. Recommended Daily Allowances for protein, vitamins and minerals.

A normal serving varies for different products. In general, however, it means the amount an adult male, fairly active, would eat. The labels must use familiar home measurements like cups, tablespoons, etc.

The purpose is to make it easier for the consumer to know exactly what nutritional values prepared foods contain.

We discussed the food labeling situation with Dr. Dorothy M. Rathmann, a biochemist from the University of Rochester and assistant in nutrition to the vice-president of Best Foods.

"I don't think labeling by itself is going to teach women or men nutrition or get them to feed their families better. But it certainly will help," she says, adding:

Winter vacation from the kitchen

A weekend vacation at a winter resort is lots of fun — until you have to satisfy all those cold-weather appetites with a hearty meal.

So that you, too, can enjoy the last run down the slopes, or figure "8" on the pond, be sure to pack the ingredients for Curry Fondue.

Convenient condensed cream of chicken soup right from the can is combined with nutritious Swiss cheese and dairy sour cream for a smooth, creamy hot dip. Curry powder, garlic and ginger are added to season and spice this nourishing fondue into a tasteful tantalizer.

Invite family and friends to "dip in" to the bubbling pot with chunks of ham or chicken, whole shrimp, cubes of French or rye bread, celery or carrot sticks, cherry tomatoes, apple slices or pear cubes. For the go-along beverage, serve the adults a dry white wine and hot apple cider to the youngsters.

CURRY FONDUE

- 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of chicken soup
- 1 to 2 teaspoons curry powder
- ¼ teaspoon ginger
- 1 small clove garlic, crushed
- 3 cups (12 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- ¾ cup dairy sour cream

In 1½-quart saucepan beat together soup, curry powder, ginger and garlic. Toss together cheese and flour. Over low heat add cheese to soup and stir until cheese is melted. Stir in sour cream. Transfer to fondue pot. Serve with a selection of the following: celery sticks, carrot sticks, cherry tomatoes, apple slices; cubes of pear, ham or chicken; chunks of French or rye bread, or whole shrimp. Makes 3 cups.

Speedy checkouts

Some supermarkets in Cincinnati and Switzerland have cut waiting time for checkouts by two-thirds. This modern miracle is accomplished with the help of a laser beam and minicomputer. All items are placed on a conveyor belt, then a laser beam scans coded price symbols and feeds it into a minicomputer. The minicomputer totals the bill then gives a receipt which itemizes everything from bottle return refunds to trading stamps.

A new diet delight? Some health-oriented establishments around the country are now selling fruit flavored yogurt cones. One in particular, The Spa, offers a variety of fruit-flavors like orange, raspberry, blueberry, and fruit punch.

Good eating habits

Teach children at an early age to enjoy many different foods and you will be establishing a sound practice for good nutrition throughout life.

Nutritionists say that a child of nine requires 40 grams of protein daily and an adult, 22, requires 60 grams. Every food, except pure fat and carbohydrates, contains some protein. In fact, many nutritionally important protein foods come from plants. For example: Grains and legumes, peanuts, peas and beans and nuts.

"Labeling alone, no. But with the vigorous help of newspapers, magazines, TV and radio it can be done. Recently I think women are becoming more aware of nutrition. Food costs so much they realize that they cannot afford to buy food that is not nutritionally valuable. Nutritional cost is only part of the story. The economics of calories is important, too. Today we need far fewer calories than our grandparents ate. The new food labels will tell how many calories are in a normal serving.

"Another area where we overeat is in protein food. Actually, the Recommended Daily Allowance is 60 milligrams of protein per day for a man. Most men and women today eat 100 or more."

We are steadily eating more and more convenience foods but also eating more snacks — great quantities of them — and we also are going out to restaurants more and more. All this costs money — lots of money. So the housewife or consumer will have to learn more about the nutritional value of what her shrinking food dollar buys.

That's where nutritional labeling comes in.

Dr. Rathmann also observes that women are showing more interest in family diets and nutrition than before.

'Subtle racism' charged

School board votes tonight on removal of 'Black Sambo'

Stereotype should be avoided: Gill

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill feels characters in the controversial children's book "Little Black Sambo" identify with a stereotype of blacks that should be avoided.

Gill and Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling, entered the only dissenting votes in a recent decision by school officials to keep the book in School Dist. 21 libraries.

In a letter to school board members, Gill explained his reasons for wanting to grant the request of a Buffalo Grove family to remove the book.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., made the request because they feel "Little Black Sambo" is insulting to blacks.

Gill stressed, however, that the book should not be taken off the shelves merely because one person complained.

"WE SHOULD REMOVE a book from our school libraries or not select some additional books, only when we think it is not in the best educational interest of our students," Gill said in the letter. He told the Herald yesterday, "The whole issue is not a Willie Jefferson issue, it's an education issue."

Gill agreed with the Jeffersons that "Little Black Sambo" stereotypes and demeans blacks.

Gill's letter reads. "I feel that this should be avoided and more books should be used which give a more realistic picture of black persons. We must remember that most of our students have very little opportunity to relate to black persons in a realistic manner. I sometimes wonder if the book would be so humorous and enjoyable if Helen Bannerman had written it about English children."

GILL ADDED THAT he considered "Little Black Sambo" a "fairy tale" or "fantasy" and that the story did not have enough worth to overcome the negative aspects of the black stereotype.

Countering the statement that "Little Black Sambo" is part of the American heritage, Gill answered in the letter, "So was slavery, but we wouldn't want to keep it in our present society."

Gill told the Herald he did not feel removing the book would establish a dangerous precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

"We select books for kids anyway," Gill said.

by JILL BETTNER
The fate of Little Black Sambo, a fictional character in a children's classic written in 1899, is to be decided tonight by the Dist. 21 School Board. A local family has asked that the book be removed from Dist. 21 libraries because it represents "subtle racism."

Officials of Dist. 21, which serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, portions of Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, voted two weeks ago to keep the book on the shelves, and referred the matter to the board.

The special 10-member committee voted 8-2 to recommend that the board deny the request of Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., Buffalo Grove, to remove "Little Black Sambo" from area schools.

Jefferson complained to Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School, when his young daughter recently brought home a copy of Helen Bannerman's popular story about the little black boy who loses his clothes to tigers and then gets them back when the tigers turn to butter.

IN A LETTER to McKown, Jefferson said he considered the characters in the story "one-sided, subtle stereotyping of one ethnic group as opposed to another." He categorized the book as "subtle, institutionalized racism."

McKown and Supt. Kenneth Gill were the only members of the committee who voted to ban the book.

Gill said that while he did not personally object to the book, he felt that if the Jeffersons considered it demeaning, it should be removed.

Gill sent a letter to all school board members last week, further explaining his reasons for voting to eliminate "Little Black Sambo" from school book collections.

THE CONSENSUS among the majority of the committee members was that "Little Black Sambo" is nothing more than an innocent fairy tale. However, Dist. 21 head librarian Betty Ekstrom recommended that newer books, describing a variety of black experiences, be added to Dist. 21 libraries to give children a broader perspective on blacks.

Some area residents have expressed opposition to taking "Little Black Sambo" off the shelves because they feel the action might establish a precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the board room of the administration building, adjacent to Jack London Junior High School, 990 W. Dundee Rd.

Making the elves go 'round

by LYNN ASINOF

The back shop of Perren Gerber and Associates in Wheeling looks like an elves workshop. It is full of giant Easter eggs, gingerbread castles, reindeer and fairies.

But instead of being elves, the workers at Perren Gerber make elves . . . and pixies and bunnies and gingerbread men. And when they're done, all these whimsical creatures come to life through mechanical animation.

The animated displays conceived, designed and produced in the Wheeling workshop end up in shopping centers and department stores throughout the country during the holiday seasons. For example, there is a bunny band of musical rabbits which will soon be seen in the windows of Marshall Field and Co. at Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg.

According to Perren Gerber, one of three partners in the firm, shopping centers are beginning to turn from traditional "run-of-the-mill" decorations to animated displays. He said the displays, which come as a complete unit, can be used over and over during several different holiday seasons.

"IT'S A MATTER of building a tradition for a shopping center," he said. "People are now willing to spend the ex-

No cause yet in jet crash

Federal Aviation Administration officials yesterday were still looking for what caused a Lear jet to cut power lines as it approached Pal-Waukee Airport for a landing late Monday night.

Neal Callahan, FAA public affairs officer, said investigators may not know for a week what caused the plane to make contact with the power lines. He said, however, they are focusing their attention on the plane's instruments.

"Several of the instruments will be removed and sent away for investigation and it could take some time before we get the results," said Callahan.

THE SMALL jet, owned by the Gould Equipment Co. and based at Pal-Waukee, was making a landing approach from the northwest when it clipped the powerlines on Lake-Cook Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue.

Neither the jet's four passengers nor anyone on the ground was injured as a result of the accident. However, more than 5,000 Wheeling and Deerfield residents lost electric power for 90 minutes.

FAA officials said the jet was slightly damaged when it hit the lines with its nose gear and went on to land safely at O'Hare Airport.

This Morning In Brief

Barrett guilty; Fulle seeks removal session.

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $106,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yesterday after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

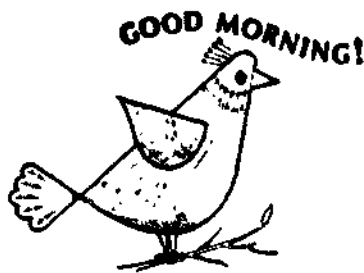

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.98 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 324 to 563, among 1,737 issues on the tape.

Chicago officials deny charge

Mannheim Road site bought for O'Hare growth: Behrel

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Reps. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1978 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINEs officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent... is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

"I just don't believe that officials of the City of Chicago, the airport authority, are interested in a third airport at all," Behrel said. Daley cut a $500 million allocation for the third, lake airport from his 1973 report.

3 cars looted of radio equipment

More than $1,000 worth of stereo equipment and radios was stolen last week when thieves looted autos on Deerlove Road in Des Plaines, according to Cook County Sheriff's police.

Equipment valued at $900 was stolen from the car of Neal Esposito, 10469 Deerlove Rd., early Saturday, police said. Missing was a recorder, a stereo receiver and a turntable from the rear seat floor.

A $150 FM stereo radio also was stolen from the car of Linda Dale, 10365 Deerlove early Sunday, police said.

An AM-FM radio, also valued at $150, was taken from the unlocked car of Peter Ferretti, 10365 Deerlove early Sunday, police said.

Mayoral candidate David Wolf yesterday announced a 16-point campaign platform designed "to respond to the needs of our community."

Wolf, of 674 Laurel, announced opposition to spot zoning, location of the proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District plant here, O'Hare airport noise, pollution and the planned east-west Thacker-Dempster street connection at the Des Plaines River.

This Morning In Brief

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $8,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $108,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yester-

day after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

The market

Dorothy Oliver

The subject of day care centers is being tossed around by the city council. It is trying to decide what types of day care should be allowed in the city, where centers and day care homes should operate and how much or how little control the city will have over day care facilities.

The decision will affect a good number of people in Des Plaines — both the ones who need centers and homes in which to place their children, and the ones who may wind up living next door to a facility.

At the Feb. 26 meeting of the City Code and Judiciary committee I offered my comments on the day care situation. The committee, including Ald. Al Abrams, Ald. Bob Michaels and Ald. Ken Kehe, heard testimony about what is needed in the way of day care ordinances.

QUALITY DAY CARE is a necessity in Des Plaines and all communities. The people need it — it's as simple as that.

According to the 1970 census, 119 families with children under 6 years of age had single male or female heads of households.

I would venture to guess that at least half of these 119 families use day care in some form. And they are joined by many other families where both parents work, or where a husband or wife is disabled.

There seemed to be little doubt among the aldermen at the committee meeting that there is a need for day care in Des Plaines. The 40 parents attending the meeting gave convincing arguments.

What is more important to me, and what I will be looking for as the city drafts day care ordinances, is that day care in Des Plaines be of the highest quality and that the city make every effort to safeguard our children.

FOR THE PAST three years I've worked periodically with representatives from the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, the state agency that regulates and licenses all day care facilities. They are responsible for making sure day care centers and homes meet the minimum state standards in operation, safety, cleanliness, etc. They have the power to issue or revoke operating licenses based on the recommendations of their representatives.

The one thing that stands out in my mind about this agency is that it is grossly understaffed. One licensing representative is in charge of the entire north and northwest suburbs. She is able to visit her centers about once a year — sometimes more if the center is having problems or a complaint has been filed.

THE AGENCY COMES under periodic attack from the press — especially when any scandal occurs involving day care. They have a standard, and perhaps legitimate, excuse: not enough personnel, not enough money, not enough time.

The minimum state standards they enforce are just that — minimum. They were set up to include day care facilities in rural, ghetto, middle class and upper class areas.

What I'm looking for in Des Plaines is a degree of city control that goes beyond what the state can offer. The day care centers that I've seen in Des Plaines already top state standards and I'd like to be sure this continues.

In a recent letter to Ald. Abrams I outlined some suggestions I feel should be included in ordinances. They are open to discussion and dispute and I'd welcome your feelings on my thoughts.

IN ADDITION to requiring that all day care homes and centers meet state standards I proposed that the city license these facilities, profit and non-profit, at no charge, with a day care operating license. A special section should be added to our laws outlining city ordinances regarding day care.

The city should oversee operations by having the health officer and fire inspector visit all centers and homes three times a year to be sure health and safety standards are maintained.

Our ordinance should deviate from state standards by requiring that no other business enterprise be operated in any day care facility while children are present, and that a fenced in or enclosed play area be provided for outdoor activities.

Zoning ordinances will present a definite problem. I feel day care centers should be allowed in areas zoned for multiple family, commercial, business and industry, with a special use permit available from the zoning board in single family areas.

RIGHT NOW we have day care centers in churches in single-family areas and I see no reason why they should be allowed to operate while others are banned in the same area. I would rather my child attended a day care center next door to my home than in an asphalt engulfed shopping center.

I think it should be noted that there are problems in having day care centers in commercial or business areas. Where do the children play? How safe are they with traffic all around them?

I would like to see the city council adopt ordinances with the best interests of the children, their health and safety, in mind. I would like to see a general attitude take over this town where residents would look on day care as something desirable — even next door.

WE VALUE OUR schools and our churches, our parks and our playgrounds. We value our children. Shouldn't day care fall into the same category?

A special city council meeting has been called for 8:15 p.m. Monday at city hall to continue the discussion of day care in Des Plaines. I hope you'll show your interest by attending.

'Superblock' developers ask city's cooperation

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Developers of Des Plaines' proposed superblock called for "cooperation" of the city yesterday and listed seven public-financed requirements to aid the project.

The list was included in a petition filed by three superblock property owners yesterday.

Public notice is planned March 22 for a joint zoning board of appeal-plan commission meeting at 8 p.m. April 10 to discuss the request for a superblock planned unit development.

The petition states that "the successful completion of Phase I of the general plan of redevelopment . . . requires cooperation of the City of Des Plaines, the Chicago and North Western Rwy. and public utilities."

PRELIMINARY superblock plans were explained to city officials at a closed-door dinner meeting last week. Developers announced plans for a two-story shopping mall, pedestrian mall and a 10-story office building in first phase construction.

Yesterday's petition told of a project development schedule. The plan calls for zoning and municipal approval by April 30; completion of construction negotiation by Oct. 15; demolition of Center and Prairie Street buildings by Dec. 15; construction start by Jan. 15 and project completion by Sept. 1, 1975.

The floor sketches filed with the petitions show 224,180 square feet of retail and commercial floor space and 186,750 square feet of office space per floor. Twenty stores and two large offices are on the ground level and 24 stores and two offices are on the "plaza level."

A list of requirements from the city includes:

- Relocation and enlargement of sanitary and storm sewers and water mains near the project;
- Limiting of the north 136 feet of Center Street to pedestrian traffic;
- Vacating south Center Street in exchange for Prairie Avenue right of way to allow four-lane widening;
- Vacating an alley parallel to Prairie;
- Acquiring of property east of Center and north of Prairie to construct by the city not less than 750 customer car spaces and 406 redevelopment spaces. The redevelopment parking lease would be for not less than 50 years;
- Perpetual easement over Ellinwood Street to allow pedestrian ramp construction;
- Realignment of Prairie between Graceland Avenue and River Road.

THE DIAGRAMS included with the petition show three redevelopment land parcels — 1) Spiegler's Department Store; 2) the south half of a block bounded by Lee, Center and Prairie; 3) the south half of a block bounded by Pearson, Prairie and Center.

Petitioners are Bruce McPhee of Des Plaines Tomorrow Corp.; J.R. Gottlieb, president of Des Plaines Mall Corp. and Walter W. Spiegler, of Spiegler Brothers Real Estate.

U.S. should restore grant programs: Behrel

Congress should restore money for water and sewer grant programs slashed from the federal budget by President Nixon, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday.

Behrel, who returned from Washington late Tuesday, said he met with U.S. Reps. Samuel Young, R-10th, and Philip Crane, R-12th, and urged them to support measures adding water and sewer programs to the proposed $6.2 billion special revenue-sharing bill.

At his weekly press conference yesterday, the mayor described those measures as "absolutely essential." The city plans an estimated $1.8 million in water system improvements and had hoped before the budget cuts to finance some $800,000 of that work through federal grants.

"I hoped that our congressmen would be able to persuade Congress and the President to recant," said Behrel, who was in Washington for the annual Congressional Congress of the National League of Cities.

BEHREL ALSO took a swipe at opposition aldermen who made a bid when he was out of town Monday to take away the mayoral power to recommend city council committee memberships.

"These things are cute," he said. "Personally, I don't care."

On a motion by Ald. John Seitz (7th), a backer of David Wolf, a Behrel election opponent, the council asked its judiciary committee to study measures giving it the power to set up its own committees.

The mayor yesterday said council committee appointments are difficult to parcel out and committees are not that powerful anyway. By making such a motion, Ald. Seitz apparently believes that he (Behrel) will win reelection, the mayor added.

"WE'VE GOT SO many things to do in this community, so many important things, without fooling around with things like that. It's laughable," he said.

Behrel also said he supports in principle a proposal by Ald. Thomas Koplos (1st) to require persons who own property through secret land trusts to disclose their ownership in rezoning cases.

"I believe that anybody that comes to our zoning board should be willing to give the facts as to ownership," said Behrel. He said the city must check with City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi to see how far it can go in requiring such disclosures.

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Conducting private investigations were inspectors from firms which insured the building, the furnace and the building's contents.

A coroner's inquest into the official cause of death of the three men is to be conducted at a later date.

Drug charges made against 3 by MEG

Three men were arrested Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged on various drug counts.

The three men were described by one MEG agent as suspected "major drug traffickers and heavy suppliers for the Northwest suburban area." They were arrested by MEG, an anti-narcotics police undercover group, after Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect police cooperated in tracking the men down.

Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, 24, of 4726 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (methamphetamine and MDA). He is a one-time police recruit in Des Plaines who was dismissed within two months of being hired, and never became a policeman. The arrests took place at his residence.

David E. Dardis, 25, Carbondale, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (MDA and barbiturates). Robert Cooke, 23, Chicago, was charged with conspiracy to deliver methamphetamine.

The MEG agent said the men were located by tracing back sales that they had allegedly made. The arrests were made about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. He said the street value of the drugs confiscated during the raid was $10,000.

All three men are scheduled to appear April 16 in the Skokie Branch of District Two Circuit Court.

Police seize youth in house break-in

A 15-year-old Des Plaines youth was taken into custody Monday after police said he broke into the house of Christina Buetner, 1870 Nimetz Dr., according to Des Plaines police.

Police later spotted the youth near the house and matched a footprint left there to one of his shoes.

PTA notes

In response to concern about drug abuse, and to keep parents informed, the West School PTA will present Glen Helms, Algonquin Junior High School principal, who is responsible for the drug program in our schools. Since most parents are as uninformed as their children about the scope of drug abuse, don't miss this meeting — Tuesday, March 20, in West School's Auditorium.

The big news at West School these days is that our building will be 50 years young this year! Special celebrations and events are being planned and organized to make this a memorable occasion.

Stanley Nietupski of the faculty will act as General Chairman for this gala event, and will be assisted by the entire faculty in making final plans and preparations.

At this writing, some of the events that are being planned tentatively are ... One day school session of the 1920s ... A historical display in the I.M.C. showing different articles and their uses during the different decades ... A musical program which will represent 50 years of progress and change in education, history, and inventions, as well as man's progress through the decades. The faculty is presently working on other plans and ideas which will be announced at a later date.

$10-an-hour jobs offered by clerk

Census takers, who can earn up to $10 an hour, are needed for a special head-count scheduled to begin March 28, City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach said yesterday.

Mrs. Rohrbach said only 50 of the estimated 180 census takers have been hired. Deadline for signing up is March 19. The special canvass is being conducted by the U. S. Census Bureau.

She urged interested persons 18 years and older to apply for the job, which will pay 11 cents per person counted. Mrs. Rohrbach estimated census takers will be able to earn up to $10 a day at that rate.

Applications are available at the city's personnel office, 1585 Ellinwood St. For information, call 824-3136.

Wolf tells mayoral campaign platform

... by establishing a social counseling service," he said. The program would "help our young people. It's not necessarily the township or county's function." The proposed service would concentrate on "the juvenile and young adult drug problem."

Wolf's platform calls for "immediate steps to locate sites and organize plans for the construction of several more needed senior citizen housing units" here. The proposed 129-unit project, which will be discussed April 3 at a zoning board of appeals hearing, will meet "only 25 per cent of the city need," he said. "It's just going to begin solving the problem. Why aren't we looking for other sites? We should have started two or three years ago."

A "STRONGLY restrictive odor pollution ordinance" could provide "legal means of maintaining control of building facilities and of inspecting future operations" of the proposed MSD plan, he said. "The people are really worried" about possible location of the 100-million gallon per day sewage plant at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

Wolf said he would support purchase of United Motor Coach "if a fair market price is agreed upon. I'm concerned with providing the facilities to improve public transportation."

Wolf said that "I personally feel there is a need" for low income housing in Des Plaines. "I shall address myself to the question of moderate and low-income housing within our city and offer the statute necessary to provide the facilities before outside intervention forces an unwanted development by federal authority."

Des Plaines should administer the project locally, he said. "We have to respond to the needs of the people — young adults and older people. I don't want to lose these people."

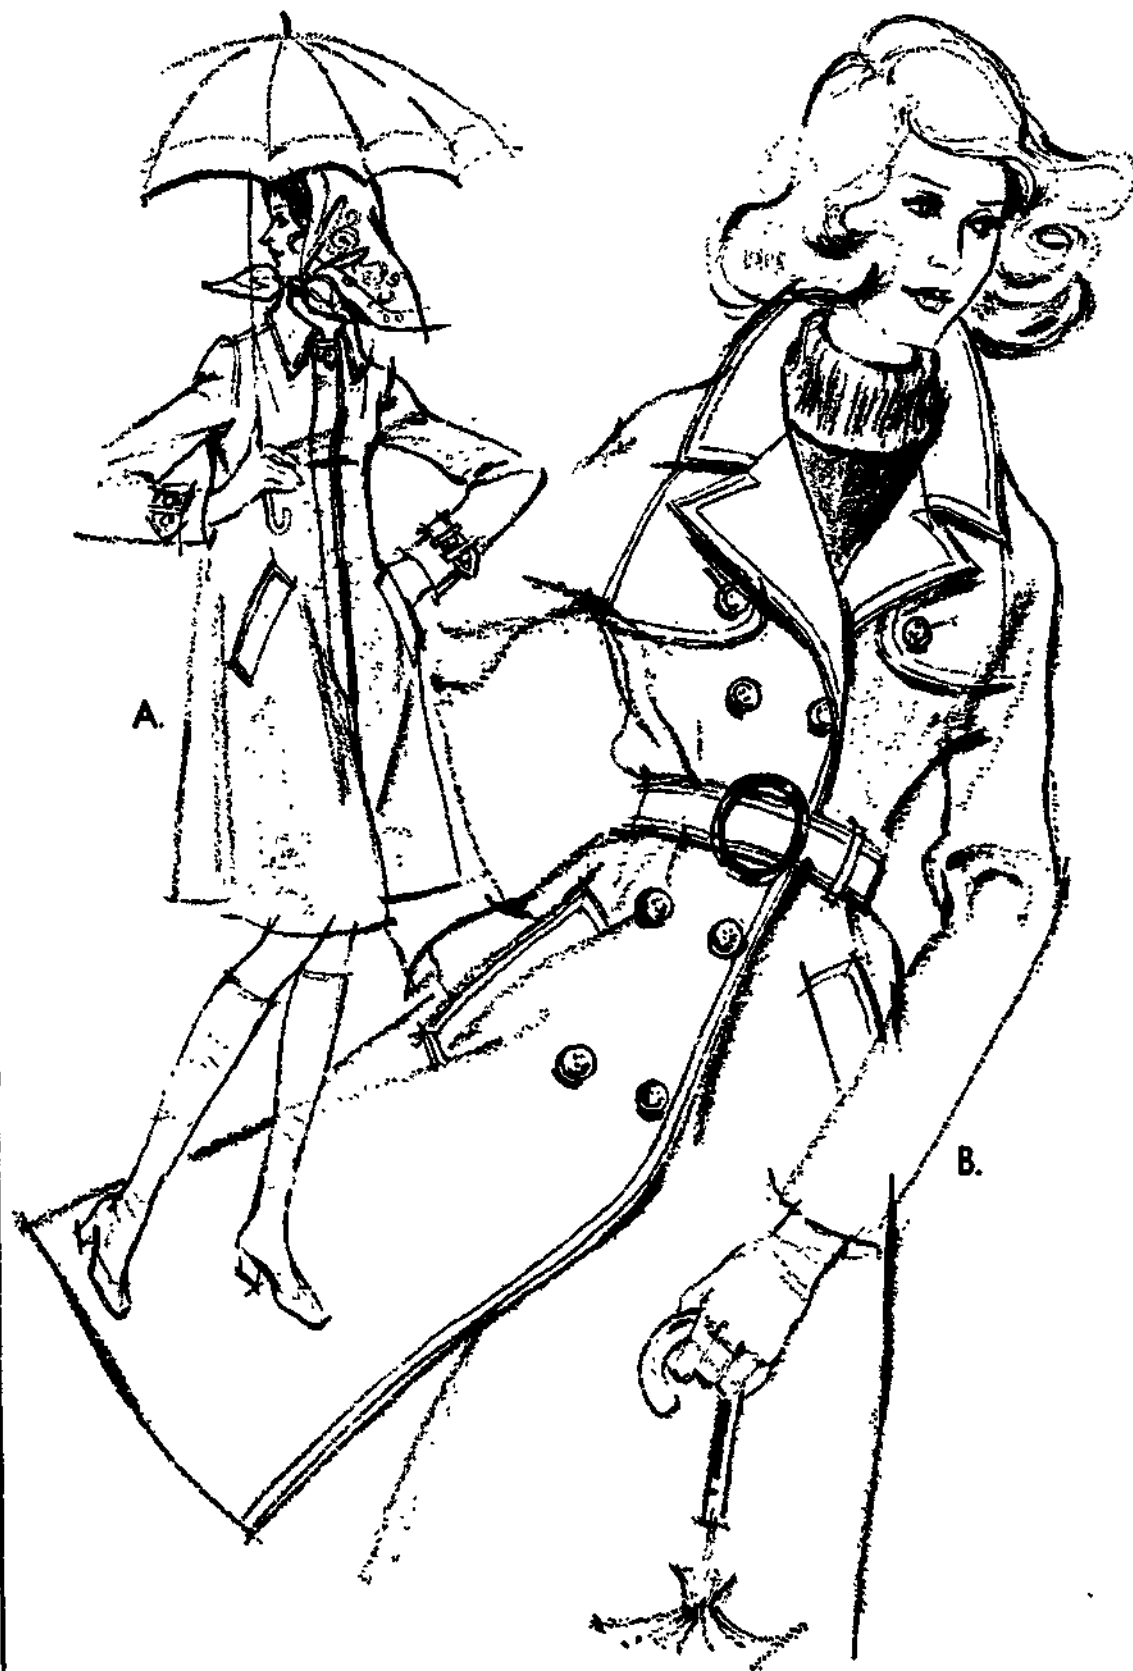

High rents and living costs have forced "children of families who have lived here for years" to move from Des Plaines, he said.

Long-term lease accord reached for Kopp Pool

A general agreement has been reached between committees of the Mount Prospect Park District and Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 on a long-term lease for Kopp Pool.

School board member Gerald Smiley said, "the committees agreed on the wording of a 20-year lease for the pool area and a general outline of cost distributions."

Smiley said the lease would be renewable annually so the school district could budget for costs.

The lease is tentatively scheduled to start May 1. Formal action by both boards is required before the lease is official.

Action on the lease will be placed on the school board's agenda for its next meeting, March 19.

Tom Cooper, director of the park district, said he expects the board to discuss the lease at its March meeting and to take action at its April meeting.

Kopp Pool, which adjoins Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect, and Disney Pool, which adjoins Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village, have been closed to school physical education classes since December.

THE POOLS were closed because they did not meet the Life Safety Code requirements for Illinois schools. Before the school district could have the safety work done, a long-term lease was required by state law.

Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent for administration, said negotiations would probably "get going very quickly" with Elk Grove Park District, which owns Disney Pool.

At the school board meeting Monday, contracts totaling $202,091 were awarded for life safety work throughout the district. Fred Johnson, district architect, said the work at Dempster and Lively junior high schools would be started first so the pools would be reopened to the physical education classes.

Although the pools were closed to the schools, both park districts continued to operate classes and recreation programs. The Life Safety Codes apply only to schools. Both park districts met standards applicable to them.

Zoning rejected for apartments on Meacham Road

Multi-family zoning for a proposed $6.5 million apartment complex on Meacham Road was rejected 4-1 Tuesday by the Elk Grove Village trustees.

The 20-acre site east of Meacham Road and a half-mile north of Nerge Road currently is zoned residential in unincorporated Cook County, and the developer has petitioned the village to annex the land and rezone it for an apartment development.

Trustee Ed Kenna cast the only vote for approval of the project, saying he did not feel the reasons given in the Plan Commission's recommendation against approval were sufficient grounds to turn down the zoning and annexation.

Voting to reject the rezoning were trustees Robert Durning, Ted Stadler, Nanci Vanderweel and George Speas. Trustee Ron Chernick was absent from the meeting.

The project developer, Gerald DeBryne of Palatine, and his attorney, Edward Mraz, presented their proposal for the property at a public hearing in January. At that time Mraz said 10 buildings with one- and two-bedroom units were planned for the site.

MRAZ SAID nine buildings would have 34 apartments each, with 18 two-bedroom units and 16 one-bedroom units. The other building would have 23 two-bedroom apartments for a total of 329 units.

Two swimming pools, a tennis court and a children's playground also were planned for the project, the developer said.

The plan commission recommended against the project on the grounds that multi-family zoning for the property would be contrary to the village master plan, which allows for single-family homes in the area, and because some of the residents in the area objected.

The commission's recommendation was sent to the judiciary, planning and zoning committee of the Board of Trustees and Kenna, the committee's chairman, asked the commissioners to expound on their reasons for opposing the petition.

In an expanded list of objections to the rezoning, plan commissioners said they were unconvinced the rezoning was good because there was no evidence to justify changing the comprehensive master plan or that the development would be an asset to the village. The commission also said multi-family zoning for the 20 acres would have a "domino effect" on the 80 acres of undeveloped land to the south, encouraging that land also to be developed multi-family.

THE START OF LENT yesterday brought many to local churches to receive the traditional rites of Ash Wednesday. Clergymen administer the ashes while saying one of two phrases, "repent and believe the good news" or "remember that you will return to dust."

Hometown girl comes back to teach

by FRED GACA

Some teachers in Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 will look for gray hairs and wonder if their bones have started to creak after they read this, because Jill Thomey is back in school.

Miss Thomey, 23, is a teacher at Admiral Byrd School in Elk Grove Village. Fourteen years ago she was a student at the then brand new Ridge School. Including Ridge, she has been a member of first classes in three village schools. She is believed to be the first Dist. 59 teacher who had most of her elementary education in the district.

Coming back as a teacher to the school district where she was a student is weird, said Miss Thomey. "Teachers I had known when I was a student, and always thought of as teachers, are now co-workers. I still want to call them by their last names."

THE TEACHERS must also feel strange to realize the little girl they once taught can now look them straight in the eye.

Miss Thomey has a list of teachers she remembers from her student days who are still in the district. Among them: Anthony Mostardo, now principal at Clearmont School, was a fifth grade music teacher; Robert Beaupre, now learning center instructor at Brentwood School, was a gym teacher; Daniel Cahill, principal at Devonshire School, was a sixth grade teacher; Shirley Grosche, home economics teacher at Grove Junior High School, was the home economics teacher

Jill Thomey

Miss Thomey had when she went to Grove.

Coming back to the district as a teacher has meant going from the land of the giants to the land of the Lilliputians for Miss Thomey. As a student, everything in the school seemed so big to her. Now everything seems very small.

"Before, I looked up to everything. Now everything is at eye level," said Miss Thomey.

THE OLD HIGGINS School, which was at Higgins and Landmeier roads, was the first Dist. 59 school Miss Thomey attended when her family moved to Elk Grove Village from Chicago in 1959. She was nine years old then.

When Ridge School opened in 1959, Miss Thomey transferred from Higgins School. She attended Ridge for the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

For her last two years of elementary education, Miss Thomey went to the newly-opened Grove Junior High School.

Elk Grove High School was not constructed when Miss Thomey graduated from Grove Junior High School. "I caught snakes and mice for the science class in the field where the high school is located," she said.

FOR THE FIRST two years of high school, Miss Thomey went to Forest View in Arlington Heights. In her junior year, she transferred to the new Elk Grove High School.

When Elk Grove High School opened in 1966, only freshmen, sophomores and juniors were admitted.

Miss Thomey said being in the first junior class was like being a senior for two years. "There were a lot of starts and beginnings that we got involved in. It was kind of hard, but we had a lot of fun."

MISS THOMEY started teaching at Byrd in September after graduating from Northern Illinois University. She was a student teacher at Byrd in 1971.

Her parents, Rita and Elmer Thomey, have lived in the village since they moved from Chicago. They now live only a block from Byrd School.

In June, Miss Thomey will move out of the village after living here for 14 years. She is getting married and will live in Downers Grove. She plans to continue teaching in Dist. 59.

"Since the first grade, I always wanted to be in teaching," said Miss Thomey. "I loved school. I was one of those kids who would go home and play school."

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Conducting private investigations were inspectors from firms which insured the building, the furnace and the building's contents.

A coroner's inquest into the official cause of death of the three men is to be conducted at a later date.

This Morning In Brief

Barrett quilty; Fulle seeks removal session.

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Shekton Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $100,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yesterday after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

Edward Barrett

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemlich, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.98 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 324 to 563, among 1,787 issues on the tape.

Long-term lease accord reached for Kopp Pool

the school board's agenda for its next meeting, March 19.

Tom Cooper, director of the park district, said he expects the board to discuss the lease at its March meeting and to take action at its April meeting.

Kopp Pool, which adjoins Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect, and Disney Pool, which adjoins Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village, have been closed to school physical education classes since December.

THE POOLS were closed because they did not meet the Life Safety Code requirements for Illinois schools. Before the school district could have the safety work done, a long-term lease was required by state law.

Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent for administration, said negotiations would probably "get going very quickly" with Elk Grove Park District, which owns Disney Pool.

At the school board meeting Monday, contracts totaling $202,091 were awarded for life safety work throughout the district. Fred Johnson, district architect, said the work at Dempster and Lively Junior high schools would be started first so the pools would be reopened to the physical education classes.

Although the pools were closed to the schools, both park districts continued to operate classes and recreation programs. The Life Safety Codes apply only to schools. Both park districts met standards applicable to them.

$2 million school jobs bond sale set for June

A $2 million bond sale will be held in June by Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 to complete current construction projects with an estimated cost of $4.5 million. A previous $2.25 million bond issue was sold in 1972 to begin the projects.

The bond issue is part of a $7.25 million referendum approved by Dist. 54 voters in 1970.

The June bond sale will provide funds for completion of John Muir Elementary School, 1973 Kinston Rd., Hoffman Estates; Dwight Eisenhower Junior High School, 801 W. Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates; Albert Einstein Elementary School in Hanover Park, and Walden Elementary School in Hanover Park.

The funds also will pay the balance of construction costs on the Armstrong School addition, 155 N. Kingsdale Dr., Hoffman Estates; the Helen Keller Junior High School addition at 820 Bode Rd., Schaumburg; the Jane Addams Junior High School addition at 700 Springinguth Rd., Schaumburg and the Robert Frost Junior High School addition on Wise Road in Schaumburg.

Progress reports were also given on construction at J. Edgar Hoover School, 315 Springinguth Rd., Schaumburg and Adolph Link School, 900 S. W. Glen Trail Rd., Elk Grove Village. Hoover School is being financed by the state.

Marvin Lapicola, director of business services for Dist. 55 said Link School, expected to be completed in September, may be ready by July or August.

Link School is expected to cost $846,756. Vale Construction Company, developer of the Elk Grove Village area the school is located in, is paying half the cost of the school and gave the district an interest free loan for the balance of construction.

Teacher pact talks reported going smoothly

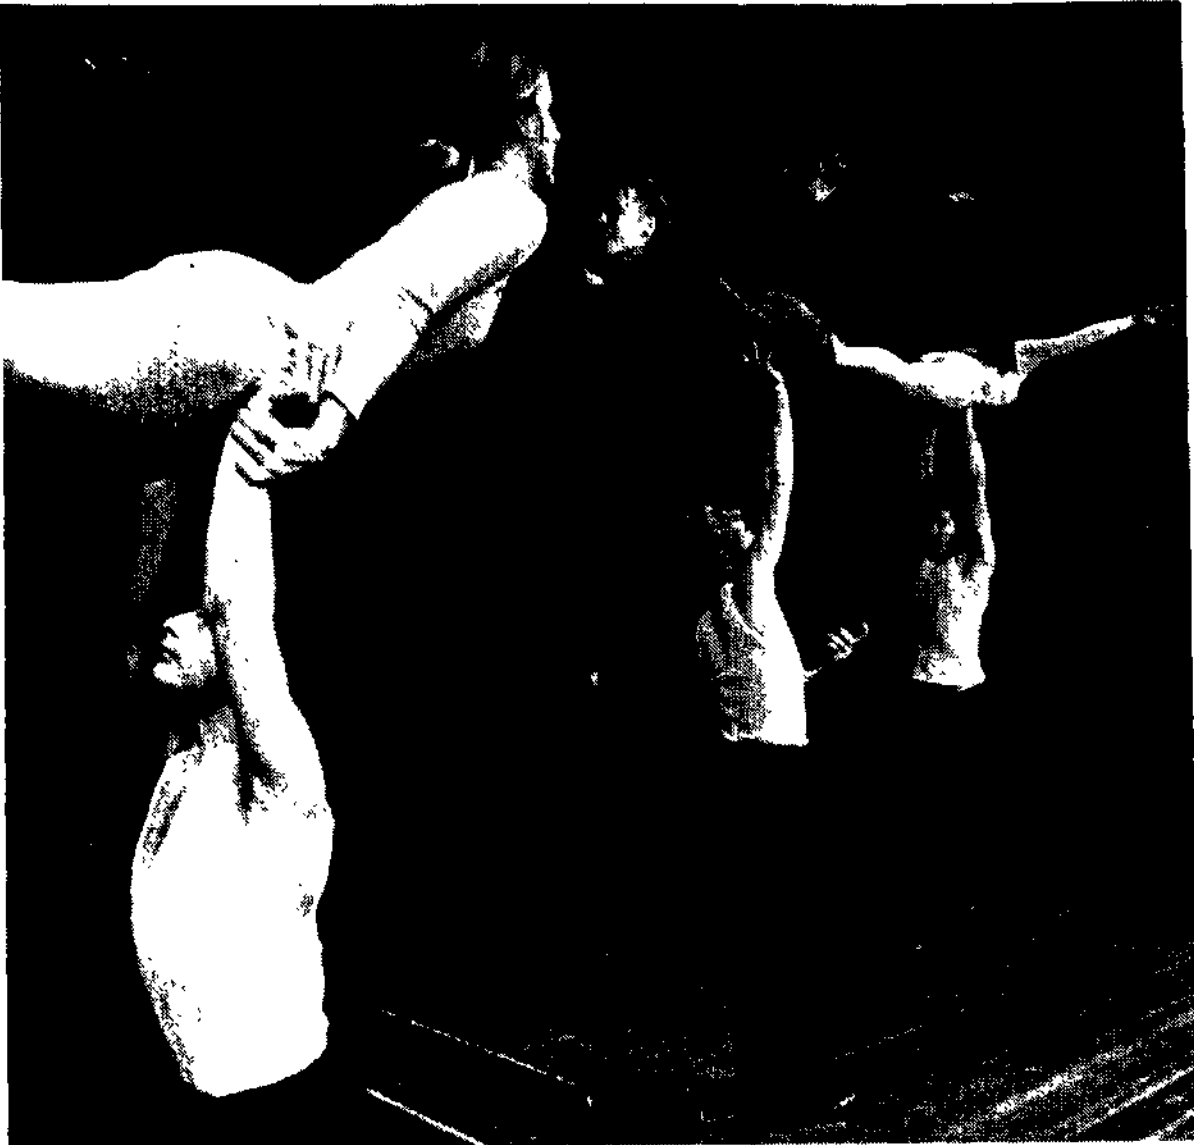

The first contract negotiations meeting between Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and the Teacher Council went smoothly Tuesday.

Eve Kaiser, chairman of the teacher's negotiation committee, said, "Things went very well. It was a very pleasant meeting." She said the meeting was devoted to clarification of points in the teacher's requests.

Albeon Waltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, said, "nothing has changed my original attitude about negotiations." He said he anticipated no serious problems with the negotiations.

By mutual agreement, negotiations between the school district and the teachers are closed. No statements are released about specific points in the meetings.

The next meeting was set for March 20.

"LIFE IS A CARNIVAL," and members of the Elk Grove High School orchestra dance troupe will present a show with that theme today, tomorrow and Saturday at the school. The Elk Grove Jazz Band also will perform for the program. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. A special matinee will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday. For the matinee performance only children in uniform as scouts and Camp Fire girls will be admitted at half price. Tickets are $1.50.

THESE DANCERS will perform a dance titled "After the Sunrise" for the Elk Grove High School orchestra dance troupe program today, Friday and Saturday. Tickets for the program are $1.50 and curtain time will be 7:30 p.m. today, 8 p.m. Friday and 1 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday.

Greenfield won't seek new school term

High School Dist. 214 board member Richard Greenfield has announced he will not seek reelection to the board in the April election.

Greenfield, of Buffalo Grove, said he plans to move from the district soon. He has served on the board since last April when he was elected to fill a vacant one-year term.

The announcement means board member Jack Costello of Mount Prospect is the only incumbent who has not yet announced whether he will run for reelection. Board Pres. Ray Erickson announced last week he will not run.

Warren Schabinger of Mount Prospect and Donald Hoeck of Arlington Heights, also have filed nominating petitions for the April 14 election.

Filing for the three three-year terms involved in the election will continue through March 23 in the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Candidates for the board must be 21 years old, residents of the district and registered voters. Nominating petitions require the signatures of at least 50 registered voters.

Village makes $500 donation to NW Center

The Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees donated $500 Tuesday to the Northwest Opportunity Center to support the center's work with village families.

The center asked $1,238.90 from the village to finance Operation Nutrition, emergency food, adult education, legal assistance and family planning programs. The amount was computed by multiplying the 65 families served in the Elk Grove Village area by $19.06, the money needed per family.

Several trustees felt only 25 of the families actually resided within village limits, and a $500 donation was authorized.

Trustee George Spees said he supported the $500 donation but felt the original amount requested should have been approved. Trustee Ed Kenna voted against the donation, with Trustees Spees, Ted Staddler, Nanci Vanderweel and Robert Durning voting for approval. Trustee Ron Chernick was absent.

ALSO AT THE meeting, the trustees directed the plan commission chairman to appoint a subcommittee to map a plan for village flood control. Kenna, chairman of the judiciary, planning and zoning committee studying the problem, said the committee would consist of an engineer, two plan commission members, representatives of Centex Corp. and other local developers, a park district representative and a representative of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District.

Kenna said the flood control subcommittee would be able to consider flood control and water retention on an area-wide basis instead of an individual lot level.

Dick Kobus, representing Gottlieb Beale & Co., presented the village with a painting of three of the village fire engines and a hook-and-ladder truck, to be hung in the firemen's lounge at the headquarters station, 101 Biesterfield Rd. He said the company was grateful for the firemen's help in pumping out its Centex North Plaza Office Building, 700 Nicholas Blvd., after last August's floods.

IN OTHER business:

• The village attorney was directed to draw up an ordinance changing Touhy Avenue from a one-way street from Lively to Nicholas Boulevards to a two-way thoroughfare.

• An ordinance was adopted designating fire lanes for the Wild Oak apartments on Oakton Street.

• A special parking plan was approved for Reliable Sheet Metal Co., 515 Bennett Rd., to allow parking on a lot north and east of the plant.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Reps. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-8th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $35 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent . . . is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

Citizen group seeks school candidates

Candidates for the April election to the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board of education will be actively sought by a newly-formed citizen's group of PTA and civic organizations' representatives who formed Friday as a citizens' nominating committee.

At the organizational meeting hosted by the Schaumburg area council of PTA's, the Hoffman Estates Lions, Schaumburg Rotary, Barrington Square Homeowners and Sheffield Homeowners Associations, the Schaumburg Education Association and several PTA units were present.

Mrs. Ester Karrass, president of the council, stressed it only initiated the idea of a citizens' caucus. Only nonpolitical and non-religious groups will be represented on the committee. PTA's may each have delegates, but the representatives, once on the committee will act as citizens and cannot involve the PTA in endorsement.

The group elected Dr. John Lucas, 181 Highland Blvd., Hoffman Estates, to chair a steering committee manned by Mrs. Betty Elgin, Barrington Square Homeowners Association, secretary; Dave Wilson, president of the Schaumburg Education Association; Mrs. Kar-rass, Twinbrook PTA; Mrs. Brenda Pulla, Anne Fox PTA, and Joe Valenti, Hoffman Estates Lions Club.

THE COMMITTEE will work out an organizational makeup of the nominating procedures of the caucus and attempt to lay out general guidelines before the next caucus committee meeting scheduled for 8 p.m., March 19.

Dr. Lucas said although this committee may not have time to select a slate and encourage the candidates before filing closes March 23, the group can be a working organization for next year's election.

Board of Education President Dianne Marks urged all present to seek candidates personally, "since you have dedicated yourself to a caucus, take this idea home with you and get your neighbors to seek candidacy."

The steering committee stressed that all civic organizations can be represented on the nominating committee even though they were not present at the first session.

This is the first effort of a citizens' caucus to locate, place and endorse candidates for election to the board of education.

Members said they will in the future endorse not only for the Dist. 54 Board, but high school and college boards as well.

School board president won't run

Harry Peterson, president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board, announced yesterday he would not seek reelection in April.

"After six years of service to the district and to the children, I feel it is time to devote more time to my family and job," said Peterson. "I hope my not running gives an opportunity for qualified people to file by the March 23 deadline and run for the election."

During the six years he has served,

Peterson said he felt the district was much improved and that many positive accomplishments had taken place.

Peterson, of Elk Grove Village, has served two consecutive three-year terms on the board. He has been president for the past year.

Three seats, each for a three-year term, are up for the April 14 election. Peterson is the second incumbent to refuse to run. Board member Sharrie Hildebrandt announced last week she would not seek reelection.

The third incumbent, Judy Zanca, has filed a nominating petition. Two other candidates, Emil Bahamaier and Charles Knaup, have also filed.

Inquest rules girl accidentally drowned

Accidental drowning was determined the cause of the death of 3-year-old Susan Gieseler, who fell into Salt Creek sometime Monday near her Palatine home.

A coroner's inquest yesterday at Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, Palatine, concluded the death was accidental due to drowning.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gieseler, 159 S. Maple Ct., had been missing for eight hours before her body was discovered in the creek near the Pleasant Hill Boulevard bridge.

Funeral services for the girl will be today at 1 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church, 123 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine. Her family has requested that instead of flowers, memorials be made to the Volunteer Firemen's Memorial Fund, in care of the Palatine National Bank, 50 N. Brockway, Palatine, 60067.

Ex-employees under scrutiny in fire

Several ex-employees of the Hyatt House Hotel in Rosemont are being questioned in connection with an arson fire that devastated the hotel Friday. It was learned yesterday.

Rosemont police declined to give details of the investigation but said they are investigating "many people but nothing definite has happened."

Police said they have made no arrests. State Fire Marshal Investigator Joseph Valley also refused comment.

Investigators said they suspected arson Saturday after turning up evidence of five separate fires ignited by a flammable liquid which gutted the lounge and scattered close to 1,000 hotel guests around 5:30 Friday morning.

MIKE MIKULA, a senior at Forest View High School, is learning to drive using a car with special hand controls. Mike and other students with handicaps who attend Dist. 214 high schools get special help with driver education.

Mike's driving lesson like anybody's—with controls

by WANDALYN RICE

A driving lesson for Mike Mikula is just about the same as a lesson for any other student at Forest View High School.

His instructor keeps up a steady stream of advice and direction as Mike maneuvers the late model car with the "student driver" sign on top. Only sometimes the advice he gives is different from what most students hear.

"You're resting your hand on the control, Mike," instructor Richard Eckert said during a recent lesson. "You're braking and accelerating at the same time."

The reason the advice is different is because the car Mike is learning on has special equipment, hand controls, allowing him to drive the car even though his legs are partly paralyzed.

A LEVER is connected to the controls and Mike uses his left hand to control the accelerator and brake while steering with his right hand with the help of a "spinner knob" that lets him turn the wheel full circle easily.

Right now Mike, a senior at Forest View, is the only student who needs hand controls working with Eckert. The youth said he has worked with the controls before, as a student in Oak Park, and hopes to get his driver's license by June and have the controls installed in his own car.

The hand controls used on the school's car, Eckert said, are donated to the school district by the man who makes them, a quadriplegic in Michigan. "He donates this equipment to any school that asks for it and when we're finished, we just send it back," Eckert said.

Although Mike is the only student who is learning to use the equipment right now, Eckert said, he recently gave lessons to a boy in the rehabilitation center at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village. "He had hit a tree with his motorcycle and was paralyzed from the waist down," Eckert said. "Since he had a driver's license before I just acquainted him with the equipment."

The boy caught onto the hand controls quickly, Eckert added, even though "his brain was still getting feedback from his legs even though he couldn't move them. It was pretty rough on him for the first hour or so."

ECKERT, who also teaches students with other kinds of handicaps to drive, said he uses the hand controls when taking the specially equipped car from place to place, reverting to his feet "only when things get tight."

"I feel you have more control from a physical standpoint with the hand controls," Eckert said. "I find that I tend to overbrake with it because my arms are stronger than I expect."

Fifth annual fund-raiser Center hike April 8

The 5th annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows will be held Sunday, April 8.

The hike has annually been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding on April 1.

The hike will follow the same route as last year. Registration will be at 7 a.m. at Maine East High School in Park Ridge. The hike will get underway at 8 a.m. and will wind through Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and end at the center, 3411 Kirchhoff Rd.

Last year some 900 persons participated in the hike and raised more than $13,000 for the center. While no definite goal has been set for this year's hike, the center hopes to top the $13,000 mark.

MEMBERS OF THE hike committee are concentrating their effort on recruiting marchers and hope to double the number of participants this year. Recruitment will be done in High School Districts 211 and 214, Harper College, some junior high schools, church youth groups and there will also be an attempt to get more adult participation.

When persons sign up for the march they will be given a pledge card. They will then go out and solicit pledges from individuals and/or businesses for so much money for every mile they walk. A minimum of 10 cents a mile has been established this year.

The center originally was granted $94,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally, according to Rena Trevor, treasurer of the center's board of directors. Now, with the cutoff of federal funding, the center will have to raise all of its funds locally.

"Unlike most agencies, the Northwest Opportunity Center has been successful in fulfilling one of the basic requirements of the Office of Economic Opportunity Act and raised funds locally," said Mrs. Trevor. "Since the center opened in 1967 the board members have done a rather sustained and aggressive job of informing the community of the needs of the poor and have been successful in increasing the percentage of local support each year while the percentage of federal support has decreased."

"HOWEVER, IT has always been necessary to have the federal funding as a glue to hold the projects together," she said.

Because of the local funds the center will have a grace period after April 1 in which it can continue services at the present level while efforts are made to raise additional local funds.

In addition to the hike, the center will be contacting cities, villages and townships in the six township area it serves and asking them to contribute their fair share. Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates are the only municipalities to pledge a contribution to date. The center will also be contacting churches, local organizations, businesses and individuals for a contribution.

"We will continue our present level of services until we are able to determine our exact status and have a better idea of where we are financially," said Mrs. Trevor. She explained some programs like family planning, food stamps and housing counseling will be continued while other programs like Operation Nutrition are up in the air.

"WE NEED TO get stable funding to operate. There is a point in the center's operation where cutbacks are no longer feasible and it just becomes a matter of keeping the doors open," said Mrs. Trevor.

The center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning assistance, dental checkups at Harper College, Foster Grandparent Program, Neighborhood Youth Corps program, drivers education, income tax assistance, interpretation, transportation and referrals to several other agencies. In addition, the center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

Vandal still puncturing tires, tempers

by JULIA BAUER
An elusive "nail vandal" has created slow leaks and rising tempers among residents of Palatine Township and Inverness.

About every two to three weeks, two pounds of new finishing nails are strewn across Baldwin Road just east of Elm Road. There's a nice little hill there, so unsuspecting drivers don't have much chance of avoiding them.

It isn't a once or twice occurrence, either. Flat tires from the nails have been common for almost two years. By now, the procedure for cleaning up the nails is fairly standard.

Since the road is in Inverness, somebody still sizzling from another flat calls up Village Clerk Sandy Johnson. She in turn calls the Cook County Highway Department. That department sends someone to sweep the road clear.

OCCASIONALLY, there are variations on the theme.

One neighbor or another may decide to forego the calls and sweep up the road. But that gets burdensome after a few times. Then there are the instances when the county never shows up after being called.

Usually, the county responds "within an hour or two," Mrs. Johnson said. When it doesn't, as happened this week, Mrs. Johnson will resort to clearing the road, although she doesn't usually use that route.

Baldwin Road serves as the main access for Barrington Park residents to get to Northwest Highway and on east. Naturally, they get the brunt of the flat tires when the nails appear. And that leads them to suspect someone has it in for them.

The trouble is that no one has ever seen the nail vandal in action. Palatine police have set up occasional night-long watches of the road on weekends, but with no success. Residents have tried watching the road. So far, no concrete evidence has been gathered.

THE ONLY CLEAR evidence is the flat tires. One woman had seven nails removed from one tire. And the local service station charges a dollar a plug to repair the punctures. Another says she has four flat tires in her garage now as a result of nail punctures. Someone else has started keeping track of the nail incidents. In hopes of uncovering some regular planned vandalism.

"You can't get an exact pattern of how it happens," Mrs. Johnson said.

By now, the neighborhood is getting fed up with the nail abuse. Residents have appealed to Inverness village president Forrest Elleman to do something, anything to solve the nail mystery.

But for now, it appears that all the people can do is complain, watch and be careful when they drive over Baldwin Road.

Jaycee car wash set; will raise fire fund

The Palatine Jaycees will sponsor a car wash Sunday to raise proceeds for the Volunteer Firemen's Memorial Fund.

The wash will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Palatine Colonial Arco Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy.

The charge is $2 a car or no charge with a gas fill-up.

The car wash will retain a portion of the fee to cover expenses. Proceeds will go to the Jaycees.

This Morning In Brief

Barrett guilty; Fulle seeks removal session.

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $108,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yesterday

day after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.96 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 824 to 563, among 1,737 issues on the tape.

'Publicity' closes new Amy hearing

Reacting to what he called excessive publicity, a district judge held hearings in secret Tuesday on an Arlington Heights woman's request the court return the daughter she gave up for adoption less than two weeks after birth.

"I recognize there is considerable concern (in the case)," said district Judge John F. Gallagher in a statement distributed to newsmen barred from the hearing Monday. "But this is a private matter between private parties."

Gallagher said the rights of privacy of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, their adopted daughter, 3-year-old Amy, and the child's natural mother "outweighs any consideration for publicizing the case."

A SPOKESMAN at Gallagher's office said the site of the hearing had been moved from his chambers but would not disclose the location.

The hearing began Monday on a request of Paula Marshall, formerly of Arlington Heights and who now lives in Florida, that Amy be returned to her.

Drug charges made against 3 by MEG

Three men were arrested Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged on various drug counts.

The three men were described by one MEG agent as suspected "major drug traffickers and heavy suppliers for the Northwest suburban area." They were arrested by MEG, an anti-narcotics police undercover group, after Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect police cooperated in tracking the men down.

Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, 24, of 4726 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (methamphetamine and MDA). He is a one-time police recruit in Des Plaines who was dismissed within two months of being hired, and never became a policeman. The arrests took place at his residence.

David E. Dardis, 25, Carbondale, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (MDA and barbiturates). Robert Cooke, 23, Chicago, was charged with conspiracy to deliver methamphetamine.

The MEG agent said the men were located by tracing back sales that they had allegedly made. The arrests were made about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. He said the street value of the drugs confiscated during the raid was $10,000.

All three men are scheduled to appear April 16 in the Skokie Branch of District Two Circuit Court.

She said she gave Amy up under duress when the child was 13 days old.

On Monday, Gallagher granted a defense motion and barred reporters from the hearing. He promised he would announce a custody decision when the hearing was concluded.

In 1971, a Cook County judge ruled the child should be returned to her natural mother. The Hueberts, meanwhile had moved to Colorado Springs from Evanston, Ill., after adopting the child.

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Conducting private investigations were inspectors from firms which insured the building, the furnace and the building's contents.

A coroner's inquest into the official cause of death of the three men is to be conducted at a later date.

208 units in 2 buildings planned

Trustees like new Wynngate revision

Plans have again been revised for the proposed Wynngate North apartment development at the northeast corner of Wilson Street and Merrill Avenue (if extended) in Palatine.

Current plans call for two five-story buildings with a total of 208 dwelling units. Underground parking would be provided.

The plan commission reacted favorably Tuesday night to the latest set of plans, but did not take action on the annexation and zoning request.

Originally, developers Ralph and Ray Marotte proposed 184 units in eight buildings on the 6½-acre site.

Later, at the suggestion of Wilton Battles, a planning consultant advising the plan commission, the project was changed to about the same number of units but in fewer buildings.

The revised plans brought still more objections from plan commissioners, who suggested the apartments be contained in two buildings.

At earlier meetings, area residents objected to the development because they contended it would worsen flooding problems in the area.

The development is to include a swimming pool and cabana, tennis courts and lake.

The 208 apartments would be comprised of 8 efficiency, 110 one-bedroom and 90 two-bedroom units.

Inquest rules girl accidentally drowned

Accidental drowning was determined the cause of the death of 3-year-old Susan Gieseler, who fell into Salt Creek sometime Monday near her Palatine home.

A coroner's inquest yesterday at Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, Palatine, concluded the death was accidental due to drowning.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Gieseler, 159 S. Maple Ct., had been missing for eight hours before her body was discovered in the creek near the Pleasant Hill Boulevard bridge.

Funeral services for the girl will be today at 1 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church, 123 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine. Her family has requested that instead of flowers, memorials be made to the Volunteer Firemen's Memorial Fund, in care of the Palatine National Bank, 50 N. Bruckway, Palatine, 60067.

$3,515 for wagon OK'd for fire department

Palatine village trustees this week authorized spending $3,515 for a fire department station wagon.

The auto, from Weir Oldsmobile, Libertyville, was the low bid of five submitted. The vehicle will replace the 1966 station wagon currently used.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent . . . is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

Wheeling schools to vote on 'Sambo' ouster

by JILL BETTNER

The fate of Little Black Sambo, a fictional character in a children's classic written in 1899, is to be decided tonight by the Dist. 21 School Board. A local family has asked that the book be removed from Dist. 21 libraries because it represents "subtle racism."

Officials of Dist. 21, which serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, portions of Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, voted two weeks ago to keep the book on the shelves, and referred the matter to the board.

The special 10-member committee voted 8-2 to recommend that the board deny the request of Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., Buffalo Grove, to remove "Little Black Sambo" from area schools.

Jefferson complained to Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School, when his young daughter recently brought home a copy of Helen Bannerman's popular story about the little black boy who loses his clothes to tigers and then gets them back when the tigers turn to butter.

IN A LETTER to McKown, Jefferson said he considered the characters in the story "one-sided, subtle stereotyping of one ethnic group as opposed to another." He categorized the book as "subtle, institutionalized racism."

McKown and Supt. Kenneth Gill were the only members of the committee who voted to ban the book.

Gill said that while he did not personally object to the book, he felt that if the Jeffersons considered it demeaning, it should be removed.

Gill sent a letter to all school board members last week, further explaining his reasons for voting to eliminate "Little Black Sambo" from school book collections.

THE CONSENSUS among the majority of the committee members was that "Little Black Sambo" is nothing more than an innocent fairy tale. However, Dist. 21 head librarian Betty Ekstrom recommended that newer books, describing a variety of black experiences, be added to Dist. 21 libraries to give children a broader perspective on blacks.

Some area residents have expressed opposition to taking "Little Black Sambo" off the shelves because they feel the action might establish a precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the board room of the administration building, adjacent to Jack London Junior High School, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Stereotype should be avoided: Gill

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill feels characters in the controversial children's book "Little Black Sambo" identify with a stereotype of blacks that should be avoided.

Gill and Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling, entered the only dissenting votes in a recent decision by school officials to keep the book in School Dist. 21 libraries.

In a letter to school board members, Gill explained his reasons for wanting to grant the request of a Buffalo Grove family to remove the book.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., made the request because they feel "Little Black Sambo" is insulting to blacks.

Gill stressed, however, that the book should not be taken off the shelves merely because one person complained.

"WE SHOULD REMOVE a book from our school libraries or not select some additional books, only when we think it is not in the best educational interest of our students," Gill said in the letter. He told the Herald yesterday, "The whole issue is not a Willie Jefferson issue, it's an education issue."

Gill agreed with the Jeffersons that "Little Black Sambo" stereotypes and demeans blacks.

"I feel that the book does identify with a stereotype of the black race that has too long been prevalent in our society," Gill's letter reads. "I feel that this should be avoided and more books should be used which give a more realistic picture of black persons. We must remember that most of our students have very little opportunity to relate to black persons in a realistic manner. I sometimes wonder if the book would be so humorous and enjoyable if Helen Bannerman had written it about English children."

GILL ADDED THAT he considered "Little Black Sambo" a "fairy tale" or "fantasy" and that the story did not have enough worth to overcome the negative aspects of the black stereotype.

Countering the statement that "Little Black Sambo" is part of the American heritage, Gill answered in the letter, "So was slavery, but we wouldn't want to keep it in our present society."

Gill told the Herald he did not feel removing the book would establish a dangerous precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

"We select books for kids anyway," Gill said.

"I don't think getting rid of this book would set a precedent or solve the problem of race relations either. What it would do is remove one more subtle influence. To use the old cliché, mountains are made out of grains of sand, but without the sand, the mountains wouldn't be there," he said.

Fifth annual fund-raiser Center hike April 8

The 5th annual "Hike for Your Neighbor" to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows will be held Sunday, April 8.

The hike has annually been one of the center's major fund raising activities but has taken on new importance this year because of the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity and the cutoff of all federal funding on April 1.

The hike will follow the same route as last year. Registration will be at 7 a.m. at Maine East High School in Park Ridge. The hike will get underway at 8 a.m. and will wind through Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and end at the center, 3411 Kirchhoff Rd.

Last year some 900 persons participated in the hike and raised more than $13,000 for the center. While no definite goal has been set for this year's hike, the center hopes to top the $13,000 mark.

MEMBERS OF THE hike committee are concentrating their effort on recruiting marchers and hope to double the number of participants this year. Recruiting will be done in High School Dist. 211 and 214. Harper College, some junior high schools, church youth groups and there will also be an attempt to get more adult participation.

When persons sign up for the march they will be given a pledge card. They will then go out and solicit pledges from individuals and/or businesses for so much money for every mile they walk. A minimum of 10 cents a mile has been established this year.

The center originally was granted $64,000 from the federal government for the 1973-74 fiscal year. This represented 48 per cent of the center's operating budget and the center was prepared to raise the remaining 52 per cent locally, according to Rena Trevor, treasurer of the center's board of directors. Now, with the cutoff of federal funding, the center will have to raise all of its funds locally.

"Unlike most agencies, the Northwest Opportunity Center has been successful in fulfilling one of the basic requirements of the Office of Economic Opportunity Act and raised funds locally," said Mrs. Trevor. "Since the center opened in 1967 the board members have done a rather sustained and aggressive job of informing the community of the needs of the poor and have been successful increasing the percentage of local support each year while the percentage of federal support has decreased."

Jaycee car wash set; will raise fire fund

The Palatine Jaycees will sponsor a car wash Sunday to raise proceeds for the Volunteer Firemen's Memorial Fund.

The wash will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Palatine Colonial Arco Car Wash, 101 W. Northwest Hwy.

The charge is $2 a car or no charge with a gas fill-up.

The car wash will retain a portion of the fee to cover expenses. Proceeds will go to the Jaycees.

"HOWEVER, IT has always been necessary to have the federal funding as a glue to hold the projects together," she said.

Because of the local funds the center will have a grace period after April 1 in which it can continue services at the present level while efforts are made to raise additional local funds.

In addition to the hike, the center will be contacting cities, villages and townships in the six township area it serves and asking them to contribute their fair share. Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates are the only municipalities to pledge a contribution to date. The center will also be contacting churches, local organizations, businesses and individuals for a contribution.

"We will continue our present level of services until we are able to determine our exact status and have a better idea of where we are financially," said Mrs. Trevor. She explained some programs like family planning, food stamps and housing counseling will be continued while other programs like Operation Nutrition are up in the air.

"WE NEED TO get stable funding to operate. There is a point in the center's operation where cutbacks are no longer feasible and it just becomes a matter of keeping the doors open," said Mrs. Trevor.

The center served approximately 1,700 families from the six township area of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Hanover, Barrington and parts of Maine.

The center's services include: food stamps, Operation Nutrition, housing assistance, legal aid, job referral, family planning assistance, dental checkups at Harper College, Foster Grandparent Program, Neighborhood Youth Corps program, drivers education, income tax assistance, interpretation, transportation and referrals to several other agencies. In addition, the center also provides clothing, emergency food, household items and financial aid to needy families.

THE START OF LENT yesterday brought many to local churches to receive the traditional rites of Ash Wednesday. Clergymen administer the ashes while saying one of two phrases, "repent and believe the good news" or "remember that you will return to dust."

Bridge safe, but needs repair: Haug

The foot bridge over Salt Creek behind the Rolling Meadows sports complex is safe but in need of repair, according to city Building Officer Sverre Haug.

Haug inspected the bridge yesterday after reports that an inspection team from the A & M Roof Trees Co. had recommended to the park district that the bridge be condemned and closed. Haug described the bridge as being "basically safe" but said it had been badly neglected.

"There are beams rotting away and exposed nails along the supports," he said. "One main brace needs to be put in and a railing is broken off (the north side) of the bridge. The beams underneath are not good."

Haug said the repairs should not cost too much money to perform nor would they be difficult. Both ends of the bridge could be lifted while work is done on the under structure and at ends of the bridge, he said.

The bridge is most sorely in need of paint, Haug said. "If it had been painted more frequently, it would have helped prevent the rotting," he said.

HAUG SAID he had asked City Engineer James Muldowney to inspect the bridge, but Muldowney, who is a civil engineer, said he would send instead a structural engineer to make the inspection. If the bridge is found to be unsafe by the inspector, Haug said the city would have the right to condemn and close the bridge until repairs were made.

The A & M Roof Trees Co. had made that recommendation to the park district last week after an inspection of all three wooden bridges in the park district. The park board said it would consider the bridge problem Monday when its building-and-grounds committee meets.

The bridge shows signs of abuse and park officials have said it has a history of vandalism.

Coroner's inquest rules death suicide

A coroner's inquest has ruled that the death of 21-year-old Russell Weiner, 6935 Wilke Rd., was an apparent suicide.

Weiner was found by his mother in the bedroom of their apartment last Thursday. Police said Weiner apparently shot himself in the head with a .32-caliber pistol. The inquest's official ruling said Weiner "took his life while in a depressed state."

Police found a note left by Weiner that read "life is not worth living this way. I am nothing."

This Morning In Brief

Barrett quilty; Fulle seeks removal session.

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $8,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 99 years in prison and $106,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yester-

day after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.98 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 324 to 563, among 1,757 issues on the tape.

'Publicity' closes new Amy hearing

Reacting to what he called excessive publicity, a district judge held hearings in secret Tuesday on an Arlington Heights woman's request the court return the daughter she gave up for adoption less than two weeks after birth.

"I recognize there is considerable concern (in the case)," said district Judge John F. Gallagher in a statement distributed to newsmen barred from the hearing Monday. "But this is a private matter between private parties."

Gallagher said the rights of privacy of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, their adopted daughter, 3-year-old Amy, and the child's natural mother "outweighs any consideration for publicizing the case."

A SPOKESMAN at Gallagher's office said the site of the hearing had been moved from his chambers but would not disclose the location.

The hearing began Monday on a request of Paula Marshall, formerly of Arlington Heights and who now lives in Florida, that Amy be returned to her. She said she gave Amy up under duress when the child was 13 days old.

On Monday, Gallagher granted a defense motion and barred reporters from the hearing. He promised he would announce a custody decision when the hearing was concluded.

In 1971, a Cook County judge ruled the child should be returned to her natural mother. The Hueberts, meanwhile had moved to Colorado Springs from Evanston, Ill., after adopting the child.

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Drug charges made against 3 by MEG

Three men were arrested Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged on various drug counts.

The three men were described by one MEG agent as suspected "major drug traffickers and heavy suppliers for the Northwest suburban area." They were arrested by MEG, an anti-narcotics police undercover group, after Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect police cooperated in tracking the men down.

Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, 24, of 4726 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (methamphetamine and MDA). He is a one-time police recruit in Des Plaines who was dismissed within two months of being hired and never became a policeman. The arrests took place at his residence.

David E. Dardis, 25, Carbondale, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (MDA and barbiturates). Robert Cooke, 23, Chicago, was charged with conspiracy to deliver methamphetamine.

The MEG agent said the men were located by tracing back sales that they had allegedly made. The arrests were made about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. He said the street value of the drugs confiscated during the raid was $10,000.

A petition has been filed to build a Polynesian restaurant near Harper College in Palatine.

Northwest Center seeks budget aid

Officials of the Northwest Opportunity Center are expected to ask the City of Rolling Meadows tonight for a contribution of $2,458 to support the center.

Center Director Bruce Newton and Hector Martinez, president of the center's board of directors, have been invited to attend a special meeting tonight of the city's finance committee to present the request. The committee decided to extend the invitation last month when Newton sent a letter requesting to meet with city officials.

The presentation is part of a suburban-wide appeal in the area by the center to solicit help in raising $32,000 to compensate for an expected fund cutoff from the Office of Economic Opportunity. The dismantling of OEO ordered by President Nixon is scheduled July 1.

The center is asking municipalities for funding according to the number of families served in each town by the center in the past year. In a letter to finance committee chairman Ald. Fred Jacobson (5th), Newton said the center assisted 129 families in Rolling Meadows, most of whom have annual incomes below the federal poverty level of $4,200.

Arlington Heights trustees have agreed to supply $4,600 to the center and Hoffman Estates has agreed to give $1,257. Elk Grove Village also has agreed to give the center $500.

Funding for the center has been opposed by Mayor Roland Meyer, but Jacobson said his committee felt the center representatives should be given the opportunity to present their case before city officials.

Tonight's meeting will begin at 7:30 in the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

Park board chief gets 1973 Jaycee service award

The Hoffman Estates Jaycees presented Tom Barber their Outstanding Young Man award last night.

Barber, who is president of the Hoffman Estates Park District and a past president of the local Jaycees chapter, was honored at a dinner meeting held at Mangam's Restaurant in East Dundee.

He was one of seven men from the community nominated for the annual award.

Barber is currently the regional catalog sales manager for Montgomery Ward.

The 34-year-old father of four children has lived in Hoffman Estates for the past seven years. He is a graduate of Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, Mich.

BARBER is vice chairman of the newly formed Civic Party. He is also part of the group's executive and state making committees.

Barber was cited for his outstanding contributions to the community through his involvement in various service programs.

The other men who were nominated for the award were Eugene Opalinski, a fifth grade teacher and assistant principal at Twinbrook School; Rich Roehm, a sixth grade teacher and assistant principal at the Hanover Highlands School; Bob DePinto, a teacher at the new John Muir School; Ronald J. Schmerber, an elementary counselor for Schaumburg Township Dist. 54; Ken Cull, chairman of the mathematics at Jane Addams Junior High School; and Kenneth P. Coles, sixth grade teacher and assistant principal at Lakeview School in Hoffman Estates.

Bus-auto crash victims discharged

All five of the young women hospitalized following last week's school bus-auto collision have been discharged from the hospital.

A spokesman for Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village said Gloria Torno, 13, of 1121 S. Summit Ln., Karen Blake, 13, of 421 E. Wise Rd., and Joan Guerra, 14, of 1328 S. Sunset Ln., all of Schaumburg Township, and Theresa Tolentino, 13, of 276 Newport Rd., Hoffman Estates, all were discharged earlier this week.

Improvements may cost park board $100,000 extra

Snag in Highpoint Park cost revealed

Complete development of improvements at Highpoint Park may cost the Hoffman Estates Park District nearly $100,000 more than anticipated.

The district's board of commissioners discussed the increased costs Tuesday after learning they may have to pay several thousand dollars to clean village streets after dirt is hauled into the park.

The park development project, budgeted at $122,000 in last June's referendum, caused commissioners to speculate whether they will be able to complete the extensive park improvements plans. The plans call for lighted tennis courts, recreational fields, playground equipment and a parking lot at the park site located near MacArthur School on Chippendale Street.

MAJOR REASON behind the high costs is the park has contracted for more than $90,000 in grading, excavation and landfill to raise a portion of the park above flood stage. While several commissioners said they knew the work had to be done, they were not aware the costs would be so high.

Despite high costs, the district is still saving a substantial amount of money because the landfill is being moved to the park for about one tenth the normal cost.

Officials of Kaufman and Broad donated the fill, but the district had to pay for hauling the dirt to the site.

In an effort to trim the cost of the project, some areas of development may be eliminated, though none of the commissioners said any final decisions were reached on what improvements, if any, would be dropped.

THE BOARD also decided not to improve any land not owned by the park district adjacent to MacArthur School. The board architects said for about $8,800 a portion of the land near the school could be reclaimed and made buildable.

In another development related to money approved in the referendum, the park board deferred action on purchasing a heater for the Lion's Pool until the leak in the pool can be located.

The board learned sufficient quantities of natural gas to heat the pool are not available for purchase. Though oil or propane gas could be used, there would be additional expense in fuel costs and installation of the heating unit. A decision on the heating unit is expected later this month.

Moratorium may be first step for 'Old Town' area

A moratorium on building in the vicinity of Schaumburg and Roselle roads may be the first step in setting up an "Old Town" area of the village, the plan commission members agreed Tuesday.

According to a tentative ordinance setting up the Schaumburg Center Historic District, a professional planner would be hired to help formulate guidelines for the historic area.

Until the planning is complete, the plans commission intends to ask the village board to place a freeze on all new building and development in the one-half-mile square area centering at the Schaumburg and Roselle road intersection. In addition to designating this area for historic preservation, the ordinance also sets up a landmarks commission.

THE LANDMARKS commission would implement the guidelines of the professional planner, James Rosenberg, one of those responsible for the tentative ordinance originally, said the landmarks commission would be a separate entity which would rule on the acceptability of all development in the historic district.

However, in a move to retain its control over the historic center, the plans commission decided to hold off establishing the landmarks commission until planning was complete.

Using the advice of the professional planner, the plans commission would formulate guidelines. The landmarks commission would then be established.

In effect, Rosenberg said the ordinance would eliminate the present zoning in the historic district. With this "zero zoning" every proposed building would be considered a special use requiring specific landmarks commission approval.

A member from the plans commission zoning board, esthetics committee, the building department, the public works department and possibly the chamber of commerce would sit on the landmarks commission.

THE MORATORIUM COULD be in effect for six to nine months, the plans (Continued on page 3)

This Morning In Brief

by ROGER CAPELLINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $100,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $100,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yester-

day after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.98 higher at 979.88 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 824 to 563, among 1,757 issues on the tape.

Timbercrest group at work

Hospital permit review requested

Timbercrest homeowners have requested that Gov. Dan Walker review the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board's recent approval of an operating permit for the proposed Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center branch facility in Schaumburg.

Mrs. Carol Johnson, chairman of Timbercrest Homeowners Association hospital study committee, has also contacted prominent area Democrats to help gain Gov. Dan Walker's intervention in the matter.

Third District representatives also have been contacted, and each has expressed dismay over the board action and the site chosen, said Mrs. Johnson.

The association is incensed over the approval and hopes the permit will officially be reconsidered at the April meeting of the state board, as had been scheduled, "because of the most unusual way in which it was handled," Mrs. Johnson said.

TIMBERCREST opposition will continue until ground is broken for the health care facility, she added.

"We feel we can't stop short of our goal of seeking out the best possible Schaumburg Township site for a hospital and we do not feel the land in question is that," said Mrs. Johnson, who is also an independent candidate for village trustee.

Mrs. Johnson testified for the homeowners at a January meeting of the licensing board when it was said a decision would be deferred until April.

"We came away from that meeting thinking that we understood the entire procedure to be used and are unhappy with the apparent violation of the Illinois Open Meetings law in what also appears to be favoritism," she said.

Although the homeowners have not indicated intentions to seek legal action, they have agreed to continue pursuit of another hospital site, Mrs. Johnson said.

She added that her homeowners' group exerted direct pressure to obtain a 20-acre site rather than the originally proposed 10-acre parcel donated by J. Emil Anderson and Sons, developers.

SHE ALSO said, through the group's efforts, the land was deeded directly to the village rather than to a hospital committee.

According to Mrs. Johnson, Timbercrest homeowners association was the first group to testify in favor of a hospital feasibility study.

All research materials gathered by the committee were turned over to the village board for examination, though only Trustee Jim Guthrie expressed any interest in the files, Mrs. Johnson said.

"It was important to us the village board understood the importance of intercommunity hospital planning because we simply cannot have a hospital on every corner," she added.

Although the group will not stop its work until a license is actually issued, Mrs. Johnson indicated at that point the association will not oppose the hospital.

"If a permit is actually issued, we will endorse the hospital and will not work in any way against it. After all, we cannot, if it is the only one here," she said.

The annual Robert Frost Junior High School student-faculty basketball game sponsored by the PTA will be played Friday at the school.

This year's game features the Dirty Dozen and Tidy 10 against the eighth grade boys. Tickets are on sale at the school and will be available at the door. Admission at the door is $1.

Refreshments will be sold during intermission and after the game.

Fatal fire cause 'undetermined'

State fire investigators have officially labeled as "undetermined" the cause of the Ben Franklin store fire in downtown Palatine in which three volunteer firemen were killed.

Gus Mazzone, chief state arson investigator, yesterday confirmed preliminary reports that the fire was started in the vicinity of the store's basement furnace.

He said heating ducts near the furnace might have been responsible for the blaze.

Arson is "definitely not involved," he said.

Killed in the early-morning fire Feb. 23 were three Palatine volunteer firemen, including the owner of the store.

The state's fire prevention bureau coordinated its investigation of the fire with the village fire department.

Conducting private investigations were inspectors from firms which insured the building, the furnace and the building's contents.

A coroner's inquest into the official cause of death of the three men is to be conducted at a later date.

commission said. A legal opinion will be sought on the feasibility of holding up developers for this length of time.

The guidelines for the historic district would include setback requirements, uses allowed, mixture of uses, and architectural concept. Buildings will be allowed in this area which are not allowed anywhere else in the village.

No major capital improvements or demolition of existing historic buildings will be allowed without suggestions from the landmarks commission. The village board could take action opposing these changes on the basis of the landmarks commission's recommendations.

Rosenberg said there also was a possibility of obtaining a federal or state grant to fund the planning for the district.

The ordinance will be rewritten to meet the plans commission suggestions, and will be presented to the village board March 26, McArthur said.

IN VIEW OF THE possible building moratorium, the commission tabled for a month a request to subdivide the Wilkes property located at the southwest corner of Roselle and Schaumburg roads.

The attorney for the Wilkes family asked to subdivide the 32,500-square-foot parcel into two lots. He said Quinlan and Tyson is interested in purchasing one lot for a new Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates real estate office.

In other action, McArthur announced the commission would meet again March 22 with the Greater Schaumburg Area Association of Commerce and Industry to discuss the proposed sign ordinance. This will be a second meeting to clarify the ordinance for businessmen and incorporate, if possible their suggestions.

McArthur said he also has been invited to attend a March 13 meeting of the Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg Chamber of Commerce to discuss the sign ordinance. The Hoffman Estates plan board chairman also would be there, McArthur said, and the two villages could cooperate on their sign ordinances.

Hoffman Estates has been working on its new sign ordinance for about three years, and it is now in final form.

A CAR OF THE FUTURE was viewed by Bruno Kozimor, a teacher at Helen Keller Junior High School, and students including Leroy Peterson, 15, John Durdan, 13, and Jack Passantino, 14. The automotive parody was on display at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. It is powered by boiled after shave lotion, carries an anti-pollution device that attracts butterflies and has a crystal ball for predicting what the motorist ahead is going to do. Created by British inventor-cartoonist Rowland Emmett it also carries a barbecue for passenger snacks.

Village attorney must interpret ordinance

Handyman store gets planners' nod

A Handyman Center for home improvement supplies received preliminary Schaumburg Plans Commission approval Tuesday subject to an interpretation of the zoning ordinance by the village attorney.

The center is proposed for a site east of the Schaumburg State Bank between Golf and Higgins roads.

According to Russell Parker, commission member and chairman of the zoning board, the center must meet B-3 (planned development) zoning ordinance requirements. As he interprets the ordinance, the developer must at this time submit a traffic study, engineering plans, and an architectural rendering of the buildings.

ADDITIONALLY, Parker said the ordinance allows 24 months from the granting of zoning to the submission of final plans to the village. Presumably zoning was granted some time ago, he said.

The developer, a West Coast chain called Home Improvement Center, Inc. submitted preliminary site plans Tuesday and said final plans were unfeasible until preliminary site approval is given.

Some confusion arose over when the land was zoned B-3. None of the board members knew when the land was zoned. Jerry Pollack, representative of the developer, said he was told by the mayor's secretary, Sylvia Parsons that he did not need a traffic study and that he was meeting all village requirements.

POLLACK SAID he also conformed to requirements of the building and engineering departments.

"Someone erred in giving out information. This is the only B-3 left. We shouldn't penalize this man when we don't know when the effective date of the zoning was," Dick Nemellini, commission member said.

Commission chairman Ray McArthur said he would ask Mayor Robert O. At-cher to look up all the information on the development. Herald records show that in February, 1972, a representative of Pain-Sutherland, agents for the developer, said construction was scheduled to begin in spring, 1972. The center was to open by October, 1972.

McArthur said he would check and clear up the confusion. "We want to make sure we aren't violating any of our own rules."

The center would contain 131,000 square feet of buildable area and 826 parking spaces. All stores would relate to home improvements, and include a general appliance store, hardware store, and possibly a garden nursery.

In addition to the legal question, the commission asked the developer to line up one of his driveways with Valley Lake Drive, which begins on the north side of Golf Road.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29 75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Reps. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property, what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26 04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

Jaycee sign dedicated; available to village

The new Jaycees community sign, dedicated Monday, will be available for use by community organizations part of each year.

Cost for renting the illuminated sign at Higgins and Golf roads is $10 per side for a week starting on Monday and ending on Sunday. The charge covers maintenance and the cost of changing lettering.

The Jaycees will have first option to use the sign 22 weeks out of the year, with the park district having second option, also for 22 weeks. Community organizations wishing to use it when available are asked to write their request, including the message to be placed on the sign, to the Hoffman Estates Park District, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates 60172.

Independence Day bylaws unit named

Four members of the Schaumburg Township Independence Day Committee have been appointed to serve on a by-laws revision committee for that group.

The new committee will be composed of Diane Marks, 369 Carleton Ln., Mrs. Gilbert Andrews, 190 Evanston Ave., John Smith, 105 Geronimo, program chairman, and Mrs. William Wermes, 225 Washington Blvd., press relations.

The group, which is planning the Annual Independence Day celebration, will make its report at 8 p.m. on March 24 at the Hoffman Estates municipal building, 1200 N. Cannon Dr., Hoffman Estates.

All civic groups and organizations are invited to send representatives to this meeting to take part in planning this year's event.

Cub Scout donates television to orphans

A Schaumburg Cub Scout has donated a television set he won in a recent candy sale to a camp operated for orphans by the Moose.

Scott Shoemaker, 10, a member of Webster Pack 296 of St. Marcelline Catholic Church in Schaumburg, earned the television set for selling more than $400 in candy.

He decided to donate the set to the Mooseheart Camp Ross, a home for orphan boys run by the Moose Club after hearing his parents discuss the operation of the camp.

"We are very happy to know that such a young man is willing to part with such a magnificent gift in order that other children might have enjoyment from it," said Mooseheart Supt. Walter H. Ketz in praising the donation from the youngster.

The Elgin Moose Lodge accepted the donation for the Mooseheart Camp.

Junior Great Books program involves 64

The Junior Great Books program sponsored by the Dr. Thomas Dooley PTA and active in the school involves 64 students in grades 3-4.

Students meet once a week with adult co-leaders for 45-minute discussion sessions. During each of the 12 discussion periods scheduled for the series students study a work of a particular author, selecting a new author for each session.

One objective of the program is a shared inquiry to help make the students think.

According to co-leaders, other objectives include the encouragement of a look at all sides of the story and the use of reader's imagination.

Co-leaders are Jan White, Mary Schroeder, Shirley McDaniel, and Joan Smith.

Prekindergarten classes planned

Prekindergarten classes to prepare youngsters for the fall semester will begin soon at Anne Fox School in Hanover Park.

Registration ends Friday for the special session.

Parents of children who will start kindergarten this September may telephone the school 837-2430 to register.

The prekindergarten classes are not held in other Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 schools, but were developed especially by the Anne Fox staff.

$8 million community flood package called 'efficient but too costly'

A recently proposed $8-million solution to Mount Prospect's community-wide flooding problems probably won't be accepted without changes by the village's Drainage and Clean Streams Commission.

Commission chairman George March said this week that his group will look for alternate solutions "as efficient but less costly" to those proposed in the Consoer, Townsend and Associates report.

"You have labeled the deficiencies well," March told Walter Hodel of the engineering firm Tuesday night. "It is just that in some cases the commission thinks there may be better ways to accomplish the same thing."

The Consoer, Townsend report is scheduled to be presented to the village board at the board meeting April 3. The commission will offer its suggestions and evaluation of the report at the same time. The commission also hopes to present the board with a project timetable that may include a "wait and see" attitude toward the least crucial parts of the proposal.

THE DRAFT REPORT of the engineering firm's study proposed seven permanent retention basins, a temporary detention basin and a series of relief sewers throughout the community.

"Over the next few weeks," March said, "we will go over each and every proposal in depth. We will consider less costly alternates if available and we will draw up a priority schedule (for construction)."

An immediate $310,000 is knocked off the Consoer, Townsend projected cost because they included an enlargement of the west Park Retention Basin, which the village is already undertaking. Other money might be saved if suggested retention basins can be relocated from private property to village property.

March said his group would talk to Arlington Heights officials about the possibility of enlarging the pond at Forest View High School. If this were done, it could eliminate the need for the two retention basins proposed for the Elk Grove Village Unit areas, March said.

OTHER POSSIBLE changes are in the Can-Dota Avenue storm sewer system as proposed, a retention basin in the Mount Prospect Country Club golf course instead of enlarging Crumley Basin, and alternates to the three detention basins suggested for the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way.

Village Eng. Leonard H. Dicke told the commissioners he had been in contact with Edison people who said they would not permit retention basins on their property. Dicke said a low-tension feeder cable runs three feet underground in the right-of-way.

March said that at least four areas in the northeast section of the village, annexed in 1971, are having flooding problems. Solutions to these will also be considered. The Consoer, Townsend report made no recommendations for flood control in that area.

Dicke told Hodel that he was upset because the village, he felt, had not been kept informed on what Consoer, Town-end's plans were while the firm was drawing up the report. Dicke pointed out a series of errors in the report that he said could have been omitted if the village had been consulted more by Consoer, Townsend.

Hodel stressed that at this point much of the report, as presented, was of a conceptual nature and does not approximate being a preliminary engineering report in any way.

Long-term lease accord reached for Kopp Pool

A general agreement has been reached between committees of the Mount Prospect Park District and Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 on a long-term lease for Kopp Pool.

School board member Gerald Smiley said, "the committees agreed on the wording of a 20-year lease for the pool area and a general outline of cost distributions."

Smiley said the lease would be renewable annually so the school district could budget for costs.

The lease is tentatively scheduled to start May 1. Formal action by both boards is required before the lease is official.

Action on the lease will be placed on the school board's agenda for its next meeting, March 19.

Tom Cooper, director of the park district, said he expects the board to discuss the lease at its March meeting and to take action at its April meeting.

Kopp Pool, which adjoins Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect, and Disney Pool, which adjoins Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village, have been closed to school physical education classes since December.

THE POOLS were closed because they did not meet the Life Safety Code requirements for Illinois schools. Before the school district could have the safety work done, a long-term lease was required by state law.

Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent for administration, said negotiations would probably "get going very quickly" with Elk Grove Park District, which owns Disney Pool.

At the school board meeting Monday, contracts totaling $202,091 were awarded for life safety work throughout the district. Fred Johnson, district architect, said the work at Dempster and Lively junior high schools would be started first so the pools would be reopened to the physical education classes.

Although the pools were closed to the schools, both park districts continued to operate classes and recreation programs. The Life Safety Codes apply only to schools. Both park districts met standards applicable to them.

"ANTIGONE," a play by Jean Anouilh that puts the ancient Greek legend into modern language, will be presented Friday and Saturday at Hersey High School. Here Diane Sabar, left, Debbie Oliver and Dan McDermott rehearse for the production under some "genuine" Greek pillars. The play will also include mime and original music composed by John Boehm, a math teacher at the school. The play, which will be given on a modern chrome and black set, will be at 8 p.m. each night. Tickets are $1.50.

Venture store gets initial OK

There will be a May Co. Venture store in Mount Prospect.

By a 5-0 vote Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect village trustees approved the department store project, to be located on the northwest corner of Dempster

Street and Elmhurst Road. Before the necessary zoning changes go into effect, however, the board must pass a number of ordinances and approve a couple of subdivision plans.

The 160,000-square-foot department store is expected to do $15 million worth of business a year and therefore contribute $150,000 to the village through sales tax rebates.

The main problem holding up board approval of the project was that part of the property involved was a portion of the Huntington Commons planned unit development. That section will now be removed from that planned unit development and incorporated in a new planned unit development for the store property only.

PART OF A national chain, the store will feature a grocery store, garden center, automotive accessory shop and a six-pump gas station. On-site water detention will be provided for in the parking lot, and an agreement is to be signed with School Dist. 59 under which the May Co. will agree to rectify any resulting flood problems on Dempster Junior High School property. The school is just west

Financial woes may face schools

by MARY HOULIHAN

River Trails Dist. 26 could be in serious financial difficulty at the end of the 1973-74 school year if significant cuts are not made in expenditures.

According to William Haase, chairman of the Dist. 26 budget committee, it is likely that at the end of the 1973-74 school year, the district will have little or no money remaining in its educational and building funds.

Haase's projection is based on the assumption that there will be only nominal increases in the school district's costs in the next year and also that there will be no significant changes in existing educational programs.

BASED ON projections of interim financial information through June 30, 1973, "it is clear that the district will be in worse shape financially at the end of this year than it was at the end of last, with residual funds reduced by $100,000," said Haase.

Haase said the cause for the reduction in the residual funds was in part the result of overexpending the budget for teacher's salaries (the budget was passed prior to the settlement of the 1972-1973 teacher contract) and partly because of increased maintenance and required building improvements.

"FURTHER, WE are aware that recent enrollment declines will result in a shrinking revenue base in total, as state aid will be less, while taxes will be relatively constant," Haase said.

According to Haase, a school district should try to keep about $100,000 "at rock bottom" in residual funds in its budget. If Dist. 26 receives its expected tax money in May and June, it will have approximately $178,000 in residual funds. "What we're saying in simple terms is if we take the $178,000, plus the revenue we expect to get this year (in tax money and state aid), that's roughly equal to what we spent this year," Haase said.

BECAUSE OF the state of the residual funds, the budget committee has suggested to the administration that "early budget preparation for next year is particularly critical and that an intensive review be made of all significant outlays to see where cuts can be made."

Haase said he expects the budget committee to have a working draft of the budget ready to present to the board in late May or June.

This Morning In Brief

by ROGER CAPEITINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $187,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,000 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 30 years in prison and $100,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go see extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yesterday after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

Edward Barrett

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lemisch, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.98 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 324 to 563, among 1,757 issues on the tape.

Expansion prompts alternate space quest

Park View 6th grade move possible

Sixth grade classes at Park View School, 805 N. Burning Bush Ln., may be moved to the River Trails Junior High School next year. The transfer of the sixth grade to the junior high is one alternative to accommodate three classes of students who will be moving into sixth grade at the school next year. The change from two sixth grades this year to three next year means Park View will need 19 classrooms. There are 18 classrooms in the school. Park View also could use some extra space for special education, art and music next year, according to Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff.

BESIDES MOVING the sixth grade to the junior high, there are two other alternatives to solving the overcrowding problem at Park View. One is to buy either new or used mobile units for the school. The other is to move the present Dist. 26 administration offices, located now in the administration building directly adjacent to Park View, to the junior high school. That way, Park View could use the present administration building for classrooms.

According to Supt. Tom Warden, the cost of buying new mobile units would range anywhere from $8,000 to $22,000. In light of recent financial projections made by the district, buying new mobile units would probably strain the 1973-74 budget. Warden said he would not recommend the district buy used mobile units, since "they get pretty beat up after a couple of years. Educationally, I think we could stand to profit by transferring the sixth grade to the junior high," Warden said.

Warden said he preferred transferring the sixth grade students rather than busing kindergarten students from Park View to Feehanville (as was done with some students last year). "I would prefer to send the older, more mature student. Besides, I think we made a commitment last year to the parents that the kindergartners would be brought back next year."

RETZLAFF SAID he doesn't know why there is such a large class moving into sixth grade at Park View next year. "Maybe it was the year of big growth for the district. From 1962 to 1966, we really started growing out here," he said.

According to Warden, the overcrowding situation at Park View is unique. "None of the other schools is bulging as much as Park View," he said.

According to a projection made by the administration for all schools in the district through 1976, class sizes will probably be decreasing about 10 per cent each year in the next three years. The projection is based on kindergarten survey taken in the district last year.

"We've been having a pattern of decrease in kindergarten of about 10 per cent over the last four years," Retzlaff said. The board has instructed the administration to gather information on costs for each of the alternatives to solving the overcrowding problem at Park View. A decision will be made after the information is in.

Teacher pact talks reported going smoothly

The first contract negotiations meeting between Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 and the Teacher Council went smoothly Tuesday.

Eve Kaiser, chairman of the teacher's negotiation committee, said, "Things went very well. It was a very pleasant meeting." She said the meeting was devoted to clarification of points in the teacher's requests.

Albeon Weltman, assistant superintendent for personnel, said, "nothing has changed my original attitude about negotiations." He said he anticipated no serious problems with the negotiations.

By mutual agreement, negotiations between the school district and the teachers are closed. No statements are released about specific points in the meetings.

The next meeting was set for March 20.

School board president won't run

Harry Peterson, president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 School Board, announced yesterday he would not seek reelection in April.

"After six years of service to the district and to the children, I feel it is time to devote more time to my family and job," said Peterson. "I hope my not running gives an opportunity for qualified people to file by the March 23 deadline and run for the election."

During the six years he has served, Peterson said he felt the district was much improved and that many positive accomplishments had taken place.

Peterson, of Elk Grove Village, has served two consecutive three-year terms on the board. He has been president for the past year.

Three seats, each for a three-year term, are up for the April 14 election. Peterson is the second incumbent to refuse to run. Board member Sharrie Hildebrandt announced last week she would not seek reelection.

The third incumbent, Judy Zanca, has filed a nominating petition. Two other candidates, Emil Bahnmair and Charles Knaup, have also filed.

Drug charges made against 3 by MEG

Three men were arrested Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged on various drug counts.

The three men were described by one MEG agent as suspected "major drug traffickers and heavy suppliers for the Northwest suburban area." They were arrested by MEG, an anti-narcotics police undercover group, after Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect police cooperated in tracking the men down.

Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, 24, of 4726 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (methamphetamine and MDA). He is a one-time police recruit in Des Plaines who was dismissed within two months of being hired, and never became a policeman. The arrests took place at his residence.

David E. Dardis, 25, Carbondale, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (MDA and barbiturates). Robert Cooke, 23, Chicago, was charged with conspiracy to deliver methamphetamine.

The MEG agent said the men were located by tracing back sales that they had allegedly made. The arrests were made about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. He said the street value of the drugs confiscated during the raid was $10,000.

of the store property.

Edwin Murck of the May Co. said Tuesday the store was not a full-line department store and admitted it was a discount operation. These statements were contrary to statements made by Murck and Kenroy officials (Kenroy owns the land now) at earlier hearings.

Just prior to the first public hearing on the store last Oct. 20, Bill Dillon of Kenroy, without naming the May Co., said the store being planned was "not a discount operation."

At the public hearing, the store was described as a full-line department store and full-line grocery store. Murck, at the same hearing, described the store as "a convenience type of shopping store." He said it was not a discount operation and compared it to a Turnstyle store.

AT TUESDAY'S board meeting Murck said, "This is a self-service department store. We feel it is a discount store with a difference. It is all first-line merchandise."

He said there would be "no seconds" offered. In further explanation, he said it would be considered a discount store because it does not offer delivery and charge accounts like other stores. Also, he said the full-line term was incorrect because they would not sell heavy appliances.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert joined trustees Daniel Ahern, Bud Richardson, Donald Furst and George Anderson in voting to concur with plan commission and judiciary committee recommendations that the rezoning be granted. Trustees Kenneth Scholten and Patrick Link were absent.

Nurse promoted

Marilyn Joan Schneider of Prospect Heights has been promoted from head nurse of the operating room to manager at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

She is a graduate of St. Joseph's Hospital School of Nursing and has been an operating room nurse for 14 years, including 8-1/2 years at Holy Family.

Greenfield won't seek new school term

High School Dist. 214 board member Richard Greenfield has announced he will not seek reelection to the board in the April election.

Greenfield, of Buffalo Grove, said he plans to move from the district soon. He has served on the board since last April when he was elected to fill a vacant one-year term.

The announcement means board member Jack Costello of Mount Prospect is the only incumbent who has not yet announced whether he will run for reelection. Board Pres. Ray Erickson announced last week he will not run.

Warren Schabinger of Mount Prospect and Donald Hoeck of Arlington Heights, also have filed nominating petitions for the April 14 election.

Filing for the three three-year terms involved in the election will continue through March 23 in the district administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Candidates for the board must be 21 years old, residents of the district and registered voters. Nominating petitions require the signatures of at least 50 registered voters.

Heart disease program slated

Holy Family Hospital will present "Ways to a Healthier Heart," a heart disease detection and education program. Saturday, March 10, from 2 to 8 p.m.

The emphasis is on personal counseling and small group discussions, according to Jackie Lance, a patient care manager at Holy Family. Nursing service and dietary personnel will staff the discussions, that begin every hour on the hour. A physician will also be in attendance to answer questions.

No appointment is necessary. Miss Lance said. Interested people who come early for one of the sessions will have the opportunity to see three movies, one on diet, another on blood pressure and the third on smoking.

Coronary heart disease is a progressive disease of years' durations. By the time individuals develop clinical symptoms, they are already in an advanced stage. Early prevention is one of the goals of Holy Family's program.

Area residents are urged to take advantage of the detection-education program. There are no fees for screening or for any of the materials provided by the hospital and the Heart Association of North Cook County.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Rep. Sam Young, R-16th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street, Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent . . . is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

6 police sergeant candidates on list

The promotional list for Mount Prospect police sergeants, released this week, includes six men.

Included in the tentative 1973-74 village budget are funds to cover the promotion of two policemen to the rank of sergeant.

The six men, in order of the highest score first, are Edward D. Naatek, Warren A. Fischer, Patrick L. Hallinan, Richard E. Yost, Roland B. Lischalk and Dennis R. Leonard. Examinations to qualify men for the list have been conducted for several months by the village's fire and police commission.

Garage will become police locker room

Work began Friday on the remodeling of a three-car, village-owned garage so it can be used as a locker room for Mount Prospect policemen.

The garage is behind the recently purchased white frame building at 108-110 E. Northwest Hwy. It is only a few feet from the current police station. Because of overcrowding six policemen do not even have lockers in the station.

Heat and insulation have to be provided for the new, temporary locker room. It is expected the garage will be used until the village expands its municipal facilities.

Spring park program registration Friday

Registration for spring programs at the Mount Prospect Park District will be Friday at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Doors will open at 8 a.m. and numbered cards will be distributed to insure that programs are filled on a "first come, first served" basis. Registration begins at 9 a.m. A registrant must be present when his number is called to sign up for programs. After Friday, registration will continue during regular office hours until activities begin or, in some cases, until a specific program is filled.

Ten new classes are being offered by the park district this spring. They include programs in adult ballet, embroidery, needlepoint, line drawing, team handball and quilting (filigree paper art). For more details on programs or registration, call the park district office, 235-5380.

Tools stolen from school, home here

Tool thefts have been reported at Lincoln School and a home in Mount Prospect.

Approximately $205 worth of tools were taken from the school maintenance building, 701 W. Lincoln St., Sunday. Entry to the building was gained when a window was broken in the overhead door, police said.

The second burglary took place at 1302 Clevon Ave., the home of W. C. Gorman, between 6:30 p.m. and 8:45 p.m. Monday. The garage service door was unlocked, police said, and $500 worth of tools were taken.

Dunkin Donuts will reopen here soon

Dunkin Donuts in Mount Prospect, closed since Feb. 19, will reopen soon, a district sales manager for Dunkin Donuts said yesterday.

The shop, at Northwest Highway and Busse Avenue, should be open by May, according to Wayne Leechford. He said the franchise is about to be purchased.

Builders report ton of supplies stolen

Nearly a ton of building materials was stolen last week from a home under construction at 1018 Grace St. in Mount Prospect.

The materials, owned by Northwest Masonry Co. in McHenry, included 13 80-pound bags of brickmest cement, 13 50-pound bags of western lime and three chimney flue pipes. The total value of the items was placed at $87.

Police said the materials were taken from an unlocked garage. According to the masonry firm, the theft was the latest in a long series, but was the first reported to police. Police patrols in the area (Windsor Estates) will be stepped up, officials said.

Banker unveils downtown parking garage plan

by KURT BAER

An Arlington Heights bank president says he has a workable plan to develop parking garages in the central business district that would launch a wave of downtown redevelopment.

Douglas Dodds, president of the First Arlington National Bank, says development of the garages would spark the immediate construction of a multi-story combination office, commercial and apartment building and a five-story motel in the downtown area.

Under Dodds' proposal, the entire cost of the garages, estimated at nearly $1.5 million each, would be paid by the owners and developers of property in the central business district. There would be no cost to the village homeowner.

The parking garage proposal calls for the creation of a special parking district, coincident with the bounds of the central business district.

The parking district would administer a two-part tax. The first would be a tax figured on downtown land area. The proposed figure is 20 cents per square foot annually.

THE SECOND TAX would be a development tax that, as proposed, would collect $3 per $100 of assessed valuation on all new construction in the central business district.

Both taxes, the report states, are reasonable and would wind up dramatically increasing both the income and value of downtown properties.

Dodds says he has been frustrated in the project by inaction on the part of the Arlington Heights Village Board which received the parking garage study late last year.

"Everybody's paralyzed, immobilized. I have asked the village trustees to go on record as to their feelings on the proposal, but I haven't even been able to get a meeting with them," Dodds said.

Parking garages and downtown redevelopment are two matters Dodds hopes to discuss with the six Caucus-endorsed candidates that have been invited to a meeting of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce on March 27.

IF THE GARAGES can be built, Dodds said he has developers who are ready to put up a multi-story building between Vail and Highland avenues, south of Campbell Street, that would have 50,000 square feet of office space, 200 square feet of commercial space and 300 apartments.

A second building, which Dodds described as a five-story motel, would also be put up, north of the old bank building at 201 N. Dunton Ave., he said.

The garages are needed to meet the parking requirements attached to the development of buildings in the downtown area, the report states. Under existing village ordinances, buildings can be built to a height of 90-feet in the central business district.

But the cost of one-level, surface parking for such buildings has been prohibitive, according to the report, and multi-story parking, for both shoppers and employees, is needed to promote downtown development.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson says he agrees with the Dodds report, but says he is not convinced the two new buildings would be constructed as quickly as the bank president envisions.

"THE IDEAL IS to build the garages and get the development simultaneously," Hanson said. "Otherwise you wind up with the garages sitting there and nothing happening."

Hanson said he believes asking the downtown property owners to pay the cost of the garages is "the fairest way to do it," and that to be successful, any commercial redevelopment "has got to stand on its own feet."

Village Planner Joe Kesler says the Dodds parking study is an "excellent one," but says he foresees problems in the fact that most of the store owners in the downtown area do not own the property.

"In many instances the merchants are anxious to go along with redevelopment plans but the owners of the land are not willing to pay the additional cost," Kesler says.

But Dodds says he thinks he can sway the property owners because of the new construction and increased value the garages would bring.

The report predicts that the total assessed valuation of buildings in the central business district, now just over $2 million, would double in five years.

The cost of building the garages would be repaid to the village through the two-way central business district tax, Dodds says, and would not raise the taxes of homeowners.

"All we are asking the village to do is lend its credit (rating) to the program. And we don't have to sit around waiting for federal or state aid to get started," he said.

Total nears $1.5 million

Parks plan $150,000 boost in budget

Because of an increase in the total assessed valuation of the village, the Arlington Heights Park District plans on a $150,000 increase in its 1973-74 budget. The preliminary budget figure is $1,450,000.

Though final calculations have not been completed, it is expected that the park district tax rate will be the same as it was last year. The budget, approved by the finance committee, will go before the board for final approval by the end of March.

The increase in the budget, however, will be more than eaten up by increases in the cost of running the district, according to Kay Muller, member of the park board finance committee.

"The uncontrollable expenses are killing us," said Mrs. Muller. "The group health insurance alone went up 30 per cent."

Personal expenses, which take up 47 per cent, or $685,841, of the new budget, are also uncontrollable expenses, according to Mrs. Muller.

"WE HAVE TO have the lawn cut and we have to provide recreation personnel. We also have to give these people raises. The raises of 5 to 6 per cent that we are giving out this year will just about cover the cost of living," said Mrs. Muller. "We can't even reward good employees."

The park district has been in an increasing dollar squeeze for the past few years because of increasing costs for operation and static income. According to Mrs. Muller, a 5 per cent increase in swimming pool passes may be in the offing to keep up with costs.

"We have to get the money from somewhere," she said.

The finance committee recently took the axe to proposed recreation and maintenance budgets. Besides cutting hand mowers, vans, tow trucks and other maintenance vehicles, the committee also sliced trash cans, coat racks, clocks and lockers from the budget.

"WE HAVE SOME mowers and equipment that date back to 1950, but we simply don't have the money to replace them," said Muller. "After we get finished paying for personnel, paying off bonds, paying for insurance and paying off interest on loans, we have less than 20 per cent of the budget for programs and maintenance equipment."

Most drinking fountains originally planned for the district have been removed due to the high cost. Other cuts made by the finance committee include light fixtures and security gates at Pioneer Park, $70,000 worth of paving around the district, hockey boards at Camelot and Frontier Parks and paneling at Recreation Park.

"New programs and new equipment are almost non-existent in the 1973-74 budget," said Mrs. Muller. "We are purchasing typewriters, adding machines and other office equipment for our new

1972 mistake will mean hike in realty taxes

Arlington Heights Park District residents will be faced with a slight increase in their property tax bills this year, thanks to a mistake last year in the Cook County Clerk's office.

Last year the clerk shorted the park district by .012, which cost the park district $68,000 in revenue. This year the old rate will be attached to the park district's new tax rate.

"The taxpayers may think the park district is increasing the tax rate when they look at their bill, but we will actually be pretty close to last year's rate," said Roger Burke, park district treasurer.

The actual rate for next year has not been determined, but it should be close to last year's rate of .380, or $38 per $10,000 assessed valuation, according to district officials. Last year, however, the tax rate used by the county was .368.

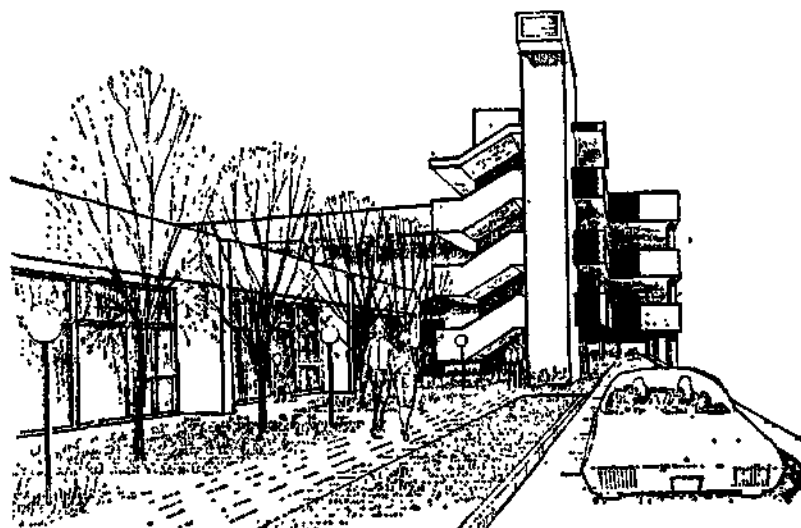

A tax that may be tacked on to the rate of the district is a museum tax. The tax could add up to .015 to the district rate.

"The tax would be levied for the construction of a farm at Prairie Park (Council Trail and South Belmont)," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation. "The $42,000 or so that we could collect by levying the tax would make a good start on a farm."

The park board will probably decide whether or not to levy the museum tax this month.

The only new program addition in the budget is the Ecology Corps, which constitutes a $5,000 expense for salaries. The corps will include teens who will help around the park district during the summer.

PARKING GARAGES like this one are needed to promote the redevelopment of the Arlington Heights central business district, according to a local bank president who says he has a plan to build the garages at no cost to the homeowner.

This Morning In Brief

by ROGER CAPETTINI

Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines, Cook County Board Commissioner, said he will request a special meeting of the board to discuss the immediate removal from office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett — convicted of bribery, tax evasion and mail fraud yesterday.

Fulle said he will ask County Board Pres. George Dunne to call the meeting if the state's attorney's office gives the board the go-ahead on removing Barrett.

That go-ahead was given early last night — a few hours after the guilty verdict was announced.

Sheldon Gardner, chief of the civil division of the state's attorney's office, said he has delivered a legal opinion to Dunne both in writing and by telephone. "It is incumbent on the Cook County Board to officially declare a vacancy and immediately appoint a successor to Barrett."

Barrett, 72, was found guilty yesterday in a federal district court of receiving $180,000 in bribes from the Shoup Voting Machine Co., of Pennsylvania and receiving $6,800 in kickbacks on voting machine insurance.

Barrett will be sentenced by Judge Richard Austin on April 17 after a presentence investigation. He faces up to 80 years in prison and $106,000 in fines.

Fulle said he will press for the special county board session instead of waiting for the next regular board meeting March 19.

"I'll be the first one to ask for his removal," Fulle said. "I wouldn't want him to go one extra day in office. It's much too important a post for that."

Dunne said yesterday he will seek the advice of the state's attorney on the board's position in the matter. He told the Herald he thinks the board may have to delay any action if Barrett's attorneys file an appeal.

Gardner said the constitution states, specifically, any person convicted of bribery is ineligible to hold office. He said state law gives the county board authority to declare a vacancy exists and the authority to appoint a successor until the next election — in this case November 1974.

Gardner said a similar case occurred several years ago in which then County Assessor Frank Keenan was convicted of a felony. He said Keenan challenged his removal from office pending his appeal, but the Illinois Supreme Court ultimately upheld the county's right to proceed with his removal and replacement.

DUNNE HAS TOLD the Herald the state's attorney's office, as parliamentarian for the board, will advise the board on its legal procedure and the board will be guided by that recommendation.

The jury returned the verdict yester-

day after seven hours of deliberations on the evidence.

The bulk of the government's case against Barrett was based on testimony of Irving H. Meyers and Anthony Lamiech, two former Shoup officers who have served time in federal prison for their part in the bribe scheme.

After the verdict was read, Judge Austin polled the jury and told them, "I doubt many will disagree with your verdict."

The market

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange managed to eke out a narrow gain despite a heavy selloff in oil stocks. The Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip industrial stocks closed 0.58 higher at 979.98 after a seesaw pattern that left it as much as 6 points behind at one point. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was 0.35 higher at 114.45 and the New York Stock Exchange index showed a gain of 17 cents in the price of the average common stock. Advances topped declines, 624 to 563, among 1,757 issues on the tape.

Vote tonight on removal of 'Sambo'

by JILL BETTNER
The fate of Little Black Sambo, a fictional character in a children's classic written in 1899, is to be decided tonight by the Dist. 21 School Board. A local family has asked that the book be removed from Dist. 21 libraries because it represents "subtle racism."

Officials of Dist. 21, which serves the communities of Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, portions of Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights, voted two weeks ago to keep the book on the shelves, and referred the matter to the board.

The special 10-member committee voted 8-2 to recommend that the board deny the request of Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., Buffalo Grove, to remove "Little Black Sambo" from area schools.

Jefferson complained to Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School, when his young daughter recently brought home a copy of Helen Bannerman's popular story about the little black boy who loses his clothes to tigers and then gets them back when the tigers turn to butter.

IN A LETTER to McKown, Jefferson said he considered the characters in the story "one-sided subtle stereotyping of one ethnic group as opposed to another." He categorized the book as "subtle, institutionalized racism."

McKown and Supt. Kenneth Gill were the only members of the committee who voted to ban the book.

Gill said that while he did not personally object to the book, he felt that if the Jeffersons considered it demeaning, it should be removed.

Gill sent a letter to all school board members last week, further explaining his reasons for voting to eliminate "Little Black Sambo" from school book collections.

THE CONSENSUS among the majority of the committee members was that "Little Black Sambo" is nothing more than an innocent fairy tale. However, Dist. 21 head librarian Betty Ekstrom recommended that newer books, describing a variety of black experiences, be added to Dist. 21 libraries to give children a broader perspective on blacks.

Some area residents have expressed opposition to taking "Little Black Sambo" off the shelves because they feel the action might establish a precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the board room of the administration building, adjacent to Jack London Junior High School, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Choir to perform

A 75-voice college concert choir will perform Tuesday at 8 p.m. at Faith Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights.

Students from Heidelberg College in Tiffin, Ohio, form the mixed chorus. The concert is sponsored jointly by Faith Lutheran Church and St. John United Church of Christ. A $1 donation is requested.

"ANTIGONE," a play by Jean Anouilh that puts the ancient Greek legend into modern language, will be presented Friday and Saturday at Mersey High School. Here Diane Seiber, left, Debbie Oliver and Dan McDermott rehearse for the production under some "genuine" Greek pillars. The play will also include mime and original music composed by John Boehm, a math teacher at the school. The play, which will be given on a modern chrome and black set, will be at 8 p.m. each night. Tickets are $1.50.

Stereotype should be avoided: Gill

School Dist. 21 Supt. Kenneth Gill feels characters in the controversial children's book "Little Black Sambo" identify with a stereotype of blacks that should be avoided.

Gill and Paul McKown, principal of Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling, entered the only dissenting votes in a recent decision by school officials to keep the book in School Dist. 21 libraries.

In a letter to school board members, Gill explained his reasons for wanting to grant the request of a Buffalo Grove family to remove the book.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie T. Jefferson, 1218 Selwyn Ln., made the request because they feel "Little Black Sambo" is insulting to blacks.

Gill stressed, however, that the book should not be taken off the shelves merely because one person complained.

"WE SHOULD REMOVE a book from our school libraries or not select some additional books, only when we think it is not in the best educational interest of our students," Gill said in the letter. He told the Herald yesterday, "The whole issue is not a Willie Jefferson issue, it's an education issue."

Gill agreed with the Jeffersons that "Little Black Sambo" stereotypes and demeans blacks.

Gill's letter reads. "I feel that this should be avoided and more books should be used which give a more realistic picture of black persons. We must remember that most of our students have very little opportunity to relate to black persons in a realistic manner. I sometimes wonder if the book would be so humorous and enjoyable if Helen Bannerman had written it about English children."

GILL ADDED THAT he considered "Little Black Sambo" a "fairy tale" or "fantasy" and that the story did not have enough worth to overcome the negative aspects of the black stereotype.

Countering the statement that "Little Black Sambo" is part of the American heritage, Gill answered in the letter, "So was slavery, but we wouldn't want to keep it in our present society."

Gill told the Herald he did not feel removing the book would establish a dangerous precedent for banning other books about ethnic groups.

"We select books for kids anyway," Gill said.

"I don't think getting rid of this book would set a precedent or solve the problem of race relations either. What it would do is remove one more subtle influence. To use the old cliché, mountains are made out of grains of sand, but without the sand, the mountains wouldn't be there," he said.

'Excessive publicity' closes Amy custody case hearing

Reacting to what he called excessive publicity, a district judge held hearings in secret Tuesday on an Arlington Heights woman's request the court return the daughter she gave up for adoption less than two weeks after birth.

"I recognize there is considerable concern (in the case)," said district Judge John F. Gallagher in a statement distributed to newsmen barred from the hearing Monday. "But this is a private matter between private parties."

Gallagher said the rights of privacy of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Huebert, their adopted daughter, 3-year-old Amy, and the child's natural mother "outweighs any consideration for publicizing the case."

A SPOKESMAN at Gallagher's office said the site of the hearing had been moved from his chambers but would not disclose the location.

The hearing began Monday on a request of Paula Marshall, formerly of Arlington Heights and who now lives in Florida, that Amy be returned to her. She said she gave Amy up under duress when the child was 13 days old.

On Monday, Gallagher granted a defense motion and barred reporters from the hearing. He promised he would announce a custody decision when the hearing was concluded.

In 1971, a Cook County judge ruled the child should be returned to her natural mother. The Hueberts, meanwhile had moved to Colorado Springs from Evanston, Ill., after adopting the child.

Cultural panel to seek grants

Applications for architectural grants for an Arlington Heights Cultural Center soon will be made to the Ford Foundation and the National Foundation for the Performing Arts.

The application will be made as soon as the village cultural commission prepares a report recently completed by a theater consultant.

"We aren't planning to change the report, we'll probably add an introduction and put it in a nice package," said Sidney Rosenfeld, chairman of the commission. The cost for packaging the 25-page report has not yet been determined.

The commission plans to proceed with the construction of the $2.5 million cultural center as proposed by Theater Consultant George C. Izenour, and is currently preparing to interview architects for the job.

The commission has been working on the creation of a cultural center in the village for about two years.

"At our last meeting we had representatives from local civic organizations and School Dist. 59," said Rosenfeld. "I see this as a new awakening of interest in the project."

The center will be located south of Arlington Heights Memorial Library on a square block which is currently used for a parking lot.

Financing of the facility is also currently being discussed by the commission. After hiring an architect to create the building, the commission hopes to raise the $2.5 million from area businesses and individuals.

Drug charges made against 3 by MEG

Three men were arrested Tuesday night in Rolling Meadows by agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and charged on various drug counts.

The three men were described by one MEG agent as suspected "major drug traffickers and heavy suppliers for the Northwest suburban area." They were arrested by MEG, an anti-narcotics police undercover group, after Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect police cooperated in tracking the men down.

Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, 24, of 4726 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (methamphetamine and MDA). He is a one-time police recruit in Des Plaines who was dismissed within two months of being hired, and never became a policeman. The arrests took place at his residence.

David E. Dardis, 25, Carbondale, was charged with delivery of methamphetamine, possession of marijuana, and two counts of possession of controlled substances (MDA and barbiturates). Robert Cooke, 23, Chicago, was charged with conspiracy to deliver methamphetamine.

The MEG agent said the men were located by tracing back sales that they had allegedly made. The arrests were made about 6:30 p.m. Tuesday. He said the street value of the drugs confiscated during the raid was $10,000.

Official ties Chicago land purchase to O'Hare expansion

Mayor Herbert Behrel charged yesterday Chicago has purchased Mannheim Road property from the federal government to expand O'Hare Airport.

Three Chicago officials — in the real estate, corporation counsel and aviation departments — denied the charge.

The expansion could force further re-routing of Mannheim, which was moved east in the 1950s to make room for the airport.

Behrel, at his weekly press conference, said "we have learned that the City of Chicago apparently has acquired a piece of property that was held by the post office department." The 29.75-acre plot is bounded by Devon Avenue, Mannheim and the Soo Line Rwy. tracks.

THE POST office originally purchased the property to construct a regional mail center. The center was later located in a Brookfield, Ill., warehouse that the government bought.

Behrel said he talked with U.S. Reps. Sam Young, R-10th, and Harold Collier, R-6th, in Washington this week about the alleged expansion. "What they really want to know is what Chicago's going to be doing with the property; what effect it's going to have on their constituents."

According to Behrel, Chicago would tie the post office purchase to acquisition of 26.04 U.S. Government Services Administration acres between old and new Mannheim and south of Devon.

Mayor Richard Daley's recent capital improvements report lists a proposed $140 million for 1974 to 1976 construction of a new international terminal in the area of the property. The airport's Master Plan calls for construction of the new terminal on Air Reserve and Air National Guard property and use of the current international building for domestic flights.

Chicago failed two years ago attempting to win release of the GSA land.

BEHREL CLAIMED Chicago has approached property owners along Mannheim about land purchase.

"Where they're going to relocate Mannheim Road the next time I don't know," he said.

Rosemont Mayor Donald Stevens said, "This comes as a complete surprise to me."

"There was some talk of purchasing that land. But nothing was ever agreed upon," said Louis Weinberg, public works department public works land acquisition coordinator.

"If they can build their other buildings over there with driveway access, then they can release property on the field for something else," Behrel said.

DES PLAINES officials often mention the military property as potential site of the O'Hare area sewage plant now planned for Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street. Behrel said last month the tracts apparently are not large enough for location of the 100-million plant.

Behrel also said two other major airport projects are planned — relocation of runways 4R and 22L and addition of a new airplane bay area.

Daley's report included $25 million for moving the runway. Behrel claimed the move will be about 800 feet northwest to make room for new taxiways around terminal bays. The relocation would point planes over a larger section of Des Plaines and Park Ridge.

"Their real intent . . . is to have triple runways out there and avoid a third airport," the mayor said. Chicago officials told the Herald last week that no triple runways are planned. "I would (say that) too if I were he. I would deny it," Behrel said.

Construction firm hit by burglars

The sales office of the Arthur J. Greene Construction Co., 203 W. Cedar, Arlington Heights, was burglarized between 4:20 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Lila Greene of Chicago, secretary, reported that a calculator, a television set, a clock radio and three staplers were stolen. Also $500 was reported to have been taken from an unlocked desk drawer in the office.

Police believe entry was gained by cutting the screen on the office window. The intruder left muddy footprints inside the office and a metal razor-type object was found outside the window.

Caucus Party forms public relations panel

A new public relations committee has been announced by the campaign chairman of the Arlington Heights Caucus Party.

Named were Mrs. Robert Hayes, public relations chairman; Frederick Iwen, printing and layout; Mrs. E. J. Hanner, publicity; and Mrs. George Schroeder, schedule coordinator.

Caucus candidates in the April 3 election are Jack Walsh, village president, Frank Palmatier, Alice Harms, Richard Durava, George Graeme and David Griffin, trustees. All six candidates are running unopposed.

Elks national figure to speak at reception

The Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks (B.P.O.E.) will be the guest speaker at an Arlington Heights Elks reception at Arlington Park Towers Saturday.

Francis M. Smith, the grand exalted ruler, is a trial attorney in Sioux Falls, S.D.

Smith has pledged to battle drug abuse and promises to see the Elks serve the country through youth programs, scholarship assistance and aid to the handicapped.

Long-term lease accord reached for Kopp Pool

A general agreement has been reached between committees of the Mount Prospect Park District and Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 on a long-term lease for Kopp Pool.

School board member Gerald Smiley said, "the committees agreed on the wording of a 20-year lease for the pool area and a general outline of cost distributions."

Smiley said the lease would be renewable annually so the school district could budget for costs.

The lease is tentatively scheduled to start May 1. Formal action by both boards is required before the lease is official.

Action on the lease will be placed on the school board's agenda for its next meeting, March 19.

Tom Cooper, director of the park district, said he expects the board to discuss the lease at its March meeting and to take action at its April meeting.

Kopp Pool, which adjoins Dempster Junior High School in Mount Prospect, and Disney Pool, which adjoins Lively Junior High School in Elk Grove Village, have been closed to school physical education classes since December.

THE POOLS were closed because they did not meet the Life Safety Code requirements for Illinois schools. Before the school district could have the safety work done, a long-term lease was required by state law.

Arthur Perry, Dist. 59 assistant superintendent for administration, said negotiations would probably "get going very quickly" with Elk Grove Park District, which owns Disney Pool.

At the school board meeting Monday, contracts totaling $202,091 were awarded for life safety work throughout the district. Fred Johnson, district architect, said the work at Dempster and Lively junior high schools would be started first so the pools would be reopened to the physical education classes.

Although the pools were closed to the schools, both park districts continued to operate classes and recreation programs. The Life Safety Codes apply only to schools. Both park districts met standards applicable to them.
